ST. LOUIS TO KEEP CHRISTMAS WITH HOLIDAY EVENTS

Business in General to Be Suspended With Special Services in Nearly All Churches.

CAROLERS TO BE HEARD TONIGHT

Many Organizations Distribute Food and Toys to Make Day Cheerful Among Needy.

Christmas will be observed tomorrow as a general holiday, with business suspended and special services in most churches. The celebration will be well under way tonight. Christmas eve services will be held in many Episcopal churches and carolers will stroll about the city pausing to sing wherever welcomed by a lighted window.

The prospect for a "white Christmas" is regarded as slight. The Weather Bureau forecasts unsettled weather tomorrow with a possibility of snow or rain and a moderate temperature, probably a few degrees above freezing.

Midnight masses, a feature of Christmas services in Catholic churches in other years, have been discontinued this year and instead mass will be celebrated about sunrise in many churches. First mass at St. Patrick's Church will be at 4:30 a. m. In the New and Old Cathedrals the first mass will be at 5 a. m., and at St. John's Church, at 5:30 a. m. Archbishop Glennon will celebrate a pontifical high mass at the New Cathedral at 11 o'clock, the sermon at that mass to be by the Rev. Robert S. Johnston, president of St. Louis University.

Bishop Johnson to Preach.

Bishop Johnson of the Episcopal Church will preach at Christ Church Cathedral at 11 o'clock tomorrow morning. The usual candlelight musical service will be held at the cathedral this afternoon at 5:15 o'clock, and there will be a communion service tonight at 11:30 o'clock.

The traditional custom of sunrise matins will be observed in most Lutheran churches. Many Protestant churches known as evangelical, which once regarded Christmas as a home holiday, will continue their recent custom of special services at churches on that day.

Soon after dusk tonight the carolers, estimated by the Christmas Carols Association to number about 5000, will begin their march through streets of the city and county. As usual, they will accept contributions to be used for the benefit of the association's charities.

Singers will visit all of the hospitals. At Jefferson Barracks there will be several programs for officers and enlisted men. Tomorrow the post will be awakened by carolers accompanied by the garrison band, going from barracks to barracks while singing.

No Delivery of Mail.

There will be no delivery service from the St. Louis postoffice tomorrow, but one collection will be made in the afternoon. Postmaster Michener expects postal receipts for December to fall about $100,000 below last year's figure of $1,300,000, although more first-class mail is being handled this year.

Many who sent parcels last year are economizing this year by sending greeting cards, the postmaster thinks. The peak day for Christmas mailing was Monday, when 400,000 pieces of first-class mail and 300,000 of all other classes went through the St. Louis postoffice.

The Christmas rush at the Postoffice has given temporary employment to 2542 men who will be paid about $50,000.

Four hundred baskets containing large supplies of staples and fruit, candy and nuts were distributed today in the river wards by Edward J. O'Hare, an attorney, and Dan O'Neil, former Constable, who were born and reared in the district. Capt. Frank Nally and police of the Carr Street District assisted with the delivery and provided names of needy families. A store building at 408 Morgan street was used as a depot. Presents also were provided for residents of Father Dempsey's Home for Workingmen.

Fourteen hundred patients at City Hospital will have a turkey dinner tomorrow through the kindness of Tom Kearney, betting commissioner, who has donated 1000 pounds of the fowl. Roast chicken will be served at City Sanitarium, Koch Hospital and Isolation Hospital. Roast pork and candy will be served to inmates of the Workhouse and a special dinner will be served also at the city jail. Toys donated by the public will

Post-Dispatch Christmas Festival Plans

THE thirty-first annual Post-Dispatch Christmas Festival will be held tomorrow morning in the Coliseum. Ten thousand of the neediest children in St. Louis will be entertained with a treat and celebration.

All committee members are to be on hand at 7:30 o'clock.

The doors will be opened at 9 o'clock. Music will start at 9:30 and the performance at 9:50. Doors will be closed at 10 o'clock.

Owing to the limited seating space in the Coliseum, only children holding tickets will be admitted.

Special entrances will be as follows: Committee members, north door on Jefferson avenue; crippled children, south door on Jefferson avenue.

Admission tickets distributed yesterday are also good for transportation to and from the Coliseum. The "going" stub will be honored up to 10 a. m., and the "return" until 1:30 p. m.

STAR OF BETHLEHEM TO BE SHOWN AT BERLIN PLANETARIUM

By the Associated Press.

BERLIN, Dec. 24.—The star that shone over Bethlehem will be illustrated for Christmas tonight at the Berlin Planetarium, where an elaborate Zeiss apparatus projects images of hundreds of heavenly bodies upon a dome to represent the firmament at night.

One theory of the star of Bethlehem has been chosen for illustration at the planetarium. That is, that the great light seen in the skies on the first Christmas was produced by conjunction of Jupiter and Saturn, which observers of the period noted about the time of Christ's birth as appearing in the constellation Pisces, or the Fishes.

Fishes became a Christian symbol through the letters of the Greek word icthys (fish) which forms the initials of the Greek transcription of "Jesus Christ, Son of God, Saviour."

A large crowd is expected to watch tonight while the star effect is produced at the planetarium. An electrically operated machine will bring the two planetary images into conjunction producing an intensified radiance in the sky much as it may have been when the three wise men from the East followed it to worship at the manger.

The two other popular theories in explanation of the star of Bethlehem are that it was a comet, or that it was a nova, a star flashing for the first time into human vision.

FLYER KILLED IN LIQUOR PLANE CRASH IN INDIANA IDENTIFIED

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

LA PORTE, Ind., Dec. 24.—Coroner's investigators and Department of Commerce agents today announced that the aviator whose plane crashed and burned here during a blinding snowstorm yesterday is believed to have been Bert Kennedy of Chicago. Investigators reported finding the remnants of four whisky bottles and one undamaged bottle. The body of the pilot was burned beyond recognition and most of the plane and cargo were destroyed. Kennedy's friends today said he probably was taking the liquor to friends in Indiana. A belt buckle in the wreckage bore Kennedy's initials. Kennedy was the brother of Mrs. Lillian Kahler, in whose Chicago apartment Willie Doody, condemned killer, was found hiding more than a year ago. Kennedy, who sometimes used the name of Bert J. Roesch, was a boyhood friend of Doody.

HERO OF PRISON BREAK FREED

Former Ball Player Receives Pardon From Ohio Governor.

COLUMBUS, O., Dec. 24.—Clifford W. (Tacks) Lattimer, former big league baseball player, received a Christmas pardon from Ohio penitentiary today from Gov. Cooper. Lattimer was serving life for second degree murder. The pardon was personally presented to Lattimer by the Governor.

Lattimer had been cited as a hero in a break of 13 members of the notorious Company K, "the prison bad boys," Nov. 8, 1926, when he seized a rifle and went to the aid of the guards. The men rushed through the main gate. Prison officials said Lattimer saved the life of Miss Amanda Thomas, daughter of Warden Thomas, when he protected her with the rifle. Lattimer, a former member of the New York National, Pittsburg and Cincinnati baseball teams, was admitted to the penitentiary Jan. 7, 1925, for the killing Nov. 24, 1924, of Charles E. Mackrodt, a fellow officer on a railroad police force.

5000 BASKETS OF FOOD FROM FESTIVAL FUND

Christmas comes but once a year.
But when it comes it brings good cheer—

THAT little rhyme of childhood, on thousands of small tongues today, is just as true in St. Louis this year as it ever has been. Unemployment, sickness and other hardships in life notwithstanding, the destitute as well as the more fortunate homes are going to experience the joy of Christmas good cheer.

For the thirty-first Christmas, the Post-Dispatch Festival will see to it that a measure of hospitality is provided for those who otherwise would have a lean and lonely Christmas day.

Five thousand well-filled baskets for Christmas dinners were distributed throughout the city today.

Among other things, the baskets contained chickens, bread, potatoes, tomatoes, soup, onions, candy, beans, milk, rice, coffee, sugar, prunes and spaghetti.

Fifty-one city trucks, four touring cars and more than 100 men were used in the distribution. Many were the happy surprises at humble doors where of late privation had called more often than any other visitor.

The way the baskets were received would have been ample reward to the thousands who gave to the fund could they have but seen the joy occasioned by their generosity.

Tickets for the Festival.

Yesterday was ticket day. Throughout the city at various playgrounds boys and girls besieged members of the ticket committee for those highly prized pieces of cardboard which will admit them to the Coliseum in the morning. The happiness of those children from the city's destitute homes was another sight which would have made glad the hearts of those who have contributed to the fund.

There is no better way to sum up the Christmas Festival in the Coliseum than by paraphrasing the last words of the Gettysburg address. It will be of the children, by the children, for the children. Enough toys and other presents have been piled up in the Coliseum runways to provide gifts for a good-sized town.

The main part of the entertainment will be furnished by children of the Municipal community centers. "The Little Match Girl," arranged and directed by Reuben W. Tapperson, city superintendent of recreation, will employ nearly 900 from the Sherman, Mullanphy and Soulard centers.

Program at Coliseum.

The entertainment opens with a scene in a side street of a big city on Christmas eve many years ago. Little gamins of the pavement are shouting in glee at the prospects of joy on the morrow. As they scatter to go to their homes, a little match girl wanders in, shivering from the cold, trying in vain to sell her matches to the hurrying people. Everyone is too busy with last-minute buying to notice the little girl.

Forlorn and tired, she sits down. To warm her numbed fingers, she opens her box of matches and strikes a match and holds her freezing little hands over its glowing flame. With the approaching twilight and from the warmth which she receives from her matches she becomes sleepy. Silvery stars peep out from the blue

TWO GROCERYMEN ARE SHOT, ROBBER CAUGHT IN FIGHT

Coconut Thrown by Store Manager Floors One of Holdup Pair in Shop at 226 North Euclid.

BUTCHER ARMED WITH MEAT CLEAVER

Second Thief Escapes Under Shower of Canned Goods, Firing Pistol as He Retreats to Door.

Two employes were shot and one of two robbers was captured last night in a fight in which coconuts, canned goods and a meat cleaver were used in resisting an attempt to hold up a Piggly-Wiggly grocery at 226 North Euclid avenue.

Oscar Frye, 46 years old, 5603 Theodosia avenue, a supervisor for the company, grappled with one of the robbers and was shot in the left arm by the second holdup man. Frank Haubert, 25, 3703 Washington avenue, the butcher, armed himself with a meat cleaver, vaulted a counter, but was brought down with another shot which struck him in the left thigh.

A well-aimed coconut, thrown by Kenneth Brueggeman, 4110 South Grand boulevard, manager of the store, struck the robber with whom Frye had struggled, knocking him down. The manager pinioned his arms.

One Robber Escapes in Auto.

The second holdup man continued firing but retreated toward the door under a volley of cans and coconuts thrown by Herman G. Frye, 1475 Clara avenue, son of the supervisor and an employe of the store, and two other workers, Ernest Daniel, 3738 Westminster place, and Arthur Redell, 3511 North Twentieth street. He escaped in an automobile parked in front of the place.

The prisoner told police he was Clarence Stamps, 24, a soda dispenser, of 605 Clara avenue. An automatic pistol which he had carried was found to contain eight cartridges, substantiating his contention that none of the shots had been fired by him. He was treated at City Hospital for a skull injury.

Two diamond rings valued at $1600 and $60 in cash were taken from Mrs. Emma Reimann, wife of William Reimann, vice president of the South Side National Bank, by a man who held her up last night in front of her home at 7722 Shirley drive, Clayton, and drove away in her Stutz sedan. The machine was recovered in Brentwood.

Four women reported they were robbed by purse snatchers. They were: Mrs. Christina Krone, 3126 Vine Grove avenue, robbed of $7 in front of 4406 St. Louis avenue; Mrs. Florence Jenkins, 2620A North Sixteenth street, $12, in front of 1435 North Sixteenth street; Miss Blanche Clousen, 5104 Wilson avenue, $6, at Kingshighway and Southwest avenue; Miss Dana Alt, 2615 Gamble street, $1, in front of 1835 Biddle street.

Theft at Steel Company Plant.

Seven electric drills and tools valued at $500 were stolen from the La Salle Steel Co., 3110 La Salle street.

A diamond valued at $1500 was found to be missing from a ring when Mrs. John Day of the Wiltshire Apartments, 725 Skinker boulevard, opened her jewel box yesterday. Day told police he had found the door of the apartment open when he returned home last Wednesday.

NEW SENATE VOTE ON POWER BOARD IS UP TO WALSH

Montanan, Indignant at Chairman's Dismissal of Two Employes, Weighs Move to Reconsider.

HIS PREVIOUS ACT GIVES THIS RIGHT

Calls Ousting 'Punishment of Two Devoted Servants for Faithful Discharge of Duties.'

By CHARLES G. ROSS,
Chief Washington Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 24.—It became clear today that when Congress reconvenes after the holidays the action of the reorganized Power Commission under the chairmanship of George Otis Smith, in summarily dismissing Solicitor Charles A. Russell and Chief Accountant William V. King, will be the subject of sharp criticism from the progressive group in the Senate.

Whether the progressives will content themselves with further calling attention to what they describe as "an indefensible" act or will go further and seek to bring about a reconsideration of the vote by which Smith was confirmed, has not been determined. Much will depend on the attitude of Senator Walsh (Dem.) of Montana, one of the leading constitutional authorities of the Senate, who, having voted for Smith, is eligible to make the motion for reconsideration.

Walsh told the Post-Dispatch today that he had not yet decided whether he would make such a motion. He indicated, however, that he was seriously thinking of so doing. The Senate rules provide that a motion to reconsider a nomination may be made within two legislative days after the confirmation. Smith was confirmed last Saturday by a vote of 38 to 22, after a vigorous fight led by Dill (Dem.) of Washington who maintained that the whole attitude of the nominee showed prejudice in favor of the private power interests. As the Senate adjourned at the end of the same session in which Smith was confirmed, there will be ample time for a motion to reconsider after the Senate comes back from the holiday recess.

Have Already Taken Oath.

Walsh said the fact that the power commission nominees had taken the oath of office did not negative the right of the Senate to reconsider confirmation. A motion to reconsider would carry with it a request to the President to return the names to the Senate for further action. It was Walsh's view that confirmation could not be regarded as complete till after the Senate had been given full opportunity to act under the two-day rule.

Smith's statement that Russell and King were fired along with F. E. Bonner, executive secretary of the old commission, because the new commissioners wanted to "restore harmony" drew expressions of indignation from Walsh and the other progressives. They declared that King and Russell had consistently been on the side of the public, while Bonner as consistently had ranged himself with the power interests.

"Bonner had already signified that he was leaving the Commission," Walsh pointed out. "Why then, was it necessary to fire two faithful public servants in order to 'restore harmony?' The commission has violated the fundamental ethics of good business.

Gives Two Examples.

"Suppose an auditor for a business firm had been constantly protesting against the padded expense accounts of a traveling salesman, would it then be good business to fire the auditor as well as the salesman? or suppose a member of a banking house had been found guilty of improper speculation, do you think that the officer who exposed the speculation ought to be dismissed along with the faithless officer in order to 'restore harmony.' By any test of good business the action of the commission is indefensible."

Walsh set forth his views yesterday in a bitter letter to Chairman Smith in which he said:

"I am unable to interpret this action in any light except as punishment of two devoted public servants for the faithful discharge of the duties that devolved upon them.

"So far as I have been able to learn, not a word has ever been uttered against either implying anything more than excessive zeal in safeguarding the interests of the public.

"It is a matter of profound regret to me that the confidence I hoped the country would have in

NORRIS HITS AT PRESIDENT, DENOUNCING LUCAS ATTACK

WARFARE SPREADING; CURRAN DRAWN IN Sending of Barroom Cartoon Into Nebraska Brings Statement Group Fighting Prohibition Spent Nothing in State.

By PAUL Y. ANDERSON,
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 24.—The political tempest caused by the exposure of Robert H. Lucas' secret attempt to defeat Senator George W. Norris in the last election, and Lucas' subsequent efforts to read Norris out of the Republican party, raged with unmitigated violence today, increasing the prospects for an extra session of Congress, and giving color to talk of a third party movement in 1932.

An accumulation of evidence, all indicating that Lucas has the backing of the White House, resulted last night in the issuance of a sizzling statement by Norris, in which the Nebraska Senator charged President Hoover with being "willing to lend his name to these conspirators in their disreputable methods of controlling the party." Just prior to this, Representative Will R. Wood of Indiana, a Republican House leader and chairman of the Republican Congressional Campaign Committee, had emerged from a conference with President Hoover to declare that "Norris is neither a Republican nor a Democrat: he is a consummate demagogue."

"I was working for the upbuilding and purification of the Republican party when Mr. Hoover was a resident and voter of Great Britain," Norris retorted. "I expect to stay in this country, and I expect to oppose things which I think are detrimental to the public interest, regardless of any personal clique or any political party."

Representative Wood's statement that "too many people are masquerading as Republicans now," caused one veteran party leader to remark privately that, "if this keeps up Mr. Wood soon will have no reason to complain," and it drew from Senator Borah the blistering admonition: "Let those get out of the party who have disgraced it."

Lucas Returns to Fray.

Lucas returned to the fray this morning with a statement attempting to explain away the evidence that official funds of the Republican National Committee were pledged as security for the $4000 loan out of which Lucas purchased the Ku Klux Klan literature that he sent to Nebraska in his secret effort to defeat Norris. He admitted promising the bank that the party funds would not be withdrawn until the loan was paid, but still insisted that it was "a personal matter."

Regarding his failure to tell the Nye committee about the security when testifying about the loan last Saturday, the executive director of the National Committee said he was not asked the direct question, but added that subsequently he wrote a personal letter to Chairman Nye, giving him the facts. He added that his reason for trying to defeat Norris, aside from Norris' "bad Republicanism," arose out of the fact that "John J. Raskob and the Association Against the Prohibition Amendment was throwing thousands of dollars into the campaign."

To this Henry H. Curran, head of the association, today replied that the organization had not spent a single dollar in the Nebraska senatorial compaign, for the simple reason that both Senator Norris and his Democratic opponent, Gilbert M. Hitchcock, are confirmed drys. He pointed out, moreover, that the Nye Committee already has investigated the association's part in the campaign, and received an accounting of all its expenditures.

Cost of the Literature.

Lucas reiterated that the cost of the literature which he sent to Nebraska was $850, and that the remainder of the $4300 which he spent for printing at the plant of the Fellowship Forum here went for material that was shipped to

Gross Income for 12 Months Ending Oct. 31 Was $4,527,000 Below Preceding Similar Period.

By the Associated Press.

NORFOLK, Va., Dec. 24.—The Seaboard Air Line Railway Co., which operates 4500 miles in the South, went into receivership late yesterday. The railroad concurred in the statement of a creditor that it faced obligations it was unable to meet.

Federal Judge D. Lawrence Groner granted the application of the Bethlehem Steel Co. for the receivership and appointed Legh R. Powell, president of the railway since 1921, and Ethelbert W. Smith, vice president of the Pennsylvania Railroad, as receivers.

A statement by the railroad said the company failed to earn its fixed charges by approximately $4,250,000 in 1930, and therefore was unable to meet large approaching maturities.

The bill of complaint set forth that the railway had refused to pay a debt of $234,481 due the steel company. The total indebtedness of the railway company, the bill alleged, is now $215,695,301.

Failure to meet these obligations, the bill set forth, would make the railroad liable to foreclosure of mortgages and to dissipation of its properties.

The cause of the railroad's inability to meet its debts, the bill alleged, was a decline in its gross income which impaired its borrowing power.

Decline in Gross Income.

The bill alleges that the gross income of the railway during the 12 months ending Oct. 31, 1930, was $4,527,428 below that for the same period for the preceding 12 months.

Heavy interest payments are due early in the year, the bill charges, and the company is without means to pay it.

In its answer the railway company admitted every allegation in the bill of complaint, and joined in the prayer for the appointment of a receiver.

Drastic Reorganization Necessary, Says Company Statement.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

"Since the designation on Nov. 7 of committees representing the various classes of the company securities and of Messrs. Dillon, Read & Co. and Ladenburg, Thalmann & Co., as readjustment managers, constant negotiations have been going on between the company, the managers and the committee looking toward a readjustment plan.

"Messrs. Coverdale & Colpitts and E. N. Brown, under the direction of the managers, have also been making an intensive study of the property and its financial requirements and these studies have indicated that the company will fail to earn its fixed charges in 1930 by approximately $4,250,000 and that a drastic reorganization, involving the foreclosure of mortgages, will be necessary. . . .

"The negotiations between the companies, the managers and the committees have advanced sufficiently to justify the hope that a definite plan of reorganization can be announced in the very near future."

Young Mellon to Enter Bank.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 24.—Paul Mellon, son of the Secretary of the Treasury, has given up the idea of becoming a publisher and will enter his father's bank in Pittsburg when he completes his education at Harvard University. Young Mellon, here on his Christmas vacation, said yesterday he had decided he should learn the banking business to be able to take over his father's immense interests when that step became necessary. He said he still was interested in writing, but felt duty called him to the banking business.

NORRIS STRIKES AT HOOVER IN DENOUNCING "THESE CONSPIRATORS"

other states. The principal item was a cartoon depicting a disreputable barroom scene. It was a standard item of klan propaganda, having been used in several campaigns, beginning with that against Al Smith in 1928.

"I undertook to offset the hurtful effect of the hundreds of thousands of dollars spent by Mr. Raskob and the Association Against the Prohibition Amendment," Lucas stated today. "The cartoons were used in states where Mr. Raskob and the association were spending thousands of dollars against our Republican candidates."

"Lucas," retorted Curran, "should look at his barroom cartoon in the light of that cheery little lyric, 'There's a serpent in the glass—dash it down,' before he makes another statement so symmetrically untrue as his latest. We did not spend a single dollar in the Nebraska campaign. In all the senatorial elections put together we spent the total sum of exactly $17,283.66, and no more. In all the congressional district elections we spent $11,080.17, and no more.

"I am beginning to wonder how much Lucas and (National Chairman) Fess are helping the Republican party. I have done a good deal of campaigning in my time, but the secret circulation of barroom cartoons is a new one on me."

"These Conspirators."

Representative Wood's angry declaration to newspaper men was made as he was leaving the President's office. He said that Lucas "has expressed the sentiments of every real Republican in the country," although he deprecated "the indirection" of his methods in attempting to defeat Norris. Replying, the Nebraska Senator said:

"The fact that Mr. Wood makes his outburst just after talking with the President is another indication that the President himself is willing to lend his name to these conspirators in their disreputable methods of controlling the party. The Republican party belongs to the rank and file. Representative Wood and Mr. Lucas, even though backed by Mr. Hoover, do not constitute the Republican party.

"I was fighting for the Republican party and its upbuilding and purification when Mr. Hoover was a resident and voter of Great Britain. The opposition to me, comes mostly, if not entirely, because I have refused to follow President Hoover when I thought he was wrong. His opposition to me is not because I am not a good Republican—that is subterfuge—but because I disagreed with him on farm relief and the preservation of natural resources.

"It is true that I have not agreed with him. He is likely to become a Democrat most any time. When he came to this country from Great Britain he became a Democrat and at once obtained a public office. He remained a Democrat until he secured a public office under a Republican administration and then he automatically became a Republican. I concede he has a right to change his politics as often as he changes office, if he wants to, but I haven't found it necessary to do that."

The fact that a man in Wood's position was willing to uphold conduct such as that in which Lucas had been caught, is another evidence, declared Norris, that certain powerful influences, especially the power interests, are temporarily in control of the party organization. It was shown in the Nye investigation that the effort to "get Norris" was backed by administration men and that a banker, connected with the Nebraska Power Co., also opposed him.

"Idea of Good Republican."

"Their idea of a good Republican is one who will sacrifice his convictions to cover up crime, dishonesty and debauchery, if they are committed by a Republican," the Senator declared. "Their opposition is another indication that I am right. I will never consent to qualify under their definition of 'a good Republican.'"

Wood's statement that, "if we are to have a party, it must be composed of real Republicans," was accepted by Progressives other than Norris as a command either to conform to the administration's idea of "good Republicanism" or get out of the party, but none of them manifested any disposition to heed it.

"Reading people out of the party is an idle gesture, no matter how highly placed the reader may be," remarked Borah. "I do not purpose to let the Lucases turn me in the direction they want me to go. Let him to get out of the party those who have disgraced it."

The belief gains ground that some very deep politics is being played here, and that the ultimate outcome may be a movement to "draft" Calvin Coolidge for the Republican presidential nomination in 1932. That impression was in no way discounted by a recent utterance in Mr. Coolidge's daily newspaper articles, construed here as an attack on the administration's policy of appropriating large sums to be used by the Federal Farm Board in stabilizing prices.

Lucas Not Thinking of Resigning, He Tells Homefolk.

By the Associated Press.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Dec. 24.—Robert H. Lucas, executive director of the Republican National Committee, whose testimony before the Senate Campaign Investigating Committee this week made him the storm center of a controversy between regular and independent Republicans, on coming home for the holidays today, was greeted by about 300 Louisville Republicans, with the cry, "We're for you, Bob!"

Lucas remarked: "I shall not permit it to be said that I have appealed to any religious prejudice without making an absolute denial." He said he was not considering resigning his party post. He plans to return to Washington the latter part of the week.

REDISCOUNT RATE CUT TO 2 PCT. IN NEW YORK

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Dec. 24.—A rediscount of 2 per cent—the lowest in the history of the Federal Reserve System and the lowest in the world—went into effect in the New York Federal Reserve Bank today.

The announcement that the rate at which members banks might borrow had been cut from 2½ per cent was construed by newspapers as a stimulus to business and a mark of confidence in the nation's condition.

Bankers were quoted as saying that the Federal Reserve Bank's action in inviting members banks to avail themselves freely of its credit was the most constructive move possible, in view of the widespread disturbances in the banking field.

In addition, Wall Street thought, the reduction would renew faith abroad in the strength of the New York money market. If the closing of two banks here had created distrust in the financial center, it was said, the Federal Reserve directors would have taken a different step.

Yesterday's reduction was the seventh since the break in the stock market in the fall of 1929, when the rate was 6 per cent. At the present time, the rate of the Bank of France is 2½ per cent and that of the Bank of England 3 per cent.

The rediscount rate has been out of line with the money market for several months as call money has frequently been available at 1 per cent and Federal funds as low as a fraction of 1 per cent. No change was ordered in the Federal Reserve buying rate on bankers' acceptances, now at 1⅞ per cent.

Two witnesses reported to police they had seen a well dressed middle-aged man jump from the center span of the Free Bridge into the Mississippi River shortly after noon today.

the new commission, of which you have become the head, should be so early and so rudely disturbed. It seems to me a matter of no consequence whatever that difference had existed between the two gentlemen named and the executive secretary of the commission, who was widely charged with being unduly friendly to the privilege-seeking power interests. The only offense of the other gentlemen was that in devotion to the public interest they classed with him."

The Progressives are asserting also that Smith, in procuring the dismissal of Russell and King, acted with "indecent haste." Not only was this the first official act of the commission but it was performed when only three of the five members were present, Commissioners Williamson and McNinch not yet having been sworn in. Those who authorized the order of dismissal were Commissioners Smith, Garsaud and Draper.

MAJ. SHEPARD GREETED BY DENVER CROWDS

Surgeon Convicted of Wife Murder Returns to Hospital Work.

By the Associated Press.

DENVER, Colo., Dec. 24.—Expressions of sympathy greeted Maj. Charles A. Shepard, convicted in Kansas City, Kan., of wife murder, as he returned to Denver today to report for duty at Fitzsimmons General Army Hospital.

Throngs swarmed about the army medical officer at the railroad station. Many persons grasped his hands and expressed confidence the Circuit Court of Appeals would reverse the verdict.

Maj. Shepard is at liberty under $25,000 bond to appear in Federal Court at Topeka, Kan., Feb. 2, for formal sentence to life imprisonment.

"I am innocent," Maj. Shepard said. "My fight for vindication has only begun. Without such wonderful sympathy and confidence, this ordeal would have been unbearable. But I feel good now and I know we will win."

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Dec. 24.—Through the portals and in the lobby of Union Station last night, Maj. Charles A. Shepard received acclaim. It was a demonstration that moved the Major and sent him on his way back to Denver smiling and confident, almost jubilant, while awaiting action on his motion for a new trial in the case in which he was convicted of the poison murder of his wife.

"Just tell everyone how grateful I am for the fine treatment accorded me by the people of Kansas City, and also for the confidence they have shown in me," he said. "Tell them again that I am innocent and that I go away more certain than ever that justice will be done."

Maj. Shepard had been the center of a demonstration in the lobby of the Hotel Baltimore. There a crowd thronged about him, shouting encouragement and declarations of belief in his innocence and condemnations of the jury that convicted him.

In a few hours yesterday about $1000 had been subscribed to his defense fund. The contributions poured in so fast the Major and his attorneys disavowed handling it, and turned it over to a committee of citizens. The contributions ranged from $5 to $500. Apparently Kansas City became determined that his appeal should be financed, for the gifts were proffered long before there was any publicity about it.

Lieutenant-Colonel E. H. Burns of the Army Hospital's staff at Denver said Maj. Shepard's associates were steadfast in the belief he was innocent and would raise a fund to assist him in litigation for a new trial or appeal.

RECORD CHRISTMAS MAIL

New York and Chicago Postoffices Set One Day Mark.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Dec. 24.—All time records in Postoffices throughout the country are being shattered in the deluge of first-class Christmas mail matter. If the aggregate equals last year—and indications are it will surpass it—the Christmas mails will have carried 1,670,000,000 letters; 20,000,000 packages and 17,000,000 post cards.

In Manhattan and the Bronx, 15,000,000 pieces of first-class mail were handled through the canceling machines Monday, while an equal amount was handled in Chicago. The previous record for one day in New York was 14,000,000 in 1928, while that of Chicago was 12,000,000 also in 1928.

EMBARGO ON WHEAT SUGGESTED BY LEGGE

Farm Board Chairman Offers Idea to Senate Group—Capper Interested.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 24.—A temporary embargo on wheat has been suggested by Chairman Legge of the Farm Board to the Senate Agriculture Committee.

Legge said this would be "the most effective method" of dealing with importations of Canadian wheat which he feared might result if world prices decline further below domestic levels.

Senator Capper of Kansas, a Republican member of the committee, in making the letter public today, said in the event world prices slumped further and importations resulted he "would be glad to sponsor" legislation to that end. An embargo, in his opinion, could be obtained more quickly than an increase in the tariff on wheat, now 42 cents a bushel.

Before Congress reconvenes Jan. 5, Capper continued, he expects to confer further with Legge regarding the matter. Capper said he thought Legge was on "the right track." "There is a danger there," he added, "that we've got to take into account. We certainly do not want any importation of wheat."

In his letter of yesterday to Capper, Legge pointed out the Liverpool market had closed at 60⅝ as against a closing figure of 76 cents at Chicago.

The spread between Chicago and Winnipeg, he pointed out, is from 26 to 28 cents a bushel. Legge added that millers would pay a premium on the high quality Manitoba wheat and expressed the fear that "any further decrease in the market (Canadian or world) will probably result in wheat being imported from Canada."

"Probably the most effective method of dealing with this," the letter continued, "would be a temporary embargo on wheat imports which would seem justifiable in view of the fact that we will have a burdensome surplus without importing any."

The Senator pointed out that with Congress in recess there would be some time during which a more definite trend in prices would develop.

Since mid-November, when the Grain Stabilization Corporation stepped into the wheat pit determined to prevent any "further unwarranted declines" in domestic price levels, domestic prices have been above world parity.

George S. Milnor, general manager of the corporation, only recently reiterated in Chicago the corporation would maintain domestic old crop prices or at perhaps slightly higher levels.

Chairman McNary of the Senate Agriculture Committee said he had received a letter from Legge also, but had no comment.

FATHER OF MURDERER ALSO KILLED WIFE INQUEST SHOWS

First Tragedy in Eisenbarth Family in 1911; in Second Slayer Also Ended Own Life.

Andrew Eisenbarth, 52 years old, who killed his wife, Mary, 47, at their home, 4221 Gannett avenue, yesterday, and then killed himself, was the son of the late Andrew Alois Eisenbarth, who in 1911 killed his second wife with a hatchet at 3725 Oregon avenue. This fact was developed at the inquest today.

Oliver Eisenbarth, a son, testified that his grandfather killed his second wife. Newspaper accounts of the case state that Andrew Alois Eisenbarth killed his wife a month after their marriage because he decided she had married him for his money. He also seriously injured Mrs. George King, a friend of his wife's. Eisenbarth was acquitted of a charge of murder, and was committed to the City Sanitarium.

Oliver Eisenbarth and his sister, Minerva, 20 years old, expressed the opinion their father suffered a sudden spell of insanity. Miss Eisenbarth, an eyewitness of the tragedy, repeated the account she gave police, stating that her father became angry when the mother refused to stay home from work, seized a razor, and pursued his wife, who sought to escape.

A verdict of homicide and suicide was returned by Deputy Coroner Kerner, who heard the evidence.

ADVISES $40,000 PAYMENT BY INTERNATIONAL LIFE

A payment of $40,000 to Dr. J. H. Davis of Louisville, Ky., from the assets of the International Life Insurance Co. was recommended to Federal Judge Faris in a report filed yesterday by former Supreme Court Judge Conway Elder, special master in receivership.

Dr. Davis, former assistant medical director of the company, based his claim on the purchase of 12,500 shares of preferred stock of the company at $4 a share, in 1925, under a contract which provided that the shares would be redeemed when he left the position. The amount of the claim was reduced by $10,000, which he borrowed from the company in 1928.

MAYOR IN FAVOR OF NEW COMPANY FOR NATURAL GAS

Says He Hopes Some Concern Other Than Laclede Will Seek Franchise for Domestic Sale.

UNCERTAIN TO WHOM TO PROPOSE PLAN

Mayor Miller would like for some company other than the Laclede Gas Light Co. to ask for a franchise to distribute natural gas to the homes of St. Louis, he said, in an interview with a Post-Dispatch reporter yesterday.

The Mayor was asked if he were interested in the possibilities of obtaining natural gas for household consumers and what, if anything, his administration proposed to do toward that end.

"I would like for St. Louis homes to have natural gas," Miller said. "I think it would be a great thing for the city. So far I have not done anything about it. I have been too busy with other problems. I have been hoping some other company with an ample supply of gas would come along and ask for a franchise."

Franchise Not Exclusive.

The Laclede company's franchise is not exclusive and the city has the power to grant other franchises or permits for gas service if it sees fit, or to provide its own gas system if the voters so elect.

Mayor Miller was asked if he had approached any company that might be interested in selling natural gas here or if any company had made a proposal to the city.

"No proposal has been made to the city," he said, "and I don't know whom to approach. The circle is too big."

He referred to holding company methods which sometimes make it difficult to reach and deal with the actual owners or managers of a public utility.

Ownership of Pipe Line.

A pipe line from Louisiana to St. Louis which is now selling natural gas to large industries in this area is owned by the Mississippi River Fuel Corporation, the ownership of which reposes in a series of holding companies, extending ultimately, it is understood, to Standard Oil of New Jersey and Electric Power & Light Corporation.

The pipe line has a capacity of 100,000,000 cubic feet of gas a day, and its maximum sales to industries have been far short of this. The unused capacity is several times the maximum daily consumption of manufactured gas in St. Louis.

Just why this company has not made natural gas available to homes in St. Louis has never been made clear. The local management says it is not authorized to speak on questions of company policy, and inquiries directed by the Post-Dispatch to Christy Payne of New York, president of the company, have not been answered.

Rate to Industries.

The natural gas is sold to industries here at prices varying according to load factors and quantity used, averaging probably around 15 cents a thousand cubic feet. Some large consumers get it as low as 13 cents.

The Post-Dispatch already has told how Laclede and the St. Louis County Gas Co. have the privilege of buying this gas at 40 cents, a rate which executives of those companies say is no less than the comparable cost of producing manufactured gas, and thus of no advantage to them. The pipe line owners have defended this price in a general way on the ground that the domestic load is much more costly to supply than the industrial because of the great fluctuation in demand.

Natural gas has a heat value of about 1000 British thermal units to the cubic foot, as compared with 500 for Laclede's manufactured gas. It is now being produced in vast quantities from deep wells in Oklahoma, Texas, Louisiana, Kansas and California. Some geologists think it may be found in large quantities in several other states, including Missouri and Arkansas.

Line Promised to Chicago.

A pipe line more than 1000 miles long from Texas to Chicago is now under construction, and the Insull interests, controlling the People's Gas Light and Coke Co. are promising natural gas to that city before the end of 1931.

A natural gas pipe line from Texas to Indianapolis will cross the Mississippi River at Louisiana, Mo., not far from St. Louis. It is being built by the Missouri-Kansas Pipe Line Co.

In cities where natural gas is available at comparatively low rates it is used extensively for house heating as well as in industries.

Not far away, in a lovely big house the little Rich Children are gathered for their Christmas eve fun. With shining faces upturned they gaze at their huge Christmas tree. Suddenly it is lighted and they are filled with joy. Then comes the opening of the mysterious packages left under the tree. Books, dolls, toys of every description. The Rich Children fondle them lovingly.

The Spirit of Christmas.

Unexpectedly a wondrous creature appears. It is the spirit of Christmas. She tells them of the little match girl sleeping beneath her blanket of snow. Moved by her story, the little Rich Children decide to give their toys to the poor child.

The spirit of Christmas beckons them to follow and they go to the sleeping little girl and spread their gifts about. Then, with the blessing of the Christmas spirit on them they steal away to their homes.

And now, Santa Claus, with his troop of merry dwarfs, passes by on his rounds of the night. They pause a moment to transfer the toys from the dwarfs' sacks to that of old Santa. Santa, seeing the gifts about the sleeping child, nods his head in approval. He awakens her and tells her that the gifts are for her. Her happiness knows no bounds.

She fingers each toy lovingly and as her tiny hands pass over them they come to life before her astonished eyes: Punch and Judy, fashion dolls, jumping jacks, boy dolls, a toy menagerie and tin soldiers. What a sight they are.

A Glad Christmas Day.

Now the little Rich Children return to take the little match girl home with them. Their kindness overcomes her shyness and the match girl, with all her toys, follows them home for a glad Christmas day.

"He who gives a child a treat Makes joy-bells ring in Heaven's street."
—Masefield.

Another feature of the Christmas Festival is the distribution of pipes and tobacco to the city's homeless men. A committee will take these articles to the Municipal Lodging House and other places tonight.

Contributions acknowledged today bring the fund to $13,873.32. This is a little over half the amount which will be needed to meet the bills. Many thousands of nickels and dimes and quarters will have to come in after Christmas in order to pay the cost of the Festival. Donations of every size are welcome.

The largest list returned was that of the Shell Petroleum Corporation. Eight hundred of its employes gave $446. The second largest list came from the Missouri Pacific Railroad and accounted for $356.

Wage Earners and Fund.

Members of the executive committee are greatly gratified at the way wage earners are sharing in the extension of Christmas hospitality. The Christmas Festival merely provides a channel through which such generosity can flow all the way to those who need it most.

Students of the Missouri Business School, 2743 Cherokee street, and merchants in the vicinity, after giving out baskets to 150 families turned over $5.52, the surplus in their fund to the Christmas Festival. Five dollars were sent in from the Apple Sales Association, the organization assisting unemployed men in selling apples on street corners. Each donation was signed "a friend."

Use of the building at 901-3 Franklin avenue for the basket packing headquarters was donated by the Maria Kaiser estate through the John S. Blake Realty Co. The Laclede Gas Light Co. gave meter and current service at that address. The Fairbanks Morse Co. donated scale service.

Chief of Police Gerk has made arrangements for policemen under Capt. Goodin of the Traffic Division, to be at the Coliseum to handle the crowds of children attending the Festival.

The policemen have been instructed, Chief Gerk said, to permit only the 12,000 holders of tickets to form in the first lines. Other children will be weeded out of the line and will be taken care of after the ticket-holders.

PARTY IN WHITE HOUSE FOR CHILDREN TONIGHT

Dinner, Distribution of Presents and Carol Singing on Hoover's Program.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 24.—The dancing eyes of 12 children, Christmas carols, candle light and bells will feature one of the grandest Christmas eve parties ever planned by the Hoovers, big or little. There will be a huge Christmas tree in the spacious east room of the White House, many presents, music and a big dinner.

In the President's party to his grandchildren and the children of his secretaries and aids the big event has been placed last. Then, if all goes well, the President and Mrs. Hoover, flanked by Peggy Anne Hoover, Herbert III and the other children, bearing candles and bells, will parade upstairs and down through a darkened White House, singing Christmas carols.

Exactly a year ago a similar event had been planned. Just at dessert time, someone stepped quietly to the President's side to tell him the White House was on fire. The children's party ended by their watching the flames.

The Hoovers will begin their celebration even before the party, with Mrs. Hoover attending a mission house party and the President lighting a huge community tree outside the White House grounds. Still another celebration is planned for Christmas night, when the Cabinet members and their children are invited.

Mrs. Hoover has dressed three Christmas dolls in duplicate of costumes worn by her three little grandchildren, and some lucky little girls in Washington will receive them.

The President's wife carried four dolls which she dressed to the thrift shop, conducted for charity. Pinned to the white skirt of one of them was a card designating the names and signed by Mrs. Hoover.

The fourth doll, Carmencita, is quite the gayest of the lot. In dressing her Mrs. Hoover cast aside all her usual conservative tastes in colors. The idea started by Mrs. Hoover of dressing dolls like one's own children or grandchildren was taken up by many capital women. Mrs. Arthur O'Brien sent to the thrift shop an entire wedding party of dolls dressed in materials like those worn by Mrs. O'Brien's daughter and her bridesmaids.

TWO ARRAIGNED FOR PART IN BANK HOLDUP IN INDIANA

Walter Detrich, Former Convict of St. Louis, and William Long, Moberly, Mo., Held on Bond.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

CLINTON, Ind., Dec. 24.—Walter Detrich, former convict, of St. Louis, and William Long of Moberly, Mo., were arraigned yesterday on charges of having robbed the Citizens' Bank here last week when four men were killed. Their bonds were set at $100,000 each and trial scheduled for Jan. 2.

Detrich and Long are the survivors of a band of five that held up the bank. The other three died in a field near Sidell, Ill., two of them ending their lives to avoid capture after one of the posse members had been killed.

Detrich, 26 years old, is wanted in St. Louis for a $9300 payroll holdup at the Procter & Gamble Soap Co., 169 East Grand avenue, March 7, 1929; in Jefferson City for jumping a $25,000 bond, and in Los Angeles for holding up a theater company office. He was sentenced to the penitentiary here in 1923 for highway robbery.

After the soap company holdup, police received information that Detrich and Lawrence McBride were the robbers. McBride was arrested in California and sentenced to the penitentiary there for robbery.

According to dispatches from Denver, Long has been identified by photographs as one of several men who held up a Federal Reserve Bank truck in December, 1922, taking $200,000.

CITY TO CONSIDER CHANGE IN BRIDGE SPECIFICATIONS

Purpose Is to Give St. Louis Mills Better Chance in Bidding on Steel.

Although the city cannot eliminate outside competition with St. Louis steel fabricators in the bidding on the new East St. Louis Union Station rail approach of Municipal Bridge, it will consider changing the specifications to give the local industry a better chance to equal the price of large Eastern mills. A committee of St. Louis steel men will tell the city's engineers the kind of steel they recommend.

This was decided when representatives of St. Louis mills, led by Director Smith of the Industrial Bureau, called on President Kinsey of the Board of Public Service yesterday, hoping to find a way to have the contract kept at home. It was brought out that there would be latitude in the sizes to be required, so that local plants could bid on the sizes they customarily make.

Kinsey told the callers that it was necessary under the law to award the contract to the lowest responsible bidder, regardless of location, though the city would like to favor St. Louis industry. The erection contract will be separate, as it is thought local erectors can compete with others for that work.

Kinsey pointed out that it was held to be illegal to specify that the fabricator buy materials locally. Bids probably will be received about Feb. 1.

MAN REPORTED TO BE DEAD IS FOUND ALIVE BY POLICE

James Gibbs Arrested With Stolen Goods After Attorney Produced Death Certificate.

Through fingerprints, a man thought by the Chicago police to be dead, was found to be alive and a fugitive from Louisville, Ky., Chicago and San Francisco.

He is James Gibbs, 35 years old, who is held in the city jail under a warrant charging grand larceny. Gibbs jumped bond in Chicago and when his bondsman was being pressed for payment, the Chicago police wrote, a lawyer for the bondsman produced in court a death certificate signed by a physician which asserted that Gibbs was dead. Upon this showing the case against the bondsman was abated.

Gibbs was arrested last Wednesday by detectives who saw him carrying three suits of clothes. He said a woman had given them to him to sell, but officers of the Boyd-Richardson Clothing Co. identified them as articles stolen from the store.

Gibbs jumped bonds in Louisville and San Francisco after being arrested there, the Chicago police said.

WHERE MEN RISK LIVES DELIVERING CHRISTMAS MAIL

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 24.—The Postoffice Department each year makes elaborate plans for reaching the most remote sections with Christmas mail by Christmas day. It has listed some of the more hazardous routes over which holiday packages and cards are carried.

The longest was from Kotzebue to Point Barrow, Alaska, 650 miles. The mail was started a month ago in order to make possible its delivery by Christmas. The Alaskan mail man often drives reindeer.

Difficult routes described by the department follow: Newport to Otter Rock, Ore., carrier is obliged to travel along the beach at low tide. If, for some reason, the incoming tide catches him before he completes his trip, he must either abandon his team and the mail and climb the rocks or be dashed to pieces against them.

Ellison Bay to Detroit Harbor, Wis., carrier has to cross Death's Door passage. Its ice bridge is speedily disintegrated by shifting gales and currents. Sometimes this breakup occurrs so suddenly the carrier is caught on the ice with his horse, sleigh and mail. He must then resort to his motor launch, moored inside the edge of heavy ice and cut a way to open water.

Rocky Bar to Atlanta, Idaho, carriers travel on snowshoes, packing 50 pounds of mail with an increased load for Christmas. Not infrequently, carriers on this route have been caught on snowslides and swept to instant death.

MAN AND WIFE FOUND DEAD

NEW YORK, Dec. 24.—A book salesman and his wife, employed at a college, were found dead today in their Bronx apartment. The couple, Joseph and Calara Wymbs, were last seen Saturday. Police believed the pair had been dead two or three days. Mrs. Wymbs, employed at New York University, was 45 years old. Her husband was five years younger.

Wymbs apparently was stricken as he was addressing Christmas cards, for writing materials and a pile of cards were found near his body. An open bottle containing a cathartic indicated the two had swallowed poison by mistake and then tried to relieve their pain.

CONGRESSMAN WEDS FORMER WAITRESS

Charles B. Timberlake, 75, and Bride, 32, to Spend Honeymoon in Florida.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 24.—Congressman Charles B. Timberlake of Colorado and Mrs. Roberta Wood Elliott, a widowed former waitress, were married last night at a simple ceremony.

The Rev. Dr. James Shera Montgomery, the House chaplain, had to wait for them while the 32-year-old bride talked to wise-cracking news photographers, but she remarked it did not matter.

"We want to be late," the bride explained. "We wouldn't be fashionable if we weren't." The bridegroom is 75 years old.

The wedding gown was white crepe, sleeveless, studded with sequins. Her wedding gift was a long rope of pearls, and she wore a diamond-studded wrist watch over white gloves.

The bride was asked for details of the romance.

"Oh, you mean how long has this been going on?" she returned. "About four months."

The bridal party included Mrs. Louise Hill, sister of Mrs. Elliott; Glenn O. Hiatt, the Representative's secretary, and many women who had worked with Mrs. Eliott at the Census Bureau where she had been employed recently.

The honeymoon trail led to North Carolina, the bride's home, for a visit with her parents, before a cruise in Southern waters during the holidays. They will return about Jan. 6. Her 9-year-old daughter will live with them, later, at an exclusive hotel.

Timberlake is wealthy.

MRS. J. R. CURLEE DIES AT 65

Mrs. J. R. Curlee, wife of the former vice president of Carleton Dry Goods Co., died of pneumonia following a long illness last night at St. Luke's Hospital.

The funeral will be held at 2 p. m. Friday at the residence, 300 South Sappington road, Kirkwood, with interment in Oak Hill Cemetery. Mrs. Curlee, who was 65 years old, is survived by her husband, a son, two daughters, three brothers and a sister.

Torchin-Volin Loan Co. Receiver.

Joseph Bain, secretary of the Torchin-Volin Loan Co., was appointed receiver for the company yesterday by Circuit Judge Pearcy. The appointment was by consent and was made on petition of a stockholder, I. Gellman, who declared the business has been operating at a loss.

T. F. PIERCE'S WILL IGNORES HIS WIDOW

By the Associated Press.

NE WYORK, Dec. 24.—Ignoring his widow, Theron F. Pierce of New York, who died in Reno, Nev., Nov. 14, left his estate of about $300,000 to Ruth M. Gates of New York. His will was filed for Probate today.

Pierce was one of two sons of the late Henry Clay Pierce of St. Louis, of the Waters-Pierce Oil Co. His widow is the former Louise Falconer of Tuxedo, N. Y., a sister of Lady Torphichen of Scotland.

The will said Pierce's address for the last two years before his death had been Pride's Crossing, Mass., and his wife's address Tuxedo, N. Y. The former Miss Falconer was Pierce's second wife. He was married to her in 1920 after the death of his first wife, the former May Deering of New York. Pierce was the last of four children of Henry Clay Pierce and shared in a million-dollar estate.

KILLS SELF IN HOTEL ROOM

A man who registered as "J. Miller, City," shot and killed himself in a room at the American Hotel last night. The body, with a wound in the head and a pistol in one hand, was found by a hotel employe at 9 o'clock.

The man registered at the hotel on Monday, paying in advance for a room. He was about 65 years old, 5 feet 7 inches tall, weighing 140 pounds and was bald. His suit bore a Chicago tailor's mark and the name, "T. Newbauer." The body is at the morgue.

POLICEMAN KILLED IN HOLDUP

NEW ORLEANS, Dec. 24.—Policeman Ernest Grillot was shot and fatally wounded here today as he frustrated an attempt by two men to hold up the Rochblave branch of the Canal Bank & Trust Co. One of the robbers was knocked down by a customer in the bank and held until police arrived. The other robber escaped.

Previously four men held up the Dryades street branch of the Hibernia Bank and escaped with $3500.

Gets Husband Out for Christmas.

CHICAGO, Dec. 24.—Daniel S. Beebe, jailed because he was $24,800 behind in his alimony payments, will spend Christmas at home through the efforts of his second wife. The present Mrs. Beebe appeared before Superior Judge John J. Sullivan today with $200 for the first wife.

J. FRANK MAYS OF GRAND NATIONAL DIES

Frank Mays, custodian of the Grand National Bank safe deposit vault, and brother of Ed Mays, president of the bank, died suddenly in a restaurant at 317 North Grand boulevard, at noon today. He was 53 years old and apparently was in good health a few moments before death.

Witnesses said he had been eating and jumped up from the table, apparently choking, rushed to the door and collapsed on the sidewalk. Nearby physicians were summoned and an inhalator was used in a vain effort to revive him. Cause of death will not be determined until tomorrow, when an autopsy will be performed.

Mr. Mays, who had been employed at the bank for several years, was made custodian of the safe deposit vault last summer when the depository moved into its new quarters, shortly after the vault in the old bank had been robbed of currency, jewelry and securities with an aggregate valuation of approximately $1,000,000. The previous custodian, William A. Brittin, was discharged.

He is survived by his widow, two daughters, Mrs. Shula Martin and Miss Lavada Mays, and three sons, Armond, a teller at the bank, and Arlie and William, who work in the bank's investment department. With his family he attended a Christmas party last night given for employes of the bank and the Continental Life Insurance Co., of which Ed Mays also is president.

Funeral arrangements have not been completed, but the funeral, relatives expect, will be held in Mr. Mays' former home, Gilbert, Ark.

RECEIVERS ARE APPOINTED FOR W. H. LAMPE SHOE CO.

Holland R. Polak and John W. Barker were appointed co-receivers of the W. H. Lampe Shoe Co., 4060 Forest Park avenue, by Circuit Judge Pearcy today after William H. Lampe, president, admitted the allegations in a suit for a receiver filed yesterday by George P. Bomar, a stockholder.

Bomar alleged that the company is insolvent and that a deficit of $88,640 had accumulated since the last audit, according to a tentative balance sheet. He said there are 800 shares of preferred stock outstanding and 1681 shares of common, all of a par value of $100. He holds 30 shares of common stock.

WETS URGE GENERAL STATE REDISTRICTING

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 24.—Wets in Congress are seeking Congressional redistricting of every state affected by the new apportionment, in the belief that elections of additional members from at large would cheat them of reinforcements.

Congressman Cochran, Democrat, St. Louis, said today he would use the House as a forum to amplify a plea he is preparing to make shortly after Congress reassembles. The redistricting must be done by each state.

"I mean to put the country on notice," Cochran said, "that the new representation will be unfair to the populous centers if the delegations are elected at large."

In each of 22 states which lose representation under the new census, effective with the Seventy-third Congress, the entire delegation will have to be elected at large unless redistricting is completed in time, likewise in 11 states gaining representation.

Face Loss in Rural Areas.

The wets hold that their expected gains in rapidly growing cities would be reduced by dry tendencies of rural sections which have not gained population.

Cochran said 59 per cent of the population of the country is urban, but 268 of the 435 Congressmen now come from rural sections—districts in which a majority of the votes are in communities of less than 3000.

It is unlikely Congress will act at this session on any aspect of the reapportionment question. A resolution by Congressman Hoch (Rep.) of Kansas, pending before a committee, would alter the Census Bureau's plan of reapportionment, but is not expected to succeed. Unless action is taken by March 4, the census reapportionment becomes effective.

Congresman Sproul, militant dry leader of Kansas, said he had no doubt that redistricting will be carried out by the states immediately after March 4.

Says Drys Were Asleep.

"The drys were asleep," Sproul added, "when they passed the reapportionment bill. They voted for it when they should have opposed it. An amendment could have been effected to provide enumeration on the basis of citizenship."

Cochran said Missouri would lose three of its 16 Congressmen under the new apportionment; but that if the remainder were fairly redistricted, "the wet, urban population would get six, and the dry rural inhabitants seven."

"Yet, if our present delegation voted on prohibitoin tomorrow," he added, the division would be four against, 12 for."

Because many states have failed to redistrict for years, some Congressmen actually speak for as many as 1,600,000 voters, while others fall far short of the calculated 288,000 constituents.

Robert Brand Accused of Manslaughter in Death of Daniel O. Chapin.

Robert Brand, 20 years old, of Cuba, Mo., was indicted by the St. Louis grand jury yesterday on a charge of manslaughter and leaving the scene of an accident. He drove an automobile which killed Daniel O. Chapin, a carpenter, on Dec. 5.

Tracing the license number of the machine, police learned that Brand had borrowed the car from Miss Truella Johnson of Sherman, Mo., who was visiting friends in St. Louis. Miss Johnson quoted Brand as saying he "thought he hit someone" when he returned the car. Brand was arrested at his parents' home in Cuba.

LINDELL BUILDING LINE PROPOSAL IS OPPOSED

Property owners on Lindell boulevard, numbering about 50, who attended a meeting of the Lindell Boulevard Property Owners' Association last night at 4035 Lindell, expressed themselves generally as opposing the present plan for establishment of a building line on Lindell. The city has condemnation commissioners working on a scheme to maintain the line either 25 or 30 feet back of the property line, between Grand boulevard and Kingshighway.

Only four buildings encroach on the proposed line—two apartment houses and two automobile establishments. Associate City Counselor McKittrick, who attended the meeting, said elimination of the apartments from the plan was under consideration and would save much of the present estimate of $500,000 to $600,000 damages.

Lewis H. Phillips, a lawyer, 4014 Lindell, president of the association, said with this change "the building line idea would be satisfactory, but that the city as a whole should pay the damages rather than assessing them against benefited property in the vicinity of Lindell, where various other benefit levies have made inroads on taxpayers. The association will send representatives to confer with the condemnation commissioners. Elimination of the apartments would require passage of a new ordinance by the Board of Aldermen.

Phillips announced that a petition from property owners in the double block of Lindell, between Vandeventer avenue and Sarah street, would be filed with the Board of Aldermen soon, requesting establishment of a new sort of semicommercial zone for that section. "First-class" businesses and offices would be permitted in this zone. Only residences, apartments and institutions may locate there now. The automobile establishments involved in the building line dispute are in this block.

SAYS PENNEY REFUSED TO AID CLOSED BANK

Head of Miami Depository 'Understands' Merchant 'Stood Squarely Behind It.'

By the Associated Press.

MIAMI, Fla., Dec. 24.—State's Attorney N. Vernon Hawthorne issued a written statement last night in which he said Hugh R. Gordon Jr., president of the closed City National Bank, told him he (Gordon) had understood J. C. Penney and the Penney-Gwinn interests were "squarely behind the bank."

On last Saturday, however, when the bank called for aid Penney and J. W. Gwinn advised him, Hawthorne quoted Gordon as saying, they would not furnish further funds.

Gordon was questioned privately by Hawthorne. At the conclusion, the State's Attorney said Gordon answered all questions put to him in what he described as an attempt to see if Penney could be held liable to depositors for published statements that he and associates were "squarely behind the bank." It was said that on previous occasions the Penney-Gwinn interests had supplied funds in an emergency.

DIRECTOR APPOINTED TO CO-ORDINATE RELIEF

Scott R. Dekins, Chamber of Commerce Secretary, Named by Citizens' Committee.

Scott R. de Kins, secretary of the Chamber of Commerce, has been appointed director of the Citizens' Committee on Public Relief and given authority to act for the chairman, Birch O. Mahaffey, in deliberations of the advisory board and Executive Committee.

De Kins said he would call a meeting of the advisory board next week and ask the chairmen of each of the committee's six divisions to present a cimplete written outline of their plans at that time, so that the entire program of the committee could be made public. The personnel of the committee and each of its divisions should be complete when the meeting is called, he said.

Mahaffey said De Kins' chief duty at present would be to coordinate the work of the committee's six divisions so that their functions would not overlap. Chairmen of the divisions, he said, have felt the need of a central authority through which they can organize their clans. Divisions of the committee are known as Industrial, Public Works, Finance, Emergency Relief, Liaison, and Publicity.

"It is particularly necessary that the director affect this co-ordination at once," Mahaffey said, "not only to produce the results the public expects from the committee, but also to lay the foundation for a proposed financial campaign which doubtless will be started early in January."

The Citizens' Committee has received an appropriation of $300,000 from municipal funds, but its leaders think additional money will be needed. It is planned to seek this through voluntary contributions.

De Kins said he thought that directors of the various divisions, with perhaps one or two exceptions, should function through the administrative headquarters of the committee, on the sixth floor of the Chamber of Commerce Building. "Those responsible for carrying through the policies of the committee," he said, "should work side by side at headquarters until the task has been completed, if thorough co-operation and co-ordination of programs is to be accomplished."

Miss Merriman's secretary and a maid were in another room of the apartment when they heard a pistol shot. They found their mistress on the living-room floor. A small revolver lay a few feet away. The woman, with a bullet wound in her neck, died before a doctor came.

Detectives questioned a sister, Mrs. A. Beaver, who said Miss Merriman recently had returned from Italy. The sister added, detectives said, that the artist had suffered for two years from a nervous ailment and had been under a physician's care.

RULES BEING DRAWN FOR USE OF BRANDY INDUSTRIALLY

Regulations Must Be Approved by Mellon, Mitchell, Woodcock and Doran.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 24.—The California grape interests, the beneficiary of a large Government loan, were in line for further Federal aid today in the form of regulations designed to place high-proof fruit spirits, or brandy, on the industrial market.

Dr. James M. Doran, Commissioner of Industrial Alcohol, said these regulations had "been going through the mill" for several weeks. If finally approved they must bear his signature as well as those of Secretary of the Treasury Mellon, Attorney-General Mitchell and Prohibition Director Woodcock.

Under the plan, Doran said, it might be possible to run off some of the grape surplus as high-proof brandy and to use still more for the fortification of wine. It would, however, be for non-beverage purposes, and would be issued to the holders of alcohol permits as a substitute.

There is some question as to how commercially profitable such a plan would be, the commissioner said, as the brandy would come into direct competition with industrial alcohol. He said a clause in the Hawley-Smoot tariff authorized the usage.

MRS. PANTAGES FREED FROM HER PROBATION

Conviction of Manslaughter in Auto Killing Set Aside by Court.

By the Associated Press.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Dec. 24.—Mrs. Lois Pantages, wife of Alexander Pantages, wealthy vaudeville theater owner, has been released from the 10-year probation imposed after her conviction 18 months ago of manslaughter in the killing of Joe Rokomoto, Japanese gardener, in an automobile collision.

After approving recommendations in the pre-Christmas report of the County Probation Board for the release from supervision of 149 others convicted of felonies, Superior Judge Hardy took up the case of Mrs. Pantages, for whom the board had made no recommendation.

Judge Hardy revoked Mrs. Pantages' probation, entered a plea of not guilty for her and dismissed the case. District Attorney Buron Fitts asserted Judge Hardy's action was a "travesty on justice." He said the reasons advanced by Mrs. Pantages were so "weak they were sickening."

Within two months of Mrs. Pantages' conviction, her husband was found guilty of assault. He is at liberty under bond awaiting final disposal of appeal. Mrs. Pantages said in her letter that because of her husband's conviction and her inability to leave Los Angeles because of the terms of her probation, she had not been able to regain her health, impaired by injuries suffered in the acident in which Rokomoto was killed.

She also asked that she be released in order that her children and Miss Beryl Sweeney, the bride-to-be of her eldest son, Rodney, might move in society without embarrassment.

Mrs. Pantages said she had paid $78,500 to the family of the Japanese gardener as she had been directed by Judge Hardy and felt she had paid her debt "to society in full."

Pantages, speaking for his wife, said that now she would no longer be forced to remain within the State, she would accompany Rodney and his bride on their honeymoon to Europe and the Orient.

PARDONS U. S. DRY AGENT WHO KILLED MAN IN RAID

Kentucky Governor Sets Aside Manslaughter Sentence Imposed in Federal Court.

By the Associated Press.

FRANKFORT, Ky., Oct. 24.—Roy V. Miller, first Federal prohibition agent ever convicted of manslaughter in a liquor raid, was pardoned by Gov. Sampson today.

The charge grew out of a raid led by Miller in Christian County five years ago. Frank Sears was shot to death when he ran from a tent the raiders had started to search. No liquor was found save for a small quantity in Sears' pocket. Miller was indicted in State Court but his case was transferred to Federal Court and he had been out on bond. The United States Circuit Court of Appeals upheld his sentence of two years in the State penitentiary last summer and Miller then appealed to the Governor. The Federal courts held that as the case originated in State courts the Governor had power to act.

Gov. Sampson commuted to 20 years the death sentence imposed on Bluford Abbott for an attack on Ruby Taylor, a young school teacher. Four other death sentences were commuted to life imprisonment.

Of these only Magistrate Silbermann has been called on to defend himself against accusations that a ring of police, lawyers and bondsmen preyed on women who were convicted of immorality in their court. The others were named indirectly in the testimony of "Chile" Mapocha Acuna, former police stool pigeon, and John C. Weston, former acting Prosecutor.

Mayor Walker conferred with a group of civic leaders yesterday regarding the vice graft charges. Although the results of the meeting were kept secret, it is understood the Mayor appealed for co-operation in guarding against a breakdown in the morale of the police.

NEW BEDFORD, Mass., Dec. 24.—Three of the four children of Mr. and Mrs. James Solomon perished in flames that destroyed their home today while their parents were absent to obtain a Christmas basket from a relief organization.

Neighbors, startled by billows of smoke issuing from the house, sounded an alarm. Firemen ran into the building and emerged with the three bodies. The dead children were Justina, 5 years old; Mary, 18 months, and Mildred, 4 months. A fourth child, Louise, 3, was rescued.

NEW SALARIES PLANNED FOR COUNTY'S OFFICERS

Legislation to Be Sought to Settle Question as Result of 211,000 Population.

A series of bills fixing the compensation of four or more elective officers in St. Louis County and regulating the number and pay of clerks will be introduced at the next session of the Legislature in January, in an effort to remove the question which arose as a result of the census showing a population of 211,000.

Existing sections of the statutes under which St. Louis County has been regulated restrict their application to counties of less than 150,000. Since that population now is exceeded, St. Louis County is placed in the class with Jackson County, which includes Kansas City, and for which salary schedules were drawn in legislation passed in 1895, relating to counties of from 170,000 to 500,000 population.

If the 1895 act were found to be applicable to St. Louis County, Collector Willis W. Benson and Assessor George M. Herpel would receive salaries of $3000 instead of being permitted to retain fees up to $10,000 a year. Prosecuting Attorney Castlen would be paid $5000 a year instead of $6000, and Recorder Arthur W. Schmid would receive $3000 instead of $4000. The number of employes in these offices and their pay, likewise, would be decreased.

County Counselor Robert F. Stanton, who has said that there is some doubt also about other offices, returned from Jefferson City yesterday after a conference there with Assistant Attorney-General Albert Miller, who was asked for an opinion of what officers should be paid now. They have continued to draw their old salaries. Miller, Stanton said, did not commit himself on the situation. Stanton was accompanied by Associate Prosecuting Attorney Charles N. Noble.

JUDGE HALL CUTS MARKET WIDENING BENEFITS $150,000

HEARINGS BEGAN IN OCTOBER, 1929

Assessment Against American Hotel and Theater and Grand Opera House Reduced $27,000.

Circuit Judge Hall today rendered his decision in the Market street widening case, the result of more than a year's work. He began hearing exceptions of property owners Oct. 8, 1929.

About 900 exceptions were filed by property owners who objected to the benefit assessments against their holdings, as being too high. Of these exceptions, about 650 came to a hearing before Judge Hall, the other 250 being dismissed by the property owners voluntarily.

In about 400 of the cases heard, Judge Hall made some reduction in the benefit judgments. He estimates that the total of the benefit assessments was reduced by $150,000.

Damage Claims Overruled.

Property owners to whom damages were awarded for land taken from them, with offsets for the benefit to their remaining holdings, filed exceptions in 178 cases, holding that the balance in their favor should have been larger. All but eight of these exceptions were overruled by Judge Hall. Many of the others were dismissed by the property owners, some after compromise with the city.

In the eight cases where exceptions to damage awards were sustained, new awards must be made by a commission, which will be appointed by Judge Hall. In the cases where Judge Hall overruled exceptions to benefit judgments and damage awards, the property owners have four days in which to file applications for a new hearing. After passing on any such applications, Judge Hall will name the new commission.

One of the larger reductions made in the assessments against benefited property was in the case of the American Hotel and Theater, American Annex and Grand Opera House, which are owned by the Cella Estae. The total benefits assessed against these properties, which were $83,055, were reduced by Judge Hall to $56,251.

Aloe Plaza Ruling.

Judge Hall disposed of the last remaining dispute in the Aloe Plaza portion of the Market street improvement, adjoining Union Station. The award of $68,687 damages to Harvey and Lillie McCallister, owner of a property used for restaurant purposes, was not contested as to its amount, but the Court was required to decide whether any part of the award should go to the Thompson restaurant, for its lease. Judge Hall decided that the restaurant company was entitled to $15,000, which will come out of the award.

He equalized the benefits and damages in the case of the St. Louis Stars (Negro) Baseball and Amusement Co. The commissioners had made the damages payable to the company, for its property at Market street and Cardinal avenue, $10,662, and the benefits payable by the company $11,800, leaving a balance of $1138 in the city's favor.

The widening of Market street from 60 to 100 feet extends from Seventh street to Vandeventer avenue. From Seventh and Market, a diagonal cutoff is to be made to Sixth and Walnut streets, and Walnut is to be widened from Sixth to Third street, which will be the eastern terminus of this improvement.

The damage awards to property owners, as originally made by the commission, reached a total of $6,128,972. The total benefits assessed against property owners in the benefited district were $4,400,474, leaving a balance of $1,728,497 to be paid by the city from bond issue funds. The reducing of benefits and increase of damages, in some cases, will add to the balance which the city must pay.

Boundaries of District.

Boundaries of the benefit area, which was assessed for the major part of the cost, are: East, the Mississippi River; west, Kingshighway; south, Missouri Pacific tracks;, Tower Grove and Shaw avenues; north, St. Charles street west to Twelfth boulevard, thence west, Pine street and West Pine boulevard.

The Lindell "bottle-neck" widening case is also in Judge Hall's court, and he is to hear the exceptions in the Morgan street widening case, in which the commissioners have just filed their report. Judge Bader is expected to render a decision soon in the Memorial Plaza condemnation cases.

Circuit Judge Hall today rendered his decision in the Market street widening case, the result of more than a year's work. He began hearing exceptions of property owners Oct. 8, 1929.

About 900 exceptions were filed by property owners who objected to the benefit assessments against their holdings, as being too high. Of these exceptions, about 650 came to a hearing before Judge Hall, the other 250 being dismissed by the property owners voluntarily.

In about 400 of the cases heard, Judge Hall made some reduction in the benefit judgments. He estimates that the total of the benefit assessments was reduced by $150,000.

Damage Claims Overruled.

Property owners to whom damages were awarded for land taken from them, with offsets for the benefit to their remaining holdings, filed exceptions in 178 cases, holding that the balance in their favor should have been larger. All but eight of these exceptions were overruled by Judge Hall. Many of the others were dismissed by the property owners, some after compromise with the city.

In the eight cases where exceptions to damage awards were sustained, new awards must be made by a commission, which will be appointed by Judge Hall. In the cases where Judge Hall overruled exceptions to benefit judgments and damage awards, the property owners have four days in which to file applications for a new hearing. After passing on any such applications, Judge Hall will name the new commission.

One of the larger reductions made in the assessments against benefited property was in the case of the American Hotel and Theater, American Annex and Grand Opera House, which are owned by the Cella Estae. The total benefits assessed against these properties, which were $83,055, were reduced by Judge Hall to $56,251.

Aloe Plaza Ruling.

Judge Hall disposed of the last remaining dispute in the Aloe Plaza portion of the Market street improvement, adjoining Union Station. The award of $68,687 damages to Harvey and Lillie McCallister, owner of a property used for restaurant purposes, was not contested as to its amount, but the Court was required to decide whether any part of the award should go to the Thompson restaurant, for its lease. Judge Hall decided that the restaurant company was entitled to $15,000, which will come out of the award.

He equalized the benefits and damages in the case of the St. Louis Stars (Negro) Baseball and Amusement Co. The commissioners had made the damages payable to the company, for its property at Market street and Cardinal avenue, $10,662, and the benefits payable by the company $11,800, leaving a balance of $1138 in the city's favor.

The widening of Market street from 60 to 100 feet extends from Seventh street to Vandeventer avenue. From Seventh and Market, a diagonal cutoff is to be made to Sixth and Walnut streets, and Walnut is to be widened from Sixth to Third street, which will be the eastern terminus of this improvement.

Tells of Recovering Bones Of Slain Czar and Family

(Copyright, 1930, by the Associated Press.)

PARIS, Dec. 24.—In a letter written in his own hand Gen. Maurice Janin today gave a complete story of how the remains and relics of the Imperial Russian family came into his possession, how those entrusted with them were shadowed by Russian revolutionists, and how eventually they were carried safely out of the country.

From his chateau at Serre Izard, near Mens, in the Department of Isere, the aging General, who was Commander-in-Chief of the Czech and Allied Forces in Siberia during the World War, gave part of the story which is told more fully in his forthcoming book.

"The Imperial Russian family," he wrote, "had disappeared at Ekaterinburg on the night of July 16 or 17, 1918. On July 25 anti-bolshevik forces, grouped around the Czech troops, occupied that town.

"Pierre Gillard, former tutor of the young Czarevitch, was there, and with several others he began a search of the vicinity to determine the fate of the Romanoffs. An examining magistrate named Serguief, who was replaced several months afterward by Nicholas Sokoloff, was designated to carry the investigation through.

"Little by little it was established who had committed the assassinations and how they had done it. Not far from Ekaterinburg the searchers discovered the place where the bodies had been dismembered and burned with the aid of sulphuric ac[illegible]. and gasoline.

"In a mine pit they found bits of charred clothing, fragments of bone and a ring finger which was later partly identified as that of the Empress.

"During the Kolchak government Sokoloff continued his investigation despite the hostile attitude of certain Ministers. He was assisted by Gen. Diedrichs until the General became Commander in Chief. I too, often furnished assistance.

"In the autumn of 1919, when the collapse of the Government at Omsk became imminent, Sokoloff and I moved toward the East, taking with us everything that he had discovered. He told me that he wanted to reach Europe, and he traveled in a train protected by allied troops. The next time I saw him was in March, 1920, at Harbin, where Gen. Diedrichs, after resigning as Commander in Chief, had established headquarters in the general retreat.

"There was much uneasiness in the region and Diedrichs told me he wanted to get the Romanoff remains into the possession of the Grand Duke Nicholas as quickly as possible. He had asked British representatives to take charge of this material, but they were refused when they asked authority from their Government."

It was then, Janin wrote, that Gen. Diedrichs asked him to take charge of the relics and he accepted out of his own friendship for the Czar.

"Diedrichs," the statement continues, "brought me three valises containing documents and various other objects in the night. It was dark and he said it had seemed to him and to those who accompanied him that they had been discovered and followed. The next day he brought me a fourth valise, or to speak more exactly a strong box containing human remains."

The General said his inventory showed the valises to contain 311 articles. He brought them from Shanghai by steamship and reached Paris in June, 1920. He retained the articles at his estate until October, 1920, when he turned them over to a representative of the Grand Duke Nicholas.

"I have no knowledge whatsoever of what has become of those relics," the General wrote.

FRANCO-ITALIAN NAVAL PACT COMES TO END NEXT MONTH

Renewal Unlikely Unless Rome Compromises Demand for Parity.

Copyright, 1930, by the Press and Pulitzer Publishing Cos. (New York World and Post-Dispatch.)

PARIS, Dec. 24.—The short naval holiday between France and Italy, which expires next month, will not be renewed on the same basis by France unless there is some immediate hope of settlement of the deadlock created by Italy's demand for naval parity with this country.

If this hope is not realized, it is understood, France will give up the effort to come to terms with Italy, and will pursue actively a tonnage agreement with England by which France will agree not to build more than half the British tonnage, but, taking advantage of the safety clause in the London naval treaty, will agree to this only so long as she regards herself as not menaced. If France takes this course she will be able to sign the section of the agreement specifically limiting fleets, and Italy will be isolated among the five Powers which met at London.

This solution of the deadlock which arose at London when Italy insisted on parity with France has in fact been under discussion for a long time and has its weight in all naval calculations here and in Rome. It was discussed in Rome when Hugh M. Gibson, United States Ambassador to Belgium, was there this fall, and was discussed again when Robert Leslie Craigie, chief of the American department of the British Foreign Office, visited Rome recently and conferred with Dino Grandi, Italian Foreign Minister. Craigie has just passed through Paris, where he had conversations with Rene Massigli, chief French expert at the London naval conference and at recent naval discussions at Geneva.

SEVERAL KILLED IN BURMA IN TAX-RESISTING RIOTS

Disturbers Reported to Have Attacked Several Villages in Conflict With Police.

By the Associated Press.

RANGOON, Burma, Dec. 24.—Several persons have been killed and many wounded in the Tharawaddy and Insein districts of Upper Burma by rioters who attacked several villages in the course of a tax-resisting campaign, according to reports received here today.

Four native officials were killed in the villages, in one of which the rioters were reported to be still fighting with police this morning.

The outbreak thus far appears to be confined to the two districts. Officials here have sent heavy reinforcements to the affected regions.

FRENCH COURT DECIDES FOR FATHER OF AMERICAN BOY

Christian Gross, U. S. Diplomatic Officer, to Have Custody of Child Part Time.

By the Associated Press.

GRENOBLE, France, Dec. 24.—The Grenoble tribunal yesterday decided the custody of Peter Gross, 7-year-old son of an American diplomatic officer, by ruling that the mother should permit the boy's father to keep him part of the time.

In a separation by mutual consent, in 1928, of the father, Christian Gross, and Mrs. Virginia Harrison Gross, the custody of Peter was given to Mrs. Gross and the custody of a daughter, Barbara, to Mr. Gross. They agreed further that each parent might have the custody of the other child for limited periods under certain conditions.

Gross, a diplomatic officer in the service of the United States, brought the action decided yesterday charging that Mrs. Gross had refused to permit Peter to visit him. The tribunal ruled that the father should have his son with him eight days in January, 15 days at Easter and the entire month of August. Counsel for Mrs. Gross contended that the Grenoble court was not competent to hear the case, but the court ruled that it was.

Mrs. Gross, who now lives at the Chateau de Rivoiranche, 25 miles from Grenoble, is the daughter of Francis B. Harrison, former American Governor-General in the Philippines.

CAROL ASKS EVERYBODY BUT HELEN TO HIS PARTY

Plans for Christmas Visit of King Alexander of Jugo-Slavia Also Abandoned.

By the Associated Press.

BUDAPEST, Rumania, Dec. 24.—Pictures of general discord in the Rumanian royal household are drawn in dispatches reaching here from Bucharest. King Alexander of Jugo-Slavia, a brother-in-law of Queen Helen, was to visit King Carol this week, but it is understood that Dowager Queen Marie wired him not to come, fearing that Carol's nerves would not stand any further rubbing on the subject of his estrangement from Queen Helen.

One report here is that Carol asked Helen, who has refused to become reconciled with him, to leave the country, but that she demurred since Michael, her son, would remain in Rumania and she felt it her right to be with him. Carol granted her plea, only to plan a Christmas party at Sinaia Palace, to which nearly everybody of importance in Rumania, including Michael, has been asked, except Helen.

Queen Sophie of Greece asked for permission to visit Queen Helen, but it has been refused, it is said here. Her brother, the former King George of Greece, will spend Christmas day with her, however.

RAIL EXECUTIVES FAIL TO AGREE ON MERGER PLANS

Heads of Four Systems Confer in New York and Announce "Further Meetings Will Be Held."

LEHIGH VALLEY CONTROL DISCUSSED

Disposition of Wheeling & Lake Erie in Dispute — New York Central to Get Lackawanna.

By Leased Wire from the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Dec. 24.—Failure to reach a final conclusion was reported yesterday by the executives of four Eastern railroad systems who held a conference in Pennsylvania Station to discuss consolidation.

Those attending the conference were Patrick Crowley and A. H. Harris of the New York Central, W. W. Atterbury and Elisha Lee of the Pennsylvania, O. P. and M. J. Van Sweringen of the Nickel Plate, Daniel Willard and George M. Shriver of the Baltimore & Ohio and J. J. Bernet of the Chesapeake & Ohio, which is controlled by the Nickel Plate interests. They issued the following statement:

"The conference adjourned without reaching any final conclusion. Further meetings will be held."

Among the matters discussed, it is understood, was a proposal of the Pennsylvania to sell control of the Lehigh Valley to the Chesapeake & Ohio for cash and trackage rights over the Nickel Plate along Lake Erie. The Nickel Plate and Chesapeake & Ohio are part of the Van Sweringen system. Another plan under consideration is the proposition of the New York Central to acquire full control of the Delaware, Lackawanna & Western and to sell its minority interest in the Reading to the Baltimore & Ohio.

Four Great Systems.

The general plan is the consolidation of all Eastern railroads into four great systems, as suggested by the Interstate Commerce Commission. As the heads of four large systems were at yesterday's meeting, financial circles buzzed with rumors that a final agreement was near. The announcement of failure to reach any conclusion was a disappointment.

No secret has been made of the general line-up which is expected to result from the consolidations. The New York Central's principal acquisition will be the Lackawanna. By acquiring the Lehigh Valley, the Van Sweringen interests, which control both the Nickel Plate and the Chesapeake & Ohio, will tap the rich anthracite fields of Pennsylvania. The Baltimore & Ohio, by acquiring the Reading and through that the Central of New Jersey, will also get into the coal fields and will be able to run into New York over its own tracks.

Gains for Pennsylvania.

The Pennsylvania, under this general plan, gives up some of its rights along seaboard, but is expected to gain in the lake, Ohio and West Virginia regions.

Disposition of such lines as the Pittsburgh & West Virginia, the Wheeling & Lake Erie and the Western Maryland are said to be in dispute, with the Pennsylvania offering the strongest claims, although the Van Sweringen interests are said to be seeking control.

REVOLT THWARTED IN SMYRNA; 5 PERSONS SLAIN IN FIGHTING

Turkish Plotters Behead Youth Who Tries to Tell Police of Their Activities.

By the Associated Press.

ISTANBUL, Turkey, Dec. 24.—An attempt of six Turkish fanatics to stir up a revolution in the Village of Menemen, near Smyrna, yesterday failed.

The rebels beheaded a youth who attempted to inform police of their activities and in subsequent fighting two gendarmes were killed and four civilians wounded. Three rebels were killed and one was captured. The leader escaped.

Rebels came from the mountains and attempted to incite the population to overthrow the Kemalist regime and restore the Caliphate. Wearing the taboo dervish turbans, armed with rifles and carrying a flag bearing a Koranic inscription, "This emblem conquers all," the rebels harangued the crowd on the evils of the hat and the new alphabet.

Some of the population joined them but a young school teacher protested and went to call police. He was promptly beheaded. When the gendarmes arrived the rebels opened fire. The Government has called out the militia throughout Smyrna Province, arresting many suspected of subversion.

EELS FOR CHRISTMAS IN NAPLES

800 Tons Arrive for the Customary Feast.

By the Associated Press.

NAPLES, Italy, Dec. 24.—Eight hundred tons of eels arrived here today from Bastia, Corsica, for the Neapolitans' customary Christmas eve dinner. Ten special fish-carrying vessels in which water flows in and out through minute holes, keeping the eels alive, brought the food. The eels are fished up from the schooners in special basket nets.

The Neapolitan custom of eating eels on Christmas eve began hundreds of years ago. The Duke of Accadia, a Neapolitan nobleman four centuries ago, had enormous ponds built beneath his palace filled with water from the Bolla aqueduct in order to raise his own eels. A narrow street nearby running to the Duke of Accadia's palace still bears the name of Vico Fontana dei Serpi (Snake Fountain street).

CANADIAN SUPREME COURT UPHOLDS RULING IN STRIKES

By the Associated Press.

OTTAWA, Dec. 23.—Decision of the Quebec courts that labor uions can not be held liable for damages resulting from strikes was upheld yesterday by the Supreme Court of Canada.

The decision was on an appeal by Society Brand Clothes against a verdict returned in the case of the Amalgamated Workers of Amerca. Suit had been brought in the Quebec courts by Society Brand Clothes, Samuel Harry and Co. ltd., and the International Tailoring Co. all of Montreal, to recover damages suffered in a strike called by the union. The Quebec courts found that, while the plaintiffs had suffered damage, judgment could not be given because the union was not a corporate body.

INDIANS MUTINY ON FORD'S RUBBER LAND; PLANE SENT

THREE CHILDREN ARE REPORTED KIDNAPED

One Account Tells of 21 Slain, Another Says None Is Killed but Property Loss Is Heavy.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Dec. 24.—A message from Para, Brazil, to Pan-American Airways headquarters in New York said a Pan-American plane had been sent to the Ford rubber plantation, at the request of the Brazilian Government, on reports that there had been trouble there with native laborers. The plane left Para at 4 p. m. yesterday.

At the time the message was sent there were reports at Para that no lives had been lost but that there had been considerable property damage.

By the Associated Press.

RIO DE JANEIRO, Dec. 24. — Dispatches received here last night said a band of Cayapos Indians had invaded the village of Cardoso, in Northern Para, killing 21 persons and carrying three children into the jungles.

The State Government sent 30 soldiers from Para but because of transportation difficulties it was not believed they could reach Cardoso in less than eight days.

A few months ago Indians in the northwestern part of the country killed the Rev. Arthur F. Tylee of Worcester, Mass., his baby daughter, and Miss Mildred Kratz of Wheaton, Ill.

The Ford rubber concession in Para is a plantation of 6,000,000 acres, not all of which has been cleared.

The Tapajos River is navigable for seagoing vessels to a point about midway of the plantation. In 10 years, it has been estimated, rubber trees now planted will yield approximately 6,000,000,000 pounds rubber a year.

Notes on the Farm Problem.

RAISING grain to sell has caused run-down farms to be a drug on the market. County farm agents have helped in some counties, introducing cows, hogs and chickens—producing milk, butter, cheese and poultry, raising the price of farm land and making better living conditions. All these products have doubled in price in the last 25 years. The members of the Farm Board ought to be county agents who are familiar with the consumers' demands.

Seldom are two enormous world's crops followed by a third. A bountiful crop at low prices is better than a poor crop at high prices for everyone. It means even the city workers can live and buy merchandise. Twenty-five bushels of wheat per acre at 90 cents will make a third more than 10 at $1.20 a bushel. When the Argentine cattle ranges are done away with, as in this country, we will have to supply Europe with beef. The revolving fund ought to be used to buy lime and fertilizer, purebred stock and to build silos.

The propaganda against starchy food has helped to lower bread consumption. The slogan is "Use more vegetables, fruit, pork, beef, poultry, butter, eggs, cheese, etc." We have heard enough about curtailing and raising prices which mean nothing. L. J. HALL.

A Criticism of Our Editorial Policy.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

I WISH to congratulate you upon your editorial in the issue of Monday, Dec. 15, on "Prosperity and Taxes," and also upon the leading editorial in a recent edition, commenting upon Samuel Insull's advocacy of laissez faire. If there is any clearer, more intelligent treatment of economic and political problems in another American publication I do not know of it.

What puzzles me in regard to your attitude is how you reconcile the views in such editorials as these with the views you express when you denounce the growth of "bureaucracy" and "Federal centralization." Is it not true that legislation to control modern business and legislation providing for ambitious public construction projects necessarily involve an expansion of the bureaus of government and, to some extent, a further increase of Federal power? If so, what does it profit one to protest against the consequences of the measures which one favors?

RALPH F. FUCHS.

Our Lotto Raiding Police.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

THE people of St. Louis can really look with pride upon their fully equipped and ever loyal police force. The exploits of one Sherlock Holmes and even Scotland Yard are dimmed in the glare of Police Chief Gerk's glory.

The raiding of a lotto party, given for the benefit of an invalid, in which the first prize was to have been a bungalow apron (confiscated as evidence) and last, but certainly not least, given in the home of respectable people, was indeed about the only act of heroism or bravery in the face of death that the people of St. Louis will ever see.

It was indeed on a par with and just one degree less silly than the fatal shooting of a disabled veteran of the World War for no offense at all other than that the blue coat guardian of the law was afraid that he would get hurt.

He was of course duly exonerated, as the people expected. What else could we expect?

The "force" might try out their new radios and automobiles and expensive guns on a gangster or bootlegger, perhaps. But no, "perhaps" is about as far as they will go.

The Carolers.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

ON Christmas eve thousands of our children and young people, representing church, school and other neighborhood organizations, will travel the residential streets of the city and county singing Christmas carols. It is their personal contribution to their community this Christmas-time to spread joy and glad tidings among their neighbors that this Christmas might be more of what it should be—"Peace on earth, good-will to men."

That all who value their services and who love to hear their young voices singing these beautiful old carols may express their appreciation, we invite the window lights of the homes of the city and county to be set soon after dusk on Christmas eve to beckon the carolers. It is only the opportunity to sing for you that these splendid volunteers seek. Surely, no one will deny them that happy privilege, or allow their services to be given in vain.

Let there be thousands of window lights everywhere tonight to welcome the carolers.

THE POWER ISSUE.

In our opinion the effect of the disgraceful and unfair attempts to defeat Senator Norris of Nebraska will be to increase popular resentment of the Power Trust, which was the chief characteristic of the national elections less than two months ago.

It was, of course, the power issue that concentrated so much fire upon the Nebraska Senator. Like Gifford Pinchot, who has just been elected Governor of Pennsylvania a second time, Senator Norris is a marked man to the great political power industry. It would like to get him out of the way, as it would like to get Senator Walsh of Montana out of the way, and as it would like to get Senator Couzens of Michigan out of the way. Men of their sort are all that stand between the Power Trust and control of the Government. It has already got rid of state control over its practices through decisions of the United States Supreme Court. The position of Senator Norris in the matter of Muscle Shoals is a great unhappiness to the Power Trust. He has made an exhaustive study of the subject, and is the best authority in Washington on it. His arguments for Federal control and operation of that great hydroelectric plant, into which the people have put approximately $160,000,000, have been devastating. How convincing they are was illustrated by what happened when he was invited to state the case for his bill before the Military Affairs Committee of the House. When he had spoken, one of the members of the committee, a Republican from Pennsylvania, said: "Senator Norris, I would like to have you come to Pittsburg and tell my constituents what you have just told this committee."

While known to be sympathetic with the theory that business should run the Government, and that the promotion of all industry without too much legislative interference is the prime function of government, the Republican party has not hitherto been associated in the public mind with the Power Trust. It is therefore a surprise that it should care to reveal itself in such an alliance, which is what the revelations before the Nye committee come to. Discovery that Robert H. Lucas, executive director of the Republican National Committee, had actively participated in the fight on Norris, and that an attache of the committee had gone to Nebraska to ascertain for it what chance there was of beating Norris, has naturally widened the gulf between the progressives and those who control the party. Something of the same sort occurred during the effort to beat Pinchot in Pennsylvania. He, too, was a Republican candidate; but he was fought from inside the party because of his opposition to the practices of the Power Trust. The country is very likely to infer from such revelations that the Republican party is on the side of the Power Trust. Indeed, Mr. Hoover put himself there very squarely in 1928.

If this is to be the Republican party's attitude on the power issue, the campaign of 1932 is taking form faster than is generally realized. The power issue has forced itself upon the people in the form of extortionate rates. Probably there is little or no popular understanding of the legal subterfuges by which the industry has, in the words of Senator Dill of Washington, literally "picked the pockets of the people." The election of a Republican independent who ran for the governorship in the State of Washington was due to resentment throughout the State of profiteering by the utilities. The defeat of Congressman Reece of Tennessee by an anti-power candidate, who went into the campaign 11 days before election, was due to the same resentment. Mr. Pinchot carried Pennsylvania chiefly because of the growing feeling in that State against the power industry. It was his opposition to these practices that elected Costigan to the United States Senate in Colorado. No candidate who opposed the power industry in the November elections was defeated.

The revelation as to what happened in Nebraska, a dastardly effort upon the part of the Power Trust and the Republican National Committee to drag down the anti-power leader in Congress, can only add fuel to the fire. It remains to be seen if the Republican party is content without the greatest misgivings to be put in such a situation. If so, it had a perfect precedent for such a choice when Ajax defied the lightning.

"AFTER THE BALL."

Charles K. Harris, the man who wrote "After the Ball," is dead. The present generation has heard the song by way of the radio, but that brief revival was a pale echo of the ballad all America was singing when Grover Cleveland returned to the White House. The phonograph in its raucous infancy mutilated it, the wicked saloon paused in its sinning to listen weepingly to the impromptu quartet's interpretation, the melody drifted out of the dormitory windows of all the colleges on fluttering wings of banjo or mandolin accompaniments, and the curtain never dropped on a vaudeville bill without its interval of lyric melancholy. A year or two later everyone quoted, in orison or derision, Bryan's "cross-of-gold" metaphor, which presently was smothered in the martial swing of "There'll Be a Hot Time in the Old Town Tonight" as youth went marching off to the war with Spain. Later Kipling passed his tambourine for Tommy Atkins in "The Absent-minded Beggar," and the Young Republic of Kruger's dream was buried as the century died. Harris may not presume even to approach the back door of the academy of the immortals, but the graying remnant of the mauve decade remembers happily how he made it sing.

NEWS FROM THE ZOO.

The St. Louis Zoo is a populous, thriving community, filled with varied daily activities, where piquant personalities maintain their strange tribal customs, defiant of the melting pot. Every live community should have a newspaper, and the zoo has one, issued monthly by the Zoological Society. It is a first-rate publication by all the standards of journalism, printing all the news of this exclusive suburb without fear or favor, giving full coverage to social activities, chronicling all local improvements and fostering a progressive neighborhood spirit. From the latest edition we learn:

The rattlesnake family, of Florida, is enjoying a home newly furnished with a bed of modernistic cactus, a gnarled tree and a Yule log. Sammy, the juvenile chimpanzee, and Duffy, an old settler 9 years old, are rehearsing for their debut in talking movies. Angry complaints by the tenants about noisy locks on cage doors at the Snake House, with some threatening moves against the caretakers by the cobra family, have resulted in readjustment of the mechanisms so they are now noiseless. Jonah and Frya, the sea elephants, received visitors in temporary lodgings for a day while housecleaning went on in their pool. After a domestic row among the servals, one of these large cats packed up and left home, and is now living peacefully in the jungle cat suite. The python menage has gone on a diet and will accept no dinner invitations for the next two months. Mr. Syrian Bear, who had been quite a bully, has returned from the hospital after a sound drubbing by Mike the Himalayan, and now is a better citizen. The talking Mynah bird, now resident in a bachelor apartment, has had many interviewers and is kept busy answering personal questions. Breeding of fishworms and meal worms and trapping of cockroaches is proceeding actively to feed the zoo colony. Birth announcements: One elk, two American bison, 39 fer-de-lances. Spilogale "Skunk" Putorious has recovered from a minor operation and is now enjoying increased popularity.

BILLIONS OF CHRISTMAS GREETINGS.

If any investigator wanted to do a bit of mundane research that would take him into astronomical figures, he might have taken a census of the Christmas greetings extended and received in the 1930 season. The olden days may have possessed the Yuletide spirit, but they hadn't the means of expressing it that today sends billions of greetings winging about the world. For instance, the holiday greeting card didn't come into use until about 1860, and this week it has been weighting down every postman in the land. Every radio program that agitated the ether for the last few days has been offering "Silent Night" and Christmas wishes to all its listeners, of whom there must be about 80,000,000, to no one knows how many programs. The telegraph companies have elaborate blanks for this occasion, and carry words of holiday cheer by the myriads.

The total of mercantile good wishes might be roughly computed by multiplying the nation's newspaper and magazine advertisers by the number of readers, plus the number of tinseled window cards and the benisons of an army corps of department store Santas. Even business letters vary their stilted form during holiday week to include, "Hoping for a continuance of your business, and extending to you the best wishes of the season, we remain . . ." Billboards blaze with the Yuletide message, and on recruiting posters the trim young warriors have retreated before holly and wreaths.

Gifts by the millions will be presented tomorrow, and the seasonal greeting goes with each of them. "Merry Christmas" for the next 36 hours will be a warmer substitute for "How do you do" and "Good morning," swelling the hypothetical total still more. Contemplating with awe this vast outpouring of holiday wishes, we now add several hundred thousands to the total by wishing a Merry Christmas to all our readers.

"DINTY" AT ATLANTA.

"Dinty" Colbeck, it seems, will have to spend at least four more years in Atlanta before he is eligible for parole. The former chief of the defunct Egan gang is serving two sentences—one for 15 years for a St. Louis mail robbery; a 25-year stretch for a mail robbery at Staunton, Ill. He has been in prison six years and, if it were not for the Staunton affair, could competently seek clemency under the one-third rule. But when a second conviction, or another indictment, is in the record, a convict is required to serve two-thirds of his sentence before he may expect release. Political influence may, to be sure, drill a way out through the legal entanglements, as it did in the case of Colbeck's associate, Roy Tipton, but the politicians who came to Tipton's rescue are probably loath to do the good Samaritan again so soon. The publicity that attended their friendly offices was distasteful. So Colbeck must trudge the treadmill while Maxwelton's Inn, the one-time G. H. Q. of loot and wassail, fades in the lengthening distance. And St. Louis will sleep somewhat sounder of nights with "Dinty" at Atlanta.

CHRISTMAS CAROLS IN ST. LOUIS.

Christmas festivities have lost much of the homely savor they possessed in the ample, leisurely days of old, what with the bustle of this machine age to which the ancient customs have been forcibly adapted. Hence it is pleasant to know that the tradition of carol singing is not allowed to lapse in St. Louis, due to the energy of the Christmas Carols Association. This organization each year sends hundreds of volunteer singers into the downtown districts and residence neighborhoods to reawaken old echoes with "God Rest You, Merry Gentlemen," "Hark! The Herald Angels Sing" and other Yuletide anthems which go back in their origin to the earliest observances of the season. Some authorities, in fact, call carol singing the first development of the festival, and legend traces the custom to the joyous chorus of the heavenly hosts which "came upon the midnight clear" of the first Christmas.

Just as the waits of Old England went about singing under casement windows and gathered shillings for relief of the poor, so these modern carolers also will send forth "that glorious song of old" in the cause of charity. The funds they collect will go toward activities of children's relief organizations, not provided for in their formal budgets. Last Christmas more than $6000 was obtained in this manner, and the goal for this year is even more ambitious. The holiday troubadours will rove the residence districts tonight, Christmas eve, and will serenade all households where the traditional Christmas candle appears in the window. Thus a fine tradition of antiquity is preserved, for the even older cause of "gracious charity."

WANTED: A CHAIRMAN.

With too much of everything on his shoulders the President's staggering load is made heavier by the chairmanship of the Republican National Committee. It is a sad story. Dr. Work, who purportedly occupied the place during the campaign, was generally regarded as a useless piece of bric-a-brac and, in the fullness of time, was succeeded by "a man of destiny," Claudius Huston, whom party leaders are hoping everybody has forgotten. Then came Senator Fess, an ad interimeter, supposedly, who already has spoken embarrassingly out of turn. Now the heir presumptive, Robert H. Lucas, a person of political experience and accounted sagacity, might be called the little brother of the Nebraska grocery clerk with whom the anti-Norris junta tried to shortchange the people of Nebraska. We have no candidate for the job, but, in the spirit of the season, we are hoping that Santa Claus may leave a chairman in Mr. Hoover's stocking.

The "Christmas Armistice" of 1914

Letter by British Captain describes extraordinary scene in sector of Flanders line when truce was declared for day; Germans and English met in No Man's Land and had informal celebration; joined in songs, in drinking toasts and in chasing hares; both sides admitted they were sick of war; gifts exchanged by opposing officers.

From a Letter by Capt. Sir Edward Hamilton Hulse, Scots Guards, in "War Letters of Fallen Englishmen," Edited by Laurence Housman (Gollancz, London, Publisher.)

FLANDERS, Dec. 28, 1914.

MY Dearest Mother:

Just returned to billets again after the most extraordinary Christmas in the trenches you could possibly imagine. Words fail me completely in trying to describe it, but here goes!

We stood to arms as usual at 6:30 a. m. on the 25th, and I noticed that there was not much shooting; this gradually died down, and by 8 a. m. there was no shooting at all, except for a few shots on our left.

At 8:30 a. m. I was looking out, and saw four Germans leave their trenches and come towards us; I told two of my men to go and meet them, unarmed (as the Germans were unarmed), and to see that they did not pass the half-way line. We were 350-400 yards apart at this point. My fellows were not very keen, not knowing what was up, so I went out alone, and met Barry, one of our Ensigns, also coming out from another part of the line. By the time we got to them they were three-quarters of the way over, and much too near our barbed wire, so I moved them back.

They were three private soldiers and a stretcher-bearer, and their spokesman started off by saying that he thought it only right to come over and wish us a happy Christmas, and trusted us implicitly to keep the truce. He came from Suffolk, where he had left his best girl and a 3½-horsepower motor-bike! He told me that he could not get a letter to the girl, and wanted to send one through me. I made him write out a postcard in front of me in English, and I sent it off that night. I told him that she probably would not be a bit keen to see him again. We then entered on a long discussion on every sort of thing.

I kept it up for half an hour, and then escorted them back as far as their barbed wire, having a jolly good look round all the time and picking up various little bits of information which I had not had an opportunity of doing under fire! I left instructions with them that if any of them came out later they must not come over the half-way line, and appointed a ditch as the meeting place. We parted after an exchange of Albany cigarettes and German cigars.

On my return at 10 a. m. I was surprised to hear a hell of a din going on, and not a single man left in my trenches; they were completely denuded (against my orders), and nothing lived! I heard strains of "Tipperary" floating down the breeze, swiftly followed by a tremendous burst of "Deutschland Ueber Alles," and as I got to my own dugout, I saw, to my amazement, not only a crowd of about 150 British and Germans at the half-way house which I had appointed opposite my lines, but six or seven such crowds, all the way down our lines. I bustled out and asked if there were any German officers in my crowd, and the noise died down.

A German N.C.O. with the Iron Cross—gained, he told me, for conspicuous skill in sniping—started his fellows off on some marching tune. When they had done I set the note for "The Boys of Bonnie Scotland, where the heather and the bluebells grow," and so we went on, singing everything from "Good King Wenceslas" down to the ordinary Tommies' song, and ended up with "Auld Lang Syne," which we all, English, Scots, Irish, Prussians, Wuerttembergers, etc., joined in. It was absolutely astounding, and if I had seen it on a cinematograph film I should have sworn it was faked!

Just after we had finished "Auld Lang Syne," an old hare started up, and seeing so many of us about in an unwonted spot did not know which way to go. I gave one loud "View Halloo," and one and all, British and Germans, rushed about giving chase, slipping up on the frozen plow, falling about, and after a hot two minutes we killed in the open, a German and one of our fellows falling together heavily upon the completely baffled hare. Shortly afterward we saw four more hares, and killed one again. The enemy kept one and we kept the other.

George Paynter arrived on the scene, with a hearty, "Well, my lads, a merry Christmas to you! This is damned comic, isn't it?" George told them that he thought it only right that we should show that we could desist from hostilities on a day which was so important in both countries; and he then said, "Well, my boys, I've brought you over something to celebrate this funny show with," and he produced from his pocket a large bottle of rum (not ration rum, but the proper stuff). One large shout went up, and the nasty little spokesman uncorked it, and in a heavy, ceremonious manner drank our healths in the name of his "Kamaraden;" the bottle was then passed on and polished off before you could say knife.

During the afternoon the same extraordinary scene was enacted between the lines, and one of the enemy told me that he was longing to get back to London; I assured him that so was I. He said that he was sick of the war, and I told him that when the truce was ended any of his friends would be welcome in our trenches, and would be well received, fed, and given a free passage to the Isle of Man! Another coursing meeting took place, with no result, and at 4:30 p. m. we agreed to keep in our respective trenches, and told them that the truce was ended. They persisted, however, in saying that they were not going to fire, and as George had told us not to, unless they did, we prepared for a quiet night, but warned all sentries to be doubly on the alert.

Our Adjutant went down there with a party that morning, on hearing of the friendly demonstration in front of my company, to see if he could come to an agreement about our dead, who were still lying out between the trenches. Well, he found an extremely pleasant and superior stamp of German officer, who arranged to bring all our dead to the half-way line. We took them over there, and buried 29 exactly half-way between the two lines. Giles collected all personal effects, pay-books and identity discs.

When George heard of it he went down to that section and talked to the nice officer and gave him a scarf. That same evening a German orderly came to the half-way line, and brought a pair of warm, woolly gloves as a present in return for George.

WASHINGTON DAY BY DAY

WASHINGTON, Dec. 24.

THE term "party whip"—heard so frequently on the Hill when congressional activity is being discussed—is destined to take on a new meaning when the seventy-second session rolls around.

A party whip is just what the name implies. He is that Republican or Democrat entrusted with the responsibility of "whipping" the members of his party onto the floor of the House or Senate when their presence is required.

The whips in the Senate are Senator Fess of Ohio for the Republicans and Senator Sheppard of Texas for the Democrats. In the House, Representative Vestal of Indiana is the Republican whip and Representative McDuffie of Alabama the Democrat.

The lot of the Senate whips is not so difficult, perhaps, as that of the House whips. In the first place, there are more than four times as many Representatives as Senators. Then, too, the Senate whips have at their beck and call two veteran secretaries who attend to most of the work.

* * *

BUT consider the lot of the two House whips in the Seventy-second Congress with party control in the balance, as it will be. The presence of one or two members may decide the fate of a measure or a question of policy. It may be that the margin of difference between a Democratic and a Republican victory will depend on the fleetness of the respective whips.

At present, the Republican majority in the House is so large that Vestal has a comparatively easy time. And McDuffie can't do much but keep his Democrats informed as to what is going on and the outlook for the future.

It will be a different story, however, after the present Congress has passed into history. If signs count for anything, and if Vestal and McDuffie hold jobs in the Seventy-second Congress, each will get a "big kick" out of the situation—especially Vestal.

* * *

VESTAL, even now, is enjoying himself hugely. Tall, his hair almost snow-white, he presents a picturesque figure at his station near the back of the Republican side of the chamber. When a vote is ordered, he is all action. Darting into the cloakrooms, he herds stray Republicans onto the floor with gusto. His long arms fairly sweep his colleagues into the chamber. His voice booms: "Stand up——" or, "Here's another, Mr. Speaker!"

McDuffie is not so dramatic in the discharge of his duties. He is more quiet, seldom speaks on the floor, and is not so much in evidence.

But his Democratic colleagues say that he is one of the most efficient whips the party ever had; that he compares favorably with the late Oldfield of Arkansas, admittedly one of the best of all time.

Of Making Many Books

JOHN G. NEIHARDT

A Living Spring

THE death of William Bolitho last June at the age of 39 may well have been no calamity to him, for he was one of those relatively rare spirits for whom the apparent solidities of this world are not uniformly opaque, and no doubt he was ready for promotion; but his going at the height of his powers may have been a considerable loss to the rest of us kindergarteners. It is good to know that all of his minor writings scattered about through newspapers and periodicals will be published. "Camera Obscura" is the first volume of these proposed collections. It would be foolish to describe this as a great book. In it many questions are discussed in the necessarily inadequate journalistic manner; but everywhere in the volume evidences of a strangely wise and luminous personality are to be encountered. It is not as literature so much that the brilliant and hasty little essays are to be valued, but rather for the quality of mind and spirit that is revealed in them by flashes. In the course of his rather more than shrewd remarks on Freudianism, Bolitho introduces a passage that serves well enough in aiding to classify him as a man and as a writer. He insists that mankind is not to be divided into the two Freudian classes, introvert and extrovert, but merely as "the givers and the takers, the fountains and the wells. And be sure," he adds, "that you keep near the smaller class." His meaning might be made more obvious by changing the figure to read "living springs and cisterns"—those who give out from an inner source of understanding and those who can produce only what has been poured into them. Bolitho was not an intellectual and spiritual cistern. He was a living spring, and Walter Lippman meant something very definite when he remarked that Bolitho wrote "like a man from Mars."

SINS OF NEW YORK, AS EXPOSED BY THE POLICE GAZETTE. By Edward Van Every. (Frederick A. Stokes Co., New York City. $5.00.)

One can see now that it was inevitable, and it is a matter for marvel that our excessively sophisticated writing boys didn't think of it before. The old Police Gazette was far too juicily naughty to be neglected forever, and here it is revived in all its glory. In the dark ages of a past generation when all of us oldsters and semi-oldsters were, according to current report, horribly repressed sexually and much given to a prunes and prisms morality, we used to associate the old pink sheet with the barbershop outlook on life, and if we ever glanced at it, we did so only under the pressure of desperate boredom while waiting for the omniscient and loquacious gentleman at the chair to summon us as "next."

As an institution, the Police Gazette has fallen on evil days, owing largely, no doubt, to the invention of the safety razor, but more, perhaps, to the same sort of change that has resulted in a notable decline of prostitution as a business. The old Police Gazette motive is now dominant throughout our literature.

Mr. Van Every, in a mood of hilarity, has delved in the files of the old-time shocker as far back as the "purple forties and fifties" and the "swaggering seventies and eighties," choosing the juiciest samples of text and picture. Presumably, being so much "tougher" than even the toughs of those days, we are expected to come near dying with laughter. Weren't folks perfectly asinine in those far-off days? One does snicker now and then—one even snorts occasionally—but the mirth is at the expense of our common human nature and not any outmoded manifestation thereof. Are we not living in the bumptious thirties, and on the much happier side of what is preparing in the world as a result of our cocksure blindness?

From a dozen of Cabell's books John Macy has selected material which in his judgment best represents the whole range of the author's moods and powers, and he has prefaced the volume with an interpretative essay that, in some important particulars, is likely to prove a revelation, even to most confirmed Cabellians. Those who admire Cabell will know that such a work, prepared by one who has gone deeply into the subject, is certain to be full of light and strange beauty. The book is very much worth owning.

THE ROAD THROUGH CZECHO-SLOVAKIA. By Dorothy Giles. (Penn Publishing Co., Philadelphia.)

The road through Czecho-Slovakia is a road of romantic memories for this author. It is a road to the East out of Prague, and Prague, when this traveler first saw it, was Prague at Christmas time, with the snow in the streets and the wind at the door; with the lights in King Wencelas' castle winking over the Frozen Vitava. And leading out of Prague was the road to the East, the road through Czecho-Slovakia. The author went far along that road, finding fascinating things to write about, and writing about them fascinatingly, and views to delight a traveler's eye, which she photographed for others' eyes. It was a joyful journey, now joyfully described for others to share the enjoyment.

F. A. B.

THE TWILIGHT OF MAGIC. By Hugh Lofting. (Frederick A. Stokes Co., New York City. $2.50.)

A definite but unobtrusive purpose, other than that of entertainment, is suggested by the title of Hugh Lofting's latest offering to children and is to be felt increasingly by the older reader who may be on the lookout for it. The purpose is to show how the age of superstition gave way to the age of science. The story is concerned with the adventures of a boy and girl during the Middle Ages in England, and it is told in the familiar whimsical manner that has won the hearts of so many youthful readers of Lofting's other books. Kings, Princes, Knights, castles abound in an atmosphere of glamor. There are many quaint illustrations by Lois Lenski.

VIKING CIVILIZATION. By Axel Olrik. (W. W. Norton & Co., New York City. $3.50.)

Axel Olrik, the Danish scholar, who died several years ago, is said to have been regarded in Denmark as preeminent in the field of early Scandinavian civilization. In the present volume, now first translated into English, he presents a comprehensive picture of the heroic age in the North.

THE FLAMES OF MOSCOW. By Ivan Lukash. Translated from the Russian by Natalie Duddington. (The Macmillan Co., New York City. $2.50.)

IN OUR TIME. By Ernst Hemingway. (Chas. Scribner's Sons, New York City. $2.50.)

This is Hemingway's first book, which appeared five years ago and is now reissued with an appreciative introduction by Edmund Wilson. It contains 15 short stories and sketches.

TALES FROM THE CRESCENT MOON. By May McNeer and Charlotte Lederer. (Farrar & Rinehart, New York City. $5.)

THE INTRIGUING DUCHESS. By Dorothy de Brissac Campbell. (Covici-Friede, New York City. $3.50.)

The story of Marie de Rohan, Duchesse of Chevrense, who achieved the distinction of being the mistress of three Kings. Not that it really matters.

JERRY, THE STORY OF AN EXMOOR PONY. By Eleanor Helme and Nance Paul. Illustrations by Cecil Aldin. (Charles Scribner's Sons, New York City.)

An excellent yarn for youngsters who may have more than a mere eye-acquaintance with horses. The book is a British importation.

CONTRACT BRIDGE BLUE BOOK. By Ely Culbertson. (Bridge World, New York.)

World champion and expert explains his "unbeatable" methods of contract bidding and play and recommends his system as the one to win with, regardless of the system used by partner and opponents. The author is editor-in-chief of the Bridge World Magazine.

SIX PLAYS FOR SIX GRADES. By Carolyn Barr. (Penn Publishing Co., Philadelphia. $1.50.)

The plays, for grades one to six are "Bennie's Dream," "Santa Claus Starts on His Journey," "Jamie's Circus," "Choosing a Home," "His Majesty's History Lesson," and "Bricks."

THE PINTO PONY. By Hoffman Birney. (Penn Publishing Co., Philadelphia. $2.50.)

SCATTERED GEMS. By Gertrude Lee. (Stratford Co., Boston. $1.50.)

Poems of religion, love, nature and other subjects.

PRAIRIE WINDS. By Zoe H. Tilghman. (Harlow Publishing Co., Oklahoma City, Ok.)

Verses first published in Harlow's Weekly, a magazine of Oklahoma, made available in permanent form for those who hold them in remembrance and for a wider field, where they may find a welcome.

THE SUN SETS RED. By Stanley Hart Cauffman. (Penn Publishing Co., Philadelphia. $2.)

A stirring story of the period of the French Revolution, depicting the daily life of those who dwelt beneath the shadow of the guillotine. There is a young American, caught in the swirl, and, of course, a beautiful girl.

THE BLUE GOD JAZZ. By Donald Snow. (Edward J. Clode, New York. $2.)

Stanley Oakes was a silver-voiced radio announcer and women adored him and made a fool of him. Margaret Lipton among the rest. The way she made a fool of Stanley was to leave him. Apart from that there are roadhouses and night clubs, syncopation and sophistication.

BEN EZRA, OR THE MIDNIGHT CRY. By William L. Beaumont. (Stratford Co., Bostson. $2.50.)

A Messianic story, offered as a modern sequel to "Ben Hur," but without resembling it. The background is New York and the Holy Land. The earnest author, a home missionary for 50 years, is skillful in weaving scriptural quotations into his running narrative. Of interest, particularly, to those who share the author's millenial interpretations.

METTEN OF TYRE. By Helena Carus. (Doubleday Doran Co., New York City. $2.00.)

A story of the ancient Mediterranean world for youngsters up to about the age of 12. The hero is the son of a Phoenician captain in the time of King Solomon.

LOUD SING CUCKOO. By Emma Gelders Sterne. (Duffield & Co., New York City. $2.00.)

A story of fourteenth century England, about a little girl who, masquerading as a boy, joins a band of strolling actors, and about a little boy of noble birth who, of course, marries the little girl when they both "get big." For children around the age of 12.

REVOLT IN THE ARTS. By Oliver M. Sayler. (Brentano's, New York City. $3.50.)

Thirty-six representative workers in the various arts contribute to "a survey of the creation, distribution and appreciation of art in America." The editor contributes an excellent prefatory essay.

THE ROMANTIC EAST. By Sydney Greenbie. (Robt. McBride & Co., New York, N. Y. $3.50.)

An exceptionally well-conceived and well-written work by a veteran traveler on the various countries of the Orient. It seems probable that a more vivid or more dependable general view of conditions in Asia at the present time would be hard to find in any single volume.

LIFE IN COLLEGE. By Christian Gauss. (Chas. Scribner's Sons, New York City. $2.50.)

"The modest purpose of this volume is to introduce the undergraduate upon the American campus to himself, to his friends, and more particularly to his parents back home." The author is dean of the college, Princeton University.

APPLES AND MADONNAS. Emotional Expression in Modern Art. By C. J. Bulliet. (Covici-Friede, New York City. $4.00.)

NORTHAMPTON, Mass., Dec. 24.

A SOUND system of unemployment insurance requires solving many difficult problems. Some employes work from the sense of duty, others for gain, for independence and power, still others to save themselves from want. It has always been supposed that strong motives were necessary to insure continuous effort.

If unemployment insurance were like life and accident insurance the problem would be simple. Each would take what he wanted and pay for it. But it is generally proposed that the employer and the public treasury should pay part of the cost as in workmen's compensation. If when unemployed he is to receive something he did not pay for, no one can say how that would affect the will of the wage earner to hold his place by doing his best. Evidently the morale would be lowered. Another problem will be the person idle because he does or does not belong to a union.

The duty to relieve unemployment is plain, but not even the unemployed have a right to what they do not earn. Charity is self-existent. Employer and employe are in a business, not a charitable relationship.

WANTS WITNESSES TO METEOR

Association Hopes to Recover Fragment Which Fell Dec. 8.

Persons who saw a brilliant meteor fall at 5 p. m. on Dec. 8 have been requested to report the fact to the Midwest Meteor Association at Iowa City, Ia., giving the direction in which it was seen.

Dr. Mark L. Floyd of the University of Iowa Hospital saw the meteor to the southeast of Iowa City. Residents of Piggott, Ark., reported they saw the same phenomenon to the north of that city. Reports from other points are relied upon by the Midwest Meteor Association to locate the neighborhood in which it fell and possibly lead to the recovery of the meteor itself. An 820-pound meteorite was found by a farmer at Paragould, Ark., last spring after the association had located the neighborhood where it fell.

New York Day by Day

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK.

NEW YORK has professional snoopers known as "courtesy shoppers." They are young and personable women employed by department and chain drug stores, syndicate restaurants such as Child's and the Fifth avenue buses. They keep tab on conduct of sales forces through direct contacts.

While such employes are spies, they do not deserve the opprobrium usually bestowed upon the guild. Their aim is constructive rather than destructive. They are not concerned with a clerk's dishonesty, but with bettering his relations with patrons.

It is seldom anyone is discharged because of their adverse report. On the other hand, in instances many who would not likely have been noticed have received suddenly deserved promotion. It has proved remarkably productive in flushing out new talent.

In a department store, for example, the "courtesy shopper" is given an amount of money and a list of clerks in the store to be visited and from whom certain purchases are to be made. She makes a complete detailed report of each transaction.

If the clerk is polite or otherwise facts are set down. Personal appearance of employees is noted along with points about disposition and such. If impolite a warning letter is sent. If especially courteous the deed is recorded on an individual chart.

A certain number of marks mean instant promotion and higher pay. The "courtesy shopper" receives from $30 to $50 a week, but for obvious reasons cannot remain in the position more than a limited period. Yet they may go to other such jobs through an interchanging system.

The high class civility among bus conductors is largely due to this scheme. In drug stores and restaurants the cleanliness and enthusiasm, or lack thereof, are tabulated. The whole effect is to give those otherwise lost in a huge organization The Big Chance.

OUTSIDE of Bronxites, few New Yorkers are acquainted with that beautiful serenity of the upper reaches of the island known as Van Cortlandt Park. It is a larger area than Central Park and some of the most enticing vistas, walks and motor drives are there. The home of Frederick Van Cortlandt, a pioneer, is near an entrance. Acquired by the city it is now a museum filled with Chippendale furniture, old pewter and sundry Colonial what-nots.

IN Van Cortlandt is a cricket field where transplanted West Indians swat the ball with slap-stick like bats. Cricket has something to do with hitting and running, but as an outdoor sport always struck this observer as rather messy.

ALONG one of the winding roadsides of Van Cortlandt stood a venerable hot chestnut vendor shivering in the chill. For him life seemed to have burned down to the faint charking glow of a roasting pan. Stopping to make a small purchase, I inquired: "Not many customers out here, are they?" He replied: "Only like yourself, sir, out of pity." And I went on somehow hoping that in the new Utopia a careless world will take care of its aged.

ONE of the newest night club masters of ceremony has the gait of a peon leading a burro through a sleepy Mexican village. Oyster-eyed and fiddle-faced, his voice is a whining drawl. He often yawns and nods in the middle of a sentence. In contrast to the jumping bean, hand clapping and shouting variety surfeiting the town he is a welcome riot.

JOE JACOBS TO PLEDGE MAX TO FIGHT ANY FOE PICKED FOR HIM

LAST NIGHT'S FIGHTS

INDIANAPOLIS.—K. O. Christner, Akron, outpointed Walter Pickard, Indianapolis, 10 rounds.

NEW YORK—Lew Farber, New York bantamweight, defeated Sammy Tisch, New York (4). Georgie Needleman, New York featherweight, scored technical knockout over Ira Brown, Atlanta. WEST PALM BEACH, Fla.—Tommy Rizzo, New York lightweight, knocked out Jackie Desanti, New York (8).

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Dec. 24. — Max Schmeling, through his manager, Joe Jacobs, is expected to tell the New York Athletic Commission next week that he is ready to defend his heavyweight title against the best available opponent in June, not necessarily Jack Sharkey of Boston.

The commission recently ordered Schmeling to agree, within 15 days, to a title fight with the Boston sailor but Schmeling's reply was that Jacobs was his manager and qualified to speak for him. Jacobs has been under suspension here for some time for his part in the controversy over a managerial contract Arthur Buelow held on Schmeling's services.

Jacobs is to go before the commission next Tuesday and probably will pledge his protege to a title defense in June whether it be against Sharkey, Young Stribling or Victorio Campolo.

If the commission accepts this promise, the way would be paved for a match between Sharkey and Stribling or Sharkey and Campolo early in the spring. Unless Sharkey can prove conclusively in actual combat that he is the best challenger available, experts feel a Sharkey-Schmeling bout is foredoomed to financial failure.

Chicago promoters have offered Schmeling $500,000 to fight Stribling there in June, but present indications are that the title bout, if and when it is held, will be held here.

Legion to Back Crystal City's Girls Cage Team

The Crystal City girls' basketball team, which plays the Bachelor club Friday night at Battery A, Grand boulevard and Hickory street, will be known hereafter as "Post 253, American Legion, Crystal City." The Peebles-Vaughn-Wideman Post, which has a membership comprised of residents of various parts of Jefferson County, will be in charge of all home games, and plans to send delegations weekly to the contests at Battery A. The team will continue to manage its own business affairs and make up its own schedule.

Thomas Anselm, an official of Post 253, in explaining his organization's latest move, said he was confident other legion posts would, sooner or later, do likewise and, in addition to sponsoring baseball for boys in the summer, provide basketball for girls in the winter.

"The Crystal City girls, all registered in the Amateur Athletic Union," he said, "are strict amateurs, playing for the love of the game. These girls have paid their own way for over two seasons."

The Crystal City uniforms will be remodeled, probably for next week's game, so as to bear emblems of the Crystal City-Festus Post.

GREENLEAF INCREASES LEAD IN POCKET MATCH WITH "MASKED MARVEL"

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Dec. 24.—Ralph Greenleaf, former world's champion, conquered the Masked Marvel, 125 to 29, in the third game of their 12-block pocket billiard meeting at the Strand Academy yesterday afternoon. Greenleaf ran out in the seventeenth inning with an unfinished run of 41, making several spectacular shots that thrilled the gallery.

Greenleaf again was the victor in the fourth block played in the evening, by a score of 125 to 50 in nine innings and his triumph enabled him to lead in the match, 443 to 259, at the conclusion of the night's play.

WRAY'S COLUMN

Turning Over a New Leaf?

BOXING, which in St. Louis is about to finish the old year with its tail between its legs, is likely to pep up considerably with the turning over of the New Year's page.

On Jan. 2 the first show of the year will send 1931 away from the post to a promising start. The "wise boys" all are saying The Arena card of next week is the goods. If it doesn't go over, the outlook for the winter ring season will be bluer than a huckleberry pie.

Punchers and fighters make up most of the card, with a pair of the seven bouts being devoted to the more scientific leather throwers. No champions are on the program, but two or three who are knocking at the door might be named, particularly Eddie Shea and King Tut.

If there is any real complaint against the card it is that the promoters have glutted it with too many matches. Unless a knockout shortens the program of 54 rounds, the final bout will not be over until 12 o'clock. The program calls for three and one-half hours devoted to actual fighting, allowing for the one-minute intermissions.

However, the boys who like boxing are not apt to complain of getting TOO MUCH of the sport, after the recent famine.

The Jackson-Johnson Post has certainly deserved success in its effort to give the fight public a real evening of boxing.

Attention, Santa Claus!

AMONG the Christmas stockings that are being hung up expectantly is one belonging to the St. Louis Bowling Association which is hoping that Santa Claus Judge Howard of the American Bowling Congress will slip us the 1932 annual tenpin tournament.

Santa Claus Howard is very Scotch about bestowing this particular present. A city must be a good little boy for a long time before Santy's reindeer can find the right chimney.

However, it has been so long since St. Louis has had the honor and St. Louis bowlers have kicked in so steadily with sugar for the A. B. C. that it may be felt the award is due to this city.

* * *

St. Louis has not had much luck with this particular Santa Claus. Last year the St. Louis bowlers contributed $2800 and all that it received was two medals. And bowling medals at $1400 each can hardly be accounted gifts.

So we are hoping here that Santa will give us something besides the icy eye and boreal bluff, this time.

* * *

Due for a Change.

THE A. B. C., some of its critics say, is in need of a change. Its affairs today are conducted in the same way as they were when the organization first began its career, notwithstanding it has grown 20 times in numbers and financial value.

"If you're so smart," commented one of the officials to a St. Louis critic, at the last convention, "tell us just what this organization needs?"

"That's easy," was the reply. "It needs about a dozen funerals."

Which was very coarse and grossly exaggerated; but the point went over. Nevertheless the tournament is conducted on a peanut policy. The tourney gives a $1000 prize for the five-man team winners, a $500 prize for the doubles winner, $300 for the singles winner and only $180 for the winner of the all-events total, perhaps the most difficult of all the prizes to capture.

Last year some $107,000 in money prizes was distributed among the competing bowlers, all in dribs and drabs, lending neither glory to the individual nor importance to the event.

As suggested in this column before: Would it not be a worthwhile change to set aside $50,000 for the main prizes and then divide up the remaining $60,000 into the little fragments (if it is really thought necessary to scatter pennies in such a fashion, as if casting corn before a lot of chickens to see them scramble).

Fifty thousand dollars, divided into $25,000 for the five-man team, $10,000 for the two-man team, $5000 for the all-events title and $10,000 for the singles (and make this event 10 games instead of three), would give the American Bowling Congress more advertisement than our Congress at Washington receives. It would lift the event from a chicken-feed distribution to a grand prix class.

As it stands, when the convention is held in the East, a team coming from San Francisco would lose money, even though it won the capital prize.

* * *

The Real Trouble.

WE understand that Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler's collegiate League of Nations plan was decorated with the Order of the Frozen Face, by most of the gentlemen whose living depends on Dr. Butler's idea NOT being allowed to take root. The coaches couldn't see a thing in it!

It was stated, however, that many of the faculty members agreed with the idea in principle. And that's just where the rub comes in. Plenty of principal, but no interest.

It's the off-season in football now. But fans will certainly feel peeved at Dr. Butler next fall if his plan prevents them from crashing the box office with a $3 admission price to his favorite football games.

The customer wouldn't be interested in college football if it were free, in all probability.

MARYVILLE TEACHERS won their fortieth consecutive game last night, defeating the St. Joseph Boosters, 24 to 10.

All-Star Teams Are Ready for Game Saturday

By the Associated Press.

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 24.—Coaches of two all-star football elevens, representing the East and the West, dropped all debate today as to which should be the logical favorite in the annual charity game here Saturday, and buckled their squads down to the last few days of intensive training.

Much material for the establishment of a favorite went bad when the weights of the two probable starting lineups were found to show an average difference of but one and-quarter pounds per man with the advantage favoring the West. Each team had figured the other the heavier and some Westerners even said the Eastern all-stars would outweigh them eight pounds to the man.

Except for Van Bibber, star Purdue tackle, who is suffering from a leg injury, Coaches Dick Hanley of Northwestern and Andy Kerr of Colgate said the Eastern team was in good shape.

At Berkeley, where co-coaches Dana X. Bible of Nebraska and Percy Locey of the San Francisco Olympic Club, are putting finishing touches on the West's team, an offense was steadily developing. Barton Koch, Baylor, and Ted Beckett, California, guards, were selected as co-captains of the team. The probable starting lineups, as announced by the coaches were:

Eastern All-Stars: Baker, Northwestern, and Gantenbein, Wisconsin, ends; Ely, Iowa, and Van Bibber, Purdue, or Linehan, Yale, tackles; Doyle, Colgate, and Woodworth, Northwestern, guards; Siano, Fordham, center; Bruder, Northwestern, and Hart, Colgate, halves; Baker, Pittsburg, quarterback, and Macaluso, Colgate, fullback.

Western All-Stars: Ebding, St. Mary's, and McKalip, Oregon State, ends; Christensen, Oregon, and Speidel, Olympic Club, tackles; Beckett, California, and Koch, Baylor, guards; Atkins, Texas Christian, center; Mills, Oklahoma, and Shelley, Texas, halves; Wilson, Baylor, quarterback, and Bausch, Kansas, fullback.

Edwards Scores Kayo.

By the Associated Press.

ROOSEVELT WINS OVER EAST SIDE QUINTET, 23-21

Practice basketball games played by members of the Southwestern Illinois Conference last night were decided by narrow margins. Roosevelt of St. Louis won over East St. Louis in the last few seconds of play, 23-21, while Granite City was winning from Livingston, 23-22, on the losers' court.

Roosevelt outplayed the East Siders the second and third periods of the contest. The honors were evenly divided in the opening session with East St. Louis holding a one-point lead at the end of that quarter, 7-6. The Rough Riders then started a fast pace that East St. Louis attempted to surpass, but the Flyers trailed by a 13-11 score at the half, and 19-16 at the third quarter.

As in their past games, the East Siders rallied in the last period and two setups by Delaney and Smythe, after four minutes had elapsed, put the Flyers in the lead, 20-19. A free throw by Fash added another point, but a sensational shot by Bob Reese tied the count with two minutes to play.

Both defenses tightened and no score was made by either team to break the deadlock and an extra period was expected. The last minute was rough and out of a scrimmage under the basket came a shot that Parker bounced from his hand resulting in the winning basket for Roosevelt, as the gun sounded a few seconds later.

Bob Reese led the scoring for Roosevelt with three field goals and two free tosses for a point total of eight, while Dillman and Parker accounted for six and five, respectively. Fash was the leader for East Side with a total of seven points, while Smythe was second with six.

The game at Livingston was also a close affair, with the lead changing frequently throughout the contest. Granite City decided the game in the last few minutes, 23-22.

The victory was the second straight for Granite City and the third in four starts, all games being played in the last five days.

TRIO OF EUROPEAN BOXERS IN AMERICA LOOKING FOR BOUTS

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Dec. 24.—Len Harvey, European middleweight champion; Jackie Kid Berg, and the English bantamweight champion, Peters, arrived here yesterday on board the S. S. Olympic. Harvey, a tall, good-looking young man, was accompanied by his wife. Berg brought his parents with him this time.

Harvey was delighted to get here, he said, and upon his arrival issued the following statement:

"I am glad to be in America. I know that the American sports public and the sports press are the fairest and squarest you can find in any part of the globe. I know that nowhere in the world can a foreigner come to and find such a haven as America, particularly in the sphere of sport.

"I can come to these shores to win the middleweight championship of the world and it is my hope that Mickey Walker will give me a chance at the title he won from the late Tiger Flowers."

CALIFORNIA BOARD IN FAVOR OF BOXING CZAR

By the Associated Press.

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 24.—Appointment of a "boxing czar" for California is expected to be the major recommendation of the special commission investigating boxing conditions in this State, when it submits its report to Gov. C. C. Young Friday.

This was learned yesterday from sources close to the commission. The new boxing head would co-operate with the three State Commissioners but would be free to make rulings and summarily punish violators. His salary would be about $10,000 yearly.

Names of two outstanding men connected with boxing have been mentioned for the position. They are George Blake of Los Angeles and Lieut. Jack Kennedy, U. S. N., prominent referee, of San Diego.

Paterson Loses Protest.

NEW YORK, Dec. 24.—The Paterson club of the American Professional basketball League has lost its protest of a game played with Fort Wayne at Fort Wayne Dec. 9. Paterson contended that Fort Wayne violated league rules by having more than four recognized professional players in uniform.

St. Louis' Strong Halfback Line May Bring Victory Over Bricklayers, Tomorrow

By Dent McSkimming.

Despite the fact that the Chicago Bricklayer Football Club is sending its strongest team of years to play an exhibition game here Christmas day, the St. Louis All-Stars seem to have at least an even chance of victory.

A Tight Defense Assured.

At fullback, too, the local team will have the experience necessary to cope with clever forwards. The only unfortunate circumstance here is that both Jimmy Nolan and Joe Hand prefer to play the left side. Hand, it is expected, will shift to the right. He once played outside right for Billy Foley's team, oh, so many years ago, at Grand and Laclede. La Barge, in goal, was undoubtedly given preference over the brilliant youngsters Stohlman Hamm and Deuker because of his greater experience. The Brickies popped seven goals past Stohlman in the recent Triner Cup game at Chicago. They must have been all well placed balls, for Brady's goal guardian is the best that has come up since Johnny Hamm broke in.

When the Jugo-Slavs came here for their Triner Cup game two weeks ago they showed St. Louis a young Scotch center forward who had received the stamp of approval from some very keen old-country judges. His name is Imbrie. His game was unquestionably far above the average, but it was no better than Eddie Flavin can put out when he's having a good day. Flavin, playing between Moore or Hart and Ahrens, gives the St. Louis side a scoring punch that the Hellrungs lacked in Chicago. And at the wings, Brengle on the left and Pastor on the right have the sort of speed which should worry Tom Scott and Hugh Davidson, the Brickie fullbacks.

Brothers at War.

An unusual feature of the game is that it brings one brother against another. Hughie Hill, who is playing center halfback for the Ben Millers here, is a former Bricklayer player, and his brother, Tommy, will undoubtedly see some action for Chicago, either at forward or halfback.

If history means anything, the St. Louis defense will have to take care of Clem Cuthbert, the inside left, in order to beat the Brickies. For the past six years Cuthbert has been furnishing the scoring power for this team. Strangely, in all these years the Brickies have never been able to lay hands on an outstanding center forward. This weakness has cost them many a victory. Today they have Davie Coutts there. Davie may look like the worst football player on the field, or he may pop up with a couple of goals. It all depends on how his numerous sprained joints stand the wear and tear. They say Davie was playing center forward in Scotland when Connie Reid was a member of the Knot Hole Gang.

And speaking of St. Louis' good halfback line, it will have a match in Bob Thompson, Pete Quinn and Billy Ogilvie. Thompson, especially, has never failed to do the right thing with the ball. He has played here often, but not too often.

Tom Scott Returns.

Tom Scott, the broad Scotch lad who played his first professional football in America with the Vesper-Buicks here, will be at right fullback for the Chicagoans.

St. Louis Soccer League officials have signified their approval of Jimmy Dunn's work as referee by appointing him to handle this game. Oscar Mossmann will likely get the next feature.

MACK DOUBTS HE HAS A CHANCE TO GET GOSLIN

By the Associated Press.

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 24.—Connie Mack, entering the sixty-ninth year of his colorful career, spent his birthday on the job.

On his desk was a pile of balls and scattered about were piles of telegrams and letters, all wishing him well. Frequently there was ring of the telephone bell, and then: "Oh, fine, thank you very much—Merry Christmas to you."

The manager of the A's said he felt fine and did not realize that he was 68. "I don't feel that old," he said. "I get tired earlier than I used to, but that is all."

As to the prospects for next season, the manager of the world champions said he was hopeful. No one ever catches Mack predicting what his teams will do.

Would Like to Have Goslin.

Mack spiked a rumor that the Athletics were about to trade George (Mule) Haas and Jimmy Moore, outfielders to the St. Louis Browns for Leon (Goose) Goslin, slugging outfielder, and George Blaeholder, a pitcher.

"You'll hear reports of all kinds of trades from now until the middle of June," said Mack, "but they are only rumors."

"We'd like to have Goslin and Blaeholder, but St. Louis most certainly would not part with them. And as far as Haas and Moore are concerned, I'm satisfied with both boys. They certainly have played well for the Athletics."

Connie will go South about Jan. 15, preceding his players to Florida about a month. He will spend much of his stay in Florida before the spring practice begins playing golf.

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., Dec. 24.—Dazzy Vance, ace of the Brooklyn Robins' hurling staff, has failed to sign the contract offered him by the Brooklyn club.

Vance intimated, however, his conference with President Frank York in Brooklyn was a friendly one and that neither expected any trouble in reaching agreement in the spring.

Six New Men for Sox.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Dec. 24.—The Chicago White Sox aren't shouting much these days but they are making a lot of quiet moves to improve their entry in the 1931 American League flag race.

Since the last days of the 1930 season they have obtained six new players, rescued Pitcher Vic Frasier, who deserted them last season, and have opened negotiations for more young talent.

The new acquisitions include Frank Grube, a leading catcher from the International League; Walter Henline, a veteran backstop who batted .344 for the Toledo Club of the American Association last season; Fred Eichrodt, a former Cleveland outfielder, from New Orleans; Luke Appling, a promising shortstop, and Ray Radcliff, a prospective first baseman from the Southeastern League, and Bob Finlator, another outfielder from the Southeastern League.

GROSS RECEIPTS FOR ARMY-NAVY CONTEST TOTALED $632,577

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Dec. 24.—The Army-Navy football game at the Yankee Stadium Dec. 13 earned upwards of half a million dollars for unemployment relief, an auditor's report revealed yesterday.

Gross receipts from all sources were $632,577.26, but expenses of $25,164.81 incurred by Grover Whalen's Salvation Army Citizens' Committee reduced this total to $607,412.45. From this still must be deducted the cost of transporting the Midshipmen and Cadet football teams and students from Annapolis and West Point to New York and return and other incidental expenses.

Sale of $57,003 tickets produced $501,870. The general public paid $390,245 for 34,678 tickets; the Military Academy $46,835 for 9367, and the Naval Academy $64,790 for 12,958.

Sale of programs and broadcasting contracts brought in $102,500, while radio listeners contributed $5372.68 and the sale of an autographed football $5000 more.

ALABAMA, ON

y the Associated Press.

PASADENA, Cal., Dec. 24.—carcely more than a punt and a ass removed from the Rose Bowl, where the annual New Year's day ournament of Roses football game ill be presented, the Crimson tide f Alabama today started generating power to be turned loose upon Washington State.

Weary of travel but fresh of pirit, Coach Wallace Wade's soft poken Southerners sorted out their gridiron trappings for a renewal of practice periods, eager to begin inal preparation for the classic which mark their third Western nvasion.

A team of power was this Alabama aggregation, which displayed business-like intentions last night y hustling through a short but mpressive workout only a few minutes after climbing stiffly from a pecial train.

Alabama Captain Surprised.

There were no predictions to be made by team or coach on arrival. Wade said his men were in good condition; that they would settle down to an uninterrupted grind of preparation and that, while California weather was a trifle warmer than that in Alabama, it would have no effect on the team. That was all.

Capt. Charles "Foots" Clement registered surprise that his team should rate as favorites. "I don't see why we should be given the edge after traveling clear across the country, but we'll sure put out everything we have, you-all can bank on that."

"Gosh, they look big," he commented.

Cougars in Workout.

The Cougars stepped right into stride yesterday afternoon and started running signal drill after considerable work on fundamentals. Present plans call for increased work through the remainder of the week, with no exception made for Christmas day.

The Southern boys were no more tired than their newly acquired mascot. At Phoenix, Ariz., "Poison," a black donkey, was presented the team. Just a few hands high, the "mountain canary" was too weary to travel under its own power and was transported to the hotel in the same truck with the team's baggage.

"Poison" probably will pay a call on Washington State's cougar, "Butch Meeker," today or tomorrow. The meeting is expected to be very informal, with no festivities planned, for the mountain lion has been hungry and moody since arrival.

Shea-Martin Bout Expected To Be Best on Arena Card

By W. J. McGoogan.

Now that all the fighters on the Jackson Johnson Post card at The Arena Jan. 2 have sent in their signed contracts and forfeit money, Matchmaker Lew Raymond has nothing to do but wait for the boys to arrive in the city to finish their training. None of them is expected before Friday or Saturday as those who live out of the city have announced their intentions of spending Christmas Day at home.

Tommy Grogan, welterweight, who meets Eddie Ran in one of the feature eight-round bouts, wired that he would leave Omaha tomorrow and expected to be here Friday morning. Tommy has had an off season this year for he has dropped seven of the 14 bouts in which he has engaged, one of his defeats being a knockout at the hands of Bruce Flowers. But he is an experienced battler and should give Ran plenty to do.

Raymond is counting on the Andy Martin-Eddie Shea bout for the star fight of the card. Martin defeated Shea when they met before at Boston and both are considered outstanding candidates for the featherweight championship now held by Battling Battalino of Hartford, Conn.

Beat Fidel La Barba.

Shea recently defeated Fidel La Barba at Cleveland after the Pacific coast boxer had won a decision over Kid Chocolate. Battalino upset the critics, however, by also defeating Chocolate. All of this makes it necessary for Shea to wipe out the defeat at the hands of Martin to make his claim to a bout with Battalino for the championship more urgent. Martin, on the other hand, could take precedence over Shea for a crack at the champion by again defeating Shea.

Spug Myers, who calls Pocatello, Idaho, his home, and Mickey Cohen, who has been fighting out of Chicago, meet in one of the eight-rounders. Neither of these lightweights is very well known in St. Louis. Myers is another, like Grogan, who has been taking his bumps this year, for of the 10 bouts in which he has engaged he has lost six, won three and drawn once. He has lost his last four outs, being beaten by Tommy Cello, Sammy Mandell, Manuel Quintero and Billy Petrolle. Cohen, on the other hand, has won four of his six 1930 fights, knocking out Buster Brandon and winning from Joe Glick, Mike Dundee and Tommy Grogan, while losing to Joe Marcus and Wildcat Monte.

Brisk Advance Sale.

Sammy Offerman and Lou Terry, the local lightweights, who are to fight eight rounds, are just about ready for their fray, as both have been among the busiest boxers around town this fall and winter. Sammy knocked out Ray Alfano, the East St. Louis boy, his last out, while Terry won from Freddy Haverlak. Offerman packs the punch needed to put Terry away apparently, but whether he can do it in eight rounds remains to be seen.

The fans have been exhibiting interest in the card by purchasing tickets. The prices range from $1.10 to $3.30, and The Arena ticket office is staying open until 10 p. m.

M'BRIDE FIVE TAKES A LESSON FROM ALUMNI

For the first time in more years than the "old grads" care to admit, the McBride Alumni basketball team last night defeated the McBride High outfit, 18-14, in the annual game between the two fives. The contest, played at the McBride gym, was the first setback of the season for the Colonnaders, who had previously won three consecutive tilts. About 500 graduates and undergraduates were on hand to witness the encounter.

Strangely enough, the Alumni, whose games are usually featured by individual play rather than team work, last night showed considerably more team play than did their opponents. Under the leadership of "Took" Durbin, veteran McBride guard for three seasons and a member of the all-star Prep League five in 1929, the grads used two complete teams with equal success and held a comfortable lead during the greater part of the game.

There Goes Santy!

"TWAS the night before Christmas and all through the flat
Not a creature was sleeping, not even the cat;
With visions of lollypops filling their heads.

Then out of the darkness there came a loud shot,
And Papa MacPherson appeared on the spot;
And hiding his grief in a tremulous cough,
He told them Santy had bumped himself off.

Help! Help!

We suggest that some one introduce a relief bill in Congress for the Postmaster at Santa Claus, Ind., who has to act the part of Kris Krinkle for the whole United States at his own expense.

The emoluments accruing to the Postmaster in a town of 60-count-'em-60 inhabitants are not of such magnitude as to cause a split in the Republican party over the appointment to the job.

Besides doing the work of a second-class postoffice, he has to go in the red for a couple hundred bucks to swing it.

Santa Claus may have reasons of his own for picking a town of 60 inhabitants for a distributing point, but it puts the Postmaster in a tough spot.

It's a cold winter in the Hot Stove League, and the minors are gradually coming in out of the draft.

Eddie Ran may be a suggestive name for a box fighter, but Eddie's friends claim he will win in a walk when he meets Tommy Grogan.

Most of them don't even take the trouble to wear a mask as it crabs their style, but they get away with it just the same.

The Chicago Bricklayers who play here Christmas day are the guys who built the chimney for Santa Claus and put the sock in soccer.

Iowa Beats Creighton.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Dec. 24.—After two bad starts, the University of Iowa basketball team has finally wedged into the victory column. Coming from behind in a last half rally, the Hawkeyes last night defeated the strong Creighton College team of Omaha, conqueror of Pittsburg, 23 to 22. Kozer led the Hawkeye scorers with 10 points.

ROCKNE TOLD TO QUIT NUMEROUS EXTRA ACTIVITIES

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Dec. 24.—The Knute Rockne of 1930, "a man with a thousand duties," is a figure of the past.

That was the consensus of the famous Notre Dame football coach's closest friends today after reading the advice of his physician to quit "the too strenuous life."

Just how far Rockne would go to appease his family, physician and friends was a matter of divided personal opinion. Many believed he would retire from active coaching and become director of athletics at Notre Dame. Some guessed he would take a year's leave of absence, while the majority were quite certain he would merely refrain from his many extra activities and devote all his time and attention to Notre Dame football.

The latter belief appeared most plausible. Upon his return from the Notre Dame-Southern California football game Dec. 10, Rockne told the Associated Press that he planned to "stop writing, speaking over radio and to luncheon clubs and all the extras that I have been trying to handle."

"All this extra activity, along with the natural worries a football coach has to contend with, has me fatigued," he said. "I've got to stop it or it's all going to stop me. I don't mean to complain but really I am kept jumping too much. Look at me now. I'm all in and really ill, but I can stay home but two nights and then I have to keep a date in New York for the charity football game between the New York Giants and the Notre Dame all-stars. After that I've got some speeches scheduled. Then I will go to Rochester, Minn., for a physical check-up and then jump out to Los Angeles again for another charity game. It's a hard job to get required rest."

Notre Dame officials today refused to make any comment, believing none was necessary until Rockne himself brought the matter up.

"ABC" LEAGUE SOCCER TEAMS PRACTICE FOR SEASON'S INAUGURAL

With the advent of the "ABC" League soccer season, the league members have started hard practices. As in previous years, Western Military Academy will not have an "A" or "B" team. This cuts down the schedules of other "ABC" schools and handicaps the Alton school in the point system.

Country Day School starts the season with six veterans. Probably the most outstanding of these are Morton and Swift, who were important cogs in the Codasco eleven last season. Swift, Stanard and McCord, all good men, are out temporarily with injuries. In addition, Goalkeeper Lamp was drafted for basketball. Last year the varsity team finished the season with a record of three victories, two defeats and one tie.

John Burroughs' prospects are good. Coach Haerrter has some strong lettermen and some fast new material. The lettermen are Howard, Hahnel, Turner, Rickey, Holt and Kammerer, who probably will not play on account of injuries sustained in the football season. The new players who have shown ability are Nolan, Kerwin and Jones. Last year Burroughs was the "ABC" League champion with six triumphs and no losses.

Little is known about the Principia team. The Cadets have only four veterans to start with and basketball probably will take some of their new material. Manton Riley is coach.

"I'D FEAR FIRPO MOST IF I HAD IT TO DO ALL OVER"—DEMPSEY

CHICAGO, Dec. 24.—"If I had to fight my championship career over again I would fear a return bout with Luis Angel Firpo more than any man I have met."

Thus did Jack Dempsey, former world's heavyweight champion, review his long list of ring encounters before departing for Wilmington, Del., last night to spend the holidays with his wife, Estelle Taylor.

Asked if he was seriously planning a return to the ring, Dempsey gave an evasive reply.

"That punch I took in the first round from Firpo was the hardest I ever caught," he said. "I fought the first round on instinct, I guess."

Grasslands Victor Is Nominated for Grand National

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Dec. 24.

ALLIGATOR, recent winner of the Grasslands steeplechase, has been nominated by Mrs. Maud Stevenson for the Grand National steeplechase to be run at Aintree next March.

Alligator is an 11-year-old chestnut gelding by Iron Grey out of Florida. He is a clean jumper and a natural stayer, and should not be handicapped by Aintree's long course of 4 miles, 856 yards.

Only two Americans have won England's great steeplechase, Stephen (Laddie) Sanford with Sergeant Murphy in 1923, and A. C. Schwartz with Jack Horner in 1926.

NELLIE CUSTIS TOP WEIGHT IN AGUA FEATURE

By the Associated Press.

AGUA CALIENTE, Mexico, Dec. 24.—Nellie Custis, star sprinter of the Audley Farm stable, today was made topweight in the Christmas Day Handicap, which will open the 82-day Agua Caliente winter race meeting. The fleet mare will carry 117 pounds and probably will be ridden by Jockey Herman Schutte.

The first day of racing will include four sprints and three contests at a mile or more.

Scratches reduced the field in the handicap to 10 entries. However, some of the finest racers in training at Agua Caliente will compete in the six furlong headliner.

The horses and their weights in the handicap follow: Caruso, 112; St. Prisca, 107; Good and Hot, 105; Hatrick, 104; Hey Diddle Diddle, 106; Alexander Pantages, 112; Lamp Black, 106; St. Jim, 98; Shasta Bullet, 110; Nellie Custis, 117.

Alexander Pantages and Shasta Bullet will run coupled as the Lloyd and Rodney Pantages entry.

INGRAM TO CONTINUE AS NAVY GRID COACH

The Sun yesterday received a telegram from the service school head football coach, sent from his home at Jeffersonville, Ind., in which he denied he was negotiating with the University of California to replace Coach "Nibs" Price, and said he would return to the navy.

"Am not negotiating with California. Have no idea of not returning to Navy," the telegram said.

Ingram was reported yesterday to be conferring with California officials in regard to replacing Price, who has resigned.

"Navy Bill" has just completed a five-year contract with the academy, and it was reported he was tendered a renewal for a two-year period. Navy athletics officials declined to discuss any of the reports.

LOOS, WITH 71, LEADS FIELD IN $25,000 EVENT

By the Associated Press.

AGUA CALIENTE, Mexico, Dec. 24.—The field in the qualifying round of the second annual Agua Caliente $25,000 open golf championship went into the final 18 holes today with Eddie Loos, Pasadena and Chicago professional, leading, by virtue of having turned in the only par score of the first 18 yesterday.

Only one other golfer, Dewey Longworth of Oakland, came even close to Loos' 71 as a high wind ruined scores for the majority of the 97 shot makers attempting to qualify. The Oakland man had a 72. Front tees were used.

The brisk wind was abetted by a mental hazard resulting from use of the new and lighter ball, which sent the scores skyward during the first half of the qualifying round. The cherished circle of 50 to be admitted from these qualifiers to the tournament proper opening Jan. 13, will be attained by a score of about 165 or under, for the 36 holes of qualifying play, as a result of yesterday's scores.

Top professionals and 10 or 15 amateurs will tee off in the battle for the awards totaling $25,000 when the open begins. Some 40 pros are eligible because of having been among those in the first 30 places in the national open and the P. G. A. tournament.

Jim Heaney of New York, coming in three over par, was third in yesterday's play, while five golfers were grouped with cards of 76 in fourth place and seven qualifiers took scores of 77 to bunch up in fifth.

Steckman Lowers Skating Record

Jim Steckman of the Sunset Park Skating Club, broke the 440-yard record last night at the Winter Garden. Steckman lowered the Class B mark to 45.6 seconds, 1.4 seconds faster than his former record. Ed Weidler and Tony Ginocchio, also of the Sunsets, were second and third, respectively.

Otto Brands, Winter Garden, defeated Jim Jamieson, also of the Winter Garden, and Melvin Dubinsky of the Con-Ferros, in 43.4 seconds. Dubinsky holds the 440-yard record of 42.2 seconds for the Class A skaters. Slow ice held the sprint stars back.

The intermediate boys failed to better their mark of 44.2 seconds as John Bretz, Winter Garden, covered the track in 45.8 seconds. Trueman Connell, Con-Ferros, was second and Dick Mills was third.

The Class C event was the first on the program, and the time was accepted as the Class C record, but is comparatively slow, being 47.6 seconds. This was set by Bob Schanzle, Roosevelt High, in his first heat. In the final Schanzle covered the track in 47.8, with Frank Teuth second and Chester Leibrum third.

This makes 14 new records to go on the books in the last two weeks out of 16 races.

WOOD 15 MILLION YEARS OLD FOUND IN NORTHERN ALBERTA

By the Associated Press.

OTTAWA, Dec. 24.—Mummified for more than 15,000,000 years in the famed tar sands at McMurray in Northern Alberta, a deposit of preserved wood, thought to be the oldest in the world, has been unearthed. Geologists said the find was one of the most important scientific discoveries in recent years.

Government engineers disclosed today that the wood was uncovered last summer, by S. C. Ells, an engineer in the Federal Department of Mines and an internationally known expert on bitumin deposits.

Dr. I. W. Bailey of Harvard University in a series of microscopic studies of the wood has established that at least one of the preserved tree trunks is of a type that grows today in Japan. This discovery is seen as another link in the chain of evidence tying North America and Asia together in what was once one huge continent.

The growth rings of the ancient trees could be counted clearly when the deposit was uncovered, engineers reported. Even tiny insects which fed on the leaves and shoots of the growing trees were preserved and the leaves themselves were uncovered in fair condition. The wood could be whittled with a jack-knife.

JUDGE MULLOY DISQUALIFIES HIMSELF IN SEWER HEARING

Circuit Judge Mulloy at Clayton voluntarily disqualified himself today from hearing exceptions to the commissioner's report of benefits and damages on property in the Lemay Ferry Sewer District, and set the date for the hearings on Jan. 5. He said that Circuit Judge Dearing of Potosi would conduct the hearings.

Following the commissioner's report, 2800 exceptions were filed by property owners who were advised and given free legal service by the Taxpayers' Protective Association, which has made an unremitting attack on sewer construction in St. Louis County under the Ralph law.

Assessed benefits in the district amounted to twice the estimated cost of construction. If the total benefits after the cases have been heard do not exceed the estimated cost, the district must be disincorporated. Hearing of the cases would require many months.

The order disqualifying himself set forth no reason and Judge Mulloy declined to explain his action.

WOMAN FOUND IN PARK SAYS SHE JUMPED FROM AUTO

Does Not Recall Name of Man in Whose Car She Was Riding.

Miss Pearl Glaves, 28-year-old shoeworker, who was found on a drive in O'Fallon Park suffering from a fractured skull, early Monday morning, regained consciousness yesterday long enough to tell detectives that she had been out with a man she knew and had jumped from his automobile when he attempted to force his attentions on her.

She asserted she was unable to remember the man's name, but recalled going for a drive and having several drinks. Detectives planned to requestion her today in the hope that she would remember the name. Miss Glaves spent the early part of the evening with friends at the Castle Dance Hall, Ewing avenue and Olive street, and after they departed, left with the man.

SUIT TO BLOCK PAYMENT OF SHARE OF ESTATE

Estranged Wife Asks That Bequest to A. F. Hays Be Turned Over to Receiver.

A suit to prevent payment tomorrow to Alden F. Hays of one-sixth of the estate of his father, James M. Hays, wealthy Jefferson City manufacturer, and asking that the money beturned over to a receiver, was filed in Circuit Court today by the son's wife, Mrs. Miriam Hays.

The petition states that payment to Hays would deprive her and their small daughter of maintenance rights. The Hays have been separated for some time and she is living in California.

It is explained that the estate, appraised at $250,000, under the terms of the will was to be held in trust by the Mercantile Commerce Bank and Trust Co. and that one-half was to be distributed to the widow, the son and a daughter tomorrow. James M. Hays died on Christmas day, 1923.

CHINESE GIRL, 19, LEADER OF RED BANDITS CAPTURED

CANTON, China, Dec. 24.—A 19-year-old girl, acknowledged leader of Red bandits who have treated helpless victims in Northern Kwangtung province with savage cruelty, has been captured, say dispatches today from Shiuchow.

She was captured in a night attack by troops upon her headquarters, but only after she had killed or wounded several soldiers with her rifle.

List Bounds Up About 2 to 7 Points but Loses About Half Its Gains in Last Hour Under Profit-Taking Sales—Trade Is Light

By the Associated Press.

The list bounded up about 2 to 7 points in response to the reduction in the rediscount rate, but lost about half its gains in the last hour, under profit-taking sales. Trading came close to a standstill late in the day, a straders were more imbued with the festive rather than the speculative spirit. The closing tone was firm. Transfers were about 1,650,000 shares. The floor of the Exchange was decorated with Christmas trees and holly.

Such stocks as U. S. Steel, Bethlehem Steel, American Telephone and International Harvester closed about a point net higher, after making extreme gains of 2 points or so. American Can, Consolidated Gas, Anaconda, Worthington, American Tobacco B, American Water Works, Macy and Western Union closed up 2 to 3 points. Auburn rose 7, then lost half its gain. Of a five-point advance, Case had only 1½ points at the finish. Gillette was a soft spot, down 2 points to a new low.

The reduction of the rediscount rate bolstered foreign exchanges considerably. Sterling cables rushed up 5-32 of a cent to $4.85 13-16. The Canadian dollar advanced about ⅛ of a cent, nearly halving its discount.

Views on Rate Cut.

The favorable interpretation placed on the reduction in the New York Federal Reserve Bank's rediscount rate from 2½ to 2 per cent was in contrast to the rather cynical view which had been taken of some of the numerous reductions which has carried the rate down from the peak of 6 per cent, 14 months ago. During earlier months of the year, however, the bond market was strong, and credit not only cheap but readily available.

The heavy liquidation by banks of bond investments to raise cash has been one of the troublesome developments of recent weeks, and bond dealers hope the lower rate will encourage them to borrow from the reserve rather than dumping their investments.

The mid-week business statistics failed to do much to bolster the more cheerful attitude. The freight loadings figures, as announced for the second week of the month, showed a larger decline than is usual for that period. The weekly petroleum statistics showed a gain of more than 1,300,000 barrels in gasoline stocks on hand, despite repeated assertions by leading oil men that stocks must be kept down if the 1931 season of heavy consumption is to start auspiciously. Crude output, however, was curtailed further.

Anaconda Dividend.

The failure of Eastern trunk line railway executives to announce any tangible developments at the consolidation conference may have been a disappointment to quarters where much optimism has recently been expressed, but Wall street, in the main, has not been inclined to look for any immediate solution of the problem, and is apparently satisfied with reports that the carriers are nearer agreement than they have bene for some years.

Anaconda's declaration of its regular dividend was responsible for the rise in that stock, and helped the more cheerful sentiment which has be n manifest in copper circles in the past few days.

Coca Exchange Members Reinstated

NEW YORK, Dec. 24.—The board of managers of the New York Coca Exchange today reinstated J. H. Redding, R. G. Morris, H. W. King and United Africa Co., Inc., to full membership.

Sept. 18, last, these members were suspended for one year for violation of a rule which requires members to report stocks in warehouses. The action of the board restores them to full rights and privileges on the Exchange.

List Bounds Up About 2 to 7 Points but Loses About Half Its Gains in Last Hour Under Profit-Taking Sales—Trade Is Light

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Dec. 24.—Christmas favors were mostly for the long neglected bulls in a quiet preholiday session of the stock market today.

The list bounded up about 2 to 7 points in response to the reduction in the rediscount rate, but lost about half its gains in the last hour, under profit-taking sales. Trading came close to a standstill late in the day, a straders were more imbued with the festive rather than the speculative spirit. The closing tone was firm. Transfers were about 1,650,000 shares. The floor of the Exchange was decorated with Christmas trees and holly.

Such stocks as U. S. Steel, Bethlehem Steel, American Telephone and International Harvester closed about a point net higher, after making extreme gains of 2 points or so. American Can, Consolidated Gas, Anaconda, Worthington, American Tobacco B, American Water Works, Macy and Western Union closed up 2 to 3 points. Auburn rose 7, then lost half its gain. Of a five-point advance, Case had only 1½ points at the finish. Gillette was a soft spot, down 2 points to a new low.

The reduction of the rediscount rate bolstered foreign exchanges considerably. Sterling cables rushed up 5-32 of a cent to $4.85 13-16. The Canadian dollar advanced about ⅛ of a cent, nearly halving its discount.

Views on Rate Cut.

The favorable interpretation placed on the reduction in the New York Federal Reserve Bank's rediscount rate from 2½ to 2 per cent was in contrast to the rather cynical view which had been taken of some of the numerous reductions which has carried the rate down from the peak of 6 per cent, 14 months ago. During earlier months of the year, however, the bond market was strong, and credit not only cheap but readily available.

The heavy liquidation by banks of bond investments to raise cash has been one of the troublesome developments of recent weeks, and bond dealers hope the lower rate will encourage them to borrow from the reserve rather than dumping their investments.

The mid-week business statistics failed to do much to bolster the more cheerful attitude. The freight loadings figures, as announced for the second week of the month, showed a larger decline than is usual for that period. The weekly petroleum statistics showed a gain of more than 1,300,000 barrels in gasoline stocks on hand, despite repeated assertions by leading oil men that stocks must be kept down if the 1931 season of heavy consumption is to start auspiciously. Crude output, however, was curtailed further.

Anaconda Dividend.

The failure of Eastern trunk line railway executives to announce any tangible developments at the consolidation conference may have been a disappointment to quarters where much optimism has recently been expressed, but Wall street, in the main, has not been inclined to look for any immediate solution of the problem, and is apparently satisfied with reports that the carriers are nearer agreement than they have bene for some years.

Anaconda's declaration of its regular dividend was responsible for the rise in that stock, and helped the more cheerful sentiment which has be n manifest in copper circles in the past few days.

Coca Exchange Members Reinstated

NEW YORK, Dec. 24.—The board of managers of the New York Cocoa Exchange today reinstated J. H. Redding, R. G. Morris, H. W. King and United Africa Co., Inc., to full membership.

Sept. 18, last, these members were suspended for one year for violation of a rule which required members to report stocks in warehouses. The action of the board restores them to full rights and privileges on the Exchange.

Trading on the St. Louis Stock hange ceased for two minutes l o'clock in memory of its late irman, Harry S. Rein, and the owing resolution was read:

"We are called together at this e by the unexpected passing of friend and comrade in business, rry Rein. His unusual fidelity ing the long term of devoted vice at least suggests that we d in silence for a brief space respect to his memory. There never been a time perhaps in history of our business activity en fidelity, integrity and trustrthiness were more greatly eded. It is particularly fitting t we should record in this simway our gratitude for one who mplified these virtues."

COTTON CLOSES HIGHER ON NEW YORK MARKET

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Dec. 24.—Cotton was fairly active during today's early trading, with prices advancing on pre-holiday covering and some local buying promoted by relatively steady Liverpool cables and reports of a better tone in the stock market. Active months sold about 10 to 12 points net higher, with May advancing to 10.29c, but business later was very quiet, with fluctuations rather irregular. At 2 o'clock prices were 3 or 4 points off from the best, with the market about 5 to 8 points net higher.

Futures closed steady, 7 to 11 points higher: Jan., 9.63c; new contracts: Jan., 9.72@73c; March, 9.98c; May, 10.28@30c; July, 10.52@54c; Oct., 10.70c. Spot steady; middling, 9.85c.

Cotton opened steady, up 1 to 5 points on covering and some local buying on the relatively steady showing of Liverpool. Offerings were light and covering became a little more active after the call with active months selling about 5 to 7 points net higher. New January advanced to 9.69c and May to 10.24c, and buying appeared to be promoted by the firmer tone of the stock market and the reduction in the New York Federal Reserve Bank rate. General business was restricted by the proximity of the holiday, and the market was quiet during the early period. Liverpool cable said that some hedging had been absorbed by covering and continental buying in that market. The Liverpool market will remain closed from today until next Monday morning.

Trading continued quiet, but the market was steady later in the morning on further pre-holiday covering, which sent prices about 9 to 10 points net higher on the more active positions. There was considerable switching from near to later deliveries, but December appeared to have been pretty well evened up and went out quietly at midday. Last sale in the new contract being at 9.75c. New January was selling around 9.71c and May 10.95c at midday, or 7 to 9 points net higher.

DIVIDEND DECLARATIONS

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Dec 24.—Brigg Manufacturing Co. directors have declared an extra dividend of 12½ cents and a quarterly dividend of 37½ cents, the first dividends paid since the end of 1927.

The Elgin National Watch Co. has taken no action on its dividend, pending a more complete report for the year. A year ago an extra of $1 was declared, and three months ago a quarterly dividend of 50 cents was paid.

R. S. Reynolds, president of Selected Industries, Inc., commenting today on the decision of directors to omit the quarterly dividend of $1.37½ on the prior stock, said that while assets substantially exceed the capital value of the prior stock, even on the basis of present depressed market quotations of its securities, "nevertheless the shrinkage of security values has been such as to preclude the payment of dividends for the current quarter on the prior stock under the Delaware law."

The Delaware, Lackawanna & Eastern Railroad declared the regular quarterly dividend of $1.50 a share, but omitted the $1 extra which had been paid annually since 1924.

ANACONDA COPPER DIVIDEND

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Dec. 24.—Anaconda Copper Mining Co. today declared the regular quarterly dividend of 62½ cents a share. Its subsidiary, Andes Copper, also authorized the regular payment of 25 cents.

Earlier in the year Anaconda's annual dividend basis had been reduced, by successive steps, from $7 to the present $2.50 rate, which today's action maintains.

The directors, in a statement, said the cost of producing electrolytic copper in October, the latest month for which figures were available, was 7.18 cents a pound before depreciation, interest and taxes, and 8.63 cents after all charges. This price was about a cent below the lowest market quotation for the metal.

Current assets of the company on Nov. 30 were $138,030,544, while current liabilities totaled $67,510,667. Investment in buildings, machinery and equipment, excluding real estate, mines, etc., was $263,706,845, against which depreciation of $91,181,251 had been reserved. Finished metals, as of that date, were carried at $38,211,486 and manufactured products at $21,262,357.

$9,000,000 Dividend Voted.

By the Associated Press.

BUYING RATES ON BANKERS' ACCEPTANCES ARE REDUCED

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Dec. 24.—The Federal Reserve Bank of New York, which yesterday reduced its rediscount rate to 2 per cent, today cut its buying rates on bankers' acceptances. The new rate for maturities up to 120 days is 1¾ per cent compared with 1⅞ to 2⅛ previously. Long maturities were cut to 2 per cent, a drop of ¼ of 1 per cent.

Numerous dealers in bankers' bills also revised their rates downward by an eighth of 1 per cent.

The American Acceptance Council, however, announced no change in its official rates and some dealers who had cut returned to the old levels.

TO CUT COMMISSION RATE ON LOW INACTIVE STOCKS

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Dec. 24.—The Governing Committee of the New York Stock Exchange today approved a proposal to lower commission rates on inactive stocks selling at less than $10 a share, in units of 10 shares. The new rates, on which the membership is to vote, would become effective Jan. 7.

The schedule provides that the commission on $5 to $10 stocks be not less than 10 cents a share and on $1 to $5 stocks not less than 5 cents. Heretofore the rate on all inactive stocks quoted between $1 and $100 has been 20 cents a share.

LONDON STOCKS UP ON OUR REDISCOUNT RATE REDUCTION

LONDON, Dec. 24.—Reduction of the discount rate by the Federal Reserve Bank of the United States, which came as a surprise to financial London, caused renewed strength in gilt-edge securities on the Stock Exchange today, where general advances were recorded.

It was thought in some quarters that the Bank of England might lower its rate, but in view of the recent outward gold movement the directors decided to leave the rate unchanged.

RAILROAD EARNINGS

NEW YORK, Dec. 24.—The first 15 railroads to report November earnings had net operating income of $15,846,000, a decrease of 26 per cent from $21,431,000 for the like month last year. The figures for November this year also showed a decrease of 44.7 per cent from the previous month.

Wabash	$ 538,844	$ 697,045
Ann Arbor	48,284	77,562

AMERICAN COTTON MOVEMENTS SLOWER.

NEW YORK, Dec. 24.—The movement of American cotton into sight, forwardings to mills and exports, have been running lower in recent weeks than in the same weeks last year or two years ago, the New York Cotton Exchange Service reports. The low movement is attributed to the relatively small demand and the low rate of world consumption.

PRE-HOLIDAY QUIET TRADING IN BONDS

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Dec. 24. — The strong tone of shares and the reassuring action by the Federal Reserve Bank in cutting the rediscount rate helped bonds today. Foreign issues were erratic but domestic obligations, both liens and convertibles, were firm. Bids were limited to a small fraction above the previous close so that the day's trading failed to make much impression on the price level. The day's turnover was the smallest in several weeks as traders and investors turned their thoughts to Christmas.

Some of the rails that have moved in sympathy with stocks were buoyant. Boston & Maine 5s, Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul 5s, Erie 5s of 1967, Missouri Pacific 5s, Nickel Plate 4½s, Northern Pacific 4s and Pennsylvania general 4½s made good progress, advancing from ½ to more than a point each. The same was true of International Telephone 4½s and International Hydro Electric 6s.

Trading in United States Governments was confined principally to Liberty 4th 4¼s, and Treasury 3⅜s, with the former advancing 2-32ds. The group was fairly steady. The market in many of the usually active foreign dollar bonds was thin. Latin Americans were irregularly lower. German Governments were firm in common with the general trend of Europeans.

The unexpected action of the New York Federal Reserve Bank in reducing its rediscount rate to 2 per cent was regarded in financial circles as a bullish argument for the Bond Market. There were confident predictions in bond circles that aside from whatever effect it might exert on money rates generally, already the lowest in many years, it would have a strong psychological effect in encouraging commercial banks especially to resume their purchasing of investment obligations, since they now have assurance that the easy money policy of the Federal Reserve will be continued well into the coming year.

Proposed for Reinstatement.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Dec. 24.—Norris B. Henrotin, who was floor member of the New York Stock Exchange firm of J. A. Sisto & Co., which was suspended for insolvency Sept. 30, has been proposed for reinstatement as a member of the Exchange. The Committee on Admissions will consider the proposal Dec. 31.

OLD AND NEW CROP WHEAT FUTURES CLOSE HIGHER

ST. LOUIS MERCHANTS' EXCHANGE, Dec. 24.—Both May and July wheat closed ½c higher today, with May corn up ⅞c. A late dispatch told of Canadian and European buying of old crop wheat at Chicago.

It was reported earlier that the season's last cargo of wheat from Canada for Europe had left Quebec, that Argentine shipments had decreased and that New York reported pick up in export.

Both May and July wheat started out at unchanged price levels.

May wheat opened at 79, July wheat 64, May corn 69⅜ and July corn 72.

Local wheat receipts which were 46,200 bushels, compared with 56,000 last week and holiday last year, included 22 cars local and 11 through. Corn receipts, which were 46,200 bushels, compared with 89,600 last week and holiday last year. Oats included 30 cars local and 3 through. Oats receipts, which were 17,000 bushels compared with 22,000 last week and holiday last year, included 7 cars local and 1 through. Hay receipts were 9 cars local and 4 through.

WHEAT HAS ADVANCE ON CHICAGO MARKET

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Dec. 24.—European and Canadian buying of future deliveries of old crop wheat here gave a sudden hoist to the wheat market today. May wheat (old contracts) rose to the highest price for that delivery since Nov. 3. Most dealers here were unaware of proposed legislation at London. Washington suggestions of an embargo on wheat imports into the United States were also unknown to the rank and file.

Wheat closed unsettled ½-1⅜ cents a bushel higher than yesterday. Corn closed ⅛-¾ cents up, oats ⅜ cent advance and provisions varying from 20 cents decline to a rise of 22.

Absence of aggressive buying characterized the wheat market, whereas corn offerings were relatively scarce. Starting ⅜c off to ¼c up, wheat afterward held steady. Corn opened ⅜@⅞c higher and subsequently reacted.

Influenced by corn strength, Chicago wheat at one stage took a quick upward shoot of more than 1 cent for March and May deliveries. The upturn was aided by a report that the season's last wheat cargo from Canada for Europe had left Quebec. There were also New York advices that export business had picked up and that Argentine shipment for the last week had decreased.

Corn traders gave some attention to assertion that during the winter months the average disappearance of corn was between 400,000,000 and 450,000,000 bushels, against average primary receipts of 300,000,000. Corn arrivals at primary centers today were but 881,000 bushels compared with 1,097,000 a week ago. Oats followed corn.

Provisions advanced, responsive to upturns in hog values.

New York Sugar.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Dec. 24.—Raw sugar was unchanged early today, but the undertone was easier, owing to the setback in futures, with sugars available at last paid prices of 3.23c for spots, duty paid, but buyers showing no interest above 3.20c. The only sales reported were 18,000 bags of Philippines to an operator for April-May shipment at 3.38c, and 9450 bags of Cuban from store at 3.23c, and these were concluded late yesterday.

Raw futures opened unchanged to 6 points lower, with the December position showing the maximum loss, owing to liquidation as a result of the circulation of nine December notices. As today is the last trading day for the current December position, there was considerable evening up and exchanging to later deliveries and following the call, prices continued to sag under liquidation and selling by houses with Cuban connections, with the list at midday 9 points lower for the spot month and 3 to 4 points lower for the later deliveries. Other factors mentioned on the decline were the inactivity in the spot market and continued uncertainty over the German situation in connection with the world-wide stabilization plans.

Refined prices were unchanged at 4.55c for fine granulated, with trading light and mostly of a hand-to-mouth character. Prices were quoted at 4.55c for fine granulated by all refiners.

Sugar futures closed easy; approximated sales 50,700 tons. Jan. 1.10-1.11; March 1.19-1.20; May 1.28; July 1.35-1.36; Sept. 1.43; Dec. 1.51.

UTILITIES AND SOME OILS UP ON CURB

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Dec. 24.—The curb market's utility stocks and some of the oils reflected the Christmas spirit of good cheer today, but other sections of the list did little more than hold steady.

One to two point gains in Electric Bond & Share, American & Foreign Power warrants and United Light "A," however, were about the best the market could muster, although many other trading favorites finished with small fractional advances.

Standard Oil of Kentucky had a brisk spurt in the afternoon, moving up more than 2 points before the sally was checked. It was up about a point net. Vacuum Oil, Cities Service and Gulf were steady to slightly higher.

CHAPTER TWENTY-SIX

FROM the moment Nancy Champion was born, power and wealth and influence had conspired to make life easy and luxurious. When she desired a thing she had only to ask for it because there was always money with which to buy what she wanted or friends who had power when money was of no avail. And the Champions as a family had always understood the only value which money has; they used it to make life simpler by bribing and by buying away difficulties and irritations.

As Nancy grew out of childhood she had discovered slowly that she was charming and beautiful and that in her charm and her beauty she possessed a weapon quite as powerful as wealth or influence, and being a spoiled woman she had never been too scrupulous in using any weapon. The only law which she recognized was the law of her own desire.

At 60, when her beauty had faded and her charm and vivacity were tainted by a corroding bitterness because she had, like any plain stupid woman, to fade and turn old and at last to die, she remained luxurious and spoiled.

She did not even travel like other women. She returned from her exile, after 25 years, traveling in state as royalty once traveled and millionaires now travel. Because her husband was rich and powerful, the two of them shared what was known as the Royal Suite, with two bedrooms, two sitting rooms and two baths on the most splendid of sea-going hotels.

* * *

AS the ship steamed slowly up the channel in the brilliant winter sunlight, she rose late and lingered in her bath and over her toilet, taking great care with herself, polishing her nails and regarding her make-up minutely, making certain that the dye in her hair did not betray itself where the hair was parted on the side. After many experiments it had turned a beautiful and lustrous red, which agreed marvelously with the whiteness of her skin and the blueness of her eyes and by its very look of artificiality gave her a piquancy which she had lacked before.

As she sat regarding herself in the mirror of the dressing table, it struck her as extraordinary that there were really no wrinkles in her face. Her skin was smooth and soft and white like the skin of a young girl. Her hair was young and alive, and her figure firm and slender.

She was the perfect product of the most expensive masseurs and beauty specialists. She had done strange exercises and been massaged and had operations, and used the most absurd artificialities, always toward the same end—that she might remain young and so beautiful that when she entered a room people were instantly aware of her presence, and she had concentrated upon this one end for so long that it was only the shell of herself which now had any reality for her. The core, the heart, the soul no longer existed. She never saw that there was something bordering upon repulsion in a creature who looked like a young girl and was an old woman.

IT had been years now since she had known any relaxation. She had lain in the sun, not because she got from the sun any sensuous animal enjoyment, but because the sun kept the muscles firm and made one look young.

She had lain on the beaches of Biarritz and the Lido rigidly and thoughtfully making certain that she was becoming evenly tanned so that she would look well in the evening, tormented by the thought that although she detested cold water she must swim for the sake of her figure and that although she was lazy and hated exercise she must twist and contort her poor, tired body into position that would reduce the hips and strengthen the muscles of the abdomen.

And afterward in her own room she had to spend another hour with lotions and creams so that her skin, while tanned, would not become dry and leathery. And now at 60 when people saw her they thought, "What a marvelously preserved woman of 50!"

She did not even deceive her husband, although she fancied that he, too, thought her 15 years younger than her age. But Sir John had no illusions. He had married her because he was fond of her and because her hopelessly feminine absurdities amused him, but most of all because when he found himself a widower at 60, she was exactly what he desired as a wife. . . . It was not love that he wanted any longer, but the affection and companionship of an amusing woman and a wife who could sit at the head of his table in the handsome dining room at Portland Gate and entertain the most distinguished or the most shady or the most boring guests with equal brilliance and charm and a handsome woman who would ornament his house and add luster to the closing days of his career.

* * *

HE had had his love when he was young and vigorous with a wife who was all that Nancy was not, a wife who had been plain and a little dowdy, comfortable and understanding and selfless; who had borne him five children and lived only to make him comfortable and happy and successful.

He had been full of life. Born of a poor country family, he had made himself immensely rich and with the next honors he knew that he would be Lord Elsmore of Crawley.

She was still sitting at the dressing-table when Sir John knocked and came in. He was a big heavy man with a deep hearty voice, a friendly manner and small, shrewd blue eyes, dressed carefully and immaculately in dark tweeds. He wore on one hand a heavy gold ring set with an onyx Assyrian seal that had been brought up by a crew of his oil drillers from the depths of Mesopotamian clay. He looked pink faced and healthy and he smiled at her.

"Well, my dear, are you ready for the return to the Promised Land? I've a wireless for you. It just came."

"I suppose it is from Hector."

She tore it open and read it and handed it to him. It said:

"Regret too ill to meet boat. Will telephone Hotel, Savina, Jerrold wants you for tea. Love. Hector."

She looked at Sir John and smiled. The telegram needed no explanation for he knew all about Hector. She had even warned him that he must not be upset by Hector's unpleasant manner. He knew that she had not seen him in 25 years.

* * *

SHE said, "He's being cold, but at least he's answered me."

For a moment she was living in the past, seeing Patrick again, black-haired and charming and carefree, with a wicked talent for enjoying himself that infected others and destroyed all sense of morality and respectability. She was thinking how she had fallen in love with him at Newport, before her poor sister Mary was dead, and how she had never dared let him know how she felt and she was remembering his tenderness and wild good humor and his embraces and the excitement of being near him and the intoxicating delight of simply sitting beside him on the terrace before the hotel in Switzerland, drinking chocolate and looking out over the mountains, and then she remembered slowly the cold horror of the night when he did not return from climbing and the knowledge that he was dead and that she would never see him again.

She was suddenly afraid to return. She wanted to stay aboard and return to London which had no memories that could hurt her, because all the others who came after Patrick had left no scars.

She smiled thinking that she could not do without him and that she had always been one of those women who could not live without men. And she had been lucky, now when she was no longer young, to have attracted a man like John.

* * *

EVER since they had left Southampton she had been plotting how she might be alone when they came in sight of New York, because New York and Patrick Dantry had become blended during the years into a single memory. In all her hardness and disillusionment this memory was the only soft spot which remained. She wanted to come up the channel alone and have her first glimpse of New York unmarred by the presence of John, who shared none of her memories and had no place in that distant past.

For the sake of her figure she set out to do 10 rounds of the deck. As the mist lifted slowly from the dark water she saw glittering in the sunlight the snow-covered shores of Staten Island with its queer, old-fashioned wooden houses and all at once she knew that she was in America again.

And then suddenly, as if a veil of gauze had been lifted there appeared out of the mist a city which could not be real nor built by the hand of man. Glittering in the winter sunlight tower after tower rose against the blue of the sky. It was not a city but a single enchanted castle, the fortress of a sorcerer, a city out of the Arabian nights like the city in the Tale of the Fisherman. From each tower there drifted a little plume of white steam. She began suddenly to cry. And this city, she saw suddenly, was like Patrick—dazzling, beautiful, audacious and overpowering.

* * *

WHEN he saw that she had been crying he quietly slipped his arm about her waist and said abruptly, "There, my dear, don't take it so hard."

She felt ashamed before John and said, "I'm sorry. I can't help it. Parades of soldiers and military music and ships always make me cry. I feel the same way now."

The gangplanks slipped down. Trunks began to slide down chutes and other trunks and great wooden cases and sacks of mail to appear in great baskets of rope out of the depths of the ship.

Sir John's secretary appeared and said, "Mr. Melbourn is on board looking for you, sir," and as they turned to descend, Melbourn himself appeared.

He was dressed in dark clothes with a derby and looked big and hard and powerful. It struck her as Melbourn came toward her that he was more attractive than she had remembered and she began to grow excited and a little coquettish as women always did when he came into a room.

He was saying, "I've brought my car to take you to the ho'el. Everything's been arranged about the landing. I hope you'll have lunch with me and afterward Sir John and I will leave you and get down to our pressing business. Tomorrow night when you've rested a little, I'm giving a dinner for you."

After John had collected the things she had forgotten in the cabin they went down the gangplank accompanied by Melbourn and two secretaries and went through the pier shed to the street where Melbourn's motor was awaiting them.

In the doorway stood an old man with newspapers under his arm and at sight of him Nancy said suddenly, "Oh, buy me a paper," and Melbourn bought one of the papers and gave it to her.

* * *

INSIDE the motor, settled comfortably in the deep cushions, she took up the paper and looked at it. There was a picture of a woman sitting on a table with her knees crossed which covered the whole first page and above a headline which read, Famous Night Club Singer Strangled in Exclusive Murray Hill Love Nest. (Story on second page.) She thought, "Murray Hill is where I once lived and where Savina lives," and it seemed to her that the place had been in some vague way desecrated.

Melbourn was looking at her and grinning, "all our papers," he said, "aren't as bad as that. Some of them are almost civilized."

And she saw suddenly that he was thinking of her not as someone who belonged to this city but as a foreigner who had never seen it before. It was his city now and she was a stranger.

MARBLE MANSION WRECKS TOM MIX'S ROMANCE

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 22.

THE Tom Mix mansion in Beverly Hills is for sale. Tom doesn't want it, never did want it, and his wife, Victoria, who filed suit for divorce on Dec. 11, is through. The house, with its marble halls, is one of the reefs which tended to scuttle the Mixes' ship of matrimony.

Tom practically was living in a tent when he and Victoria Forde, herself a motion picture actress, were married, 12 years ago. They lived in a two-room house at Newhall, a suburb of Los Angeles, while making Westerns.

He was earning $100 a week and getting $25 extra for writing his own stories. Then came fame and fortune—and unhappiness. Victoria wanted a mansion rivaling any in all the Hollywood hills, and Tom built it, at the cost of a million. There was a butler, as stolid and stiff as a statue; a first cook and second cook and servants for all work. There was a swimming pool nearly a half block long, tennis courts, flower gardens, and well-stocked cellar. There was a yacht at anchor in the bay and money piling in in a golden flood.

"I don't need this estate to make me happy," Tom said then. "I don't need yachts. I don't need $75,000 worth of automobiles. I can be happy with a good horse, a saddle and bridle and a tent. Every time I go in the house my boots skid from under me and I land on my neck. 'Go on and laugh,' I said to the butler one day when I noticed him with his hands over his mouth. I was getting up from the floor. 'I'm just trying to be entertaining,' I said."

* * *

WITH the mansion built and equipped, Mrs. Mix started to entertain. And then the trouble began.

"She entertained a set that I could not and would not make my friends," the former cow-puncher recently said. "I know they hated me and I did not like them. I tried to be a good fellow and play nothing but host, but I got nervous indigestion for my efforts. So, when they came to my house, I would be absent.

"Her friends came to enjoy my swimming pool, to use my tennis courts, to eat whatever there was and to drink whatever there was and all they left behind was cigarette stubs and empty bottles. I have entertained but few of my own friends in my own home.

"I could have stood it all and flattered the beautiful women and kissed their hands as other men do but it is not in my make-up. I can't be a hypocrite. Naturally, our differences brought quarrels and long discussions about the subject. Right then we made a property agreement and Mrs. Mix went abroad."

Friends in the motion picture colony today are recalling the climax of the Mix parties which culminated three or four years ago. Tom came home one day in January, they say, to be greeted by Victoria with: "Tom, dear, I've decided to give you a party on your birthday.

* * *

SO the arrangements were made, the tables set, invitations were given by telephone, and when Tom arrived at home the party had gathered.

But what a party! The guests were Mrs. Mix's "bridge hounds." Not a cowpuncher or buckaroo in the whole lot.

"Glad to meetcha," said Mix, a bit weakly. He sat around for a while, but when opportunity came fled the room.

Tom didn't have much to say about the party, but secretly he was hurt. Along in April, just a few months later, in an apparent burst of generosity, he announced to Victoria that it was his time to give her a birthday party and asked for a list of all her friends. He'd make it a "swell round-up." It would be a party she would remember the balance of her life. So again the tables were set and invitations issued. Mrs. Mix dolled up in her prettiest gown and made ready.

Presently a battered flivver rolled up the driveway and died with a heavy gasp in the parking place. There were men's voices which probably struck fear in Mrs. Mix's heart. Somewhere she had heard them before. When the butler opened the door in stalked Texas Smith and Buster Gardner, two of the best cow punchers that ever twirled a rope at a steer or straddled a bucking broncho. All dressed up they were in store clothes and broadening smiles. Another ding of the doorbell and there stood Colorado Cotton, ready to join in the round-up. Before long cow hands from Arizona, Wyoming and Texas, with stable boys and horse cuffers from studio corrals, arrived in numbers. Mrs. Mix's party was ready to start.

Mrs. Victoria Mix . . . failed to win Tom away from his cowboy pals.

"SHE tried to be valiant," one of the "guests" pointed out today. "She stuck it out for a little while but when no one was watching, fled to her room. A good time was had by all—except Mrs. Victoria Mix. Somehow or other she didn't seem to enjoy the affair."

Separation after separation followed these parties. Mrs. Mix sought a divorce in Paris in 1928 but was unable to get court action. The Attorney-General's office in that city sent Mix a series of questions, or, rather, admissions for him to sign, which would have given Mrs. Mix legal grounds for a French divorce. In refusing to sign these admissions, Mix wrote:

"I am a native born American citizen. For nearly a score of years I have been a taxpayer and voter in the State of California where I reside. Up to the present time, no foreign power directly or indirectly has ever exercised or attempted to exercise a control over my affairs, personal or impersonal."

And that ended that.

WHITE ACCESSORIES ARE SMART

By MARGERY TAYLOR

IT'S going to be a white Christmas this year even if it doesn't snow; it will be white indoors.

Fashion in decoration seems to have gone quite white. Perhaps we are a little fatigued by the breathless rush of color we have been having in everything from dishpans and mops to tablecloths and clocks. At any rate, white is certainly the fashion note at this year's end.

The smart gift, therefore, will be white. And there's one thing comforting about a white gift; you may be sure that it will "go" with any color in the recipient's home.

Of course, white doesn't have to be white as that over-driven "driven snow." It may have the palest shadow of purple, almost too delicate to be certain about; it may have that grayish cast called oyster, or it may glow with the warm ivory of old satin.

Alabaster—in the form of urn-shaped lamps—seems to appeal strongly among the smart new white accessories. On the dressing table, for instance, the small lamps with silk shades looped with crystal beads are distinctly feminine. And even in more masculine settings, against stronger colors, alabaster strikes the right note with any of the popular colors of the day—turquoise, cherry, brown, black and gold.

And there are the proper white accessories for each period. The colonial room may be enlivened with white Staffordshire dogs or prim Dresden figurines. Eighteenth century rooms may gain the right detail of distinction in a piece of fascinating Chinese carved ivory—box or ash-tray or whatever it may be.

For the table setting, white is again chic—but not the old unimaginative white. Now the white table has life and sparkle as well as dignity, even if it is all white. A snowy damask cloth, for instance, set with clear crystal glasses, creamy Wedgewood and a centerpiece of porcelain figures—a modern way of using white.

Another Situation Saved.

Have you ever made the filling for croquettes too soft to mold nicely and you have had to use it for hash? Next time moisten one teaspoon of gelatine with cold water and dissolve in a little hot water. Add this to the croquette mixture and place it in the refrigerator. It will thicken it enough to mold nicely.

Bones

THE bones make up the framework of the body. They serve as levers for the muscles to pull on and hence facilitate motion. The bones also protect important organs in the body.

The skull encases and shields the brain, the spinal column protects the spinal cord and the chest bones shield the heart, lungs and a goodly portion of the abdominal organs. The hip bones protect the pelvic organs.

On comparing bones to other "structural" materials, we find that on a basis of weight and size, they are exceptionally strong.

Bones are not absolutely rigid, under strain they will bend, but under excess force, or when even small forces are applied in certain directions, they break.

Contrary to the common impression, bone is not a dead tissue. Bone is a spongy tissue, made up of a hard non-living substance which forms the surrounding case for minute living cells.

The bones of children are relatively elastic. Those of the older persons are more firm and less yielding, while the bones of the aged are quite brittle.

The X-ray of the long bones of the child shows the bones divided into three portions, namely a long part consisting of the shaft proper, and two smaller portions at each end.

It is between the shaft and the smaller portions that lengthwise growth takes place.

Bones are subject to numerous diseases. They may be affected by pus infections, tuberculosis, syphilis, cancer and other disease conditions. They are also subject to accident, the most common being fractures.

These tures, which have caused more n one tourist to blush into his de book, were supposed to bring from the unconscious the dan- usly repressed desires of the hful.

HE creed of Juggernaut, according to this explanation, inculcates first knowledge and self-control. The outer hall its chief temple is lined with ues and frescoes of a highly k and disturbing nature. The al of snug-fitting felt hats sent numbers of wire frame mak- t into a wageless world. The tion of the electric refrigera- hrew ice-men with small busi- s of their own into the ranks skilled labor.

s Calkins' book makes plain the most trying factor in a er's life is his sense of insecur- One man stated that he would work all the rest of his life only $5 a day if he could be sure of not having to face any lack of employment.

If this feeling of insecurity is to be overcome, workers must have old age pensions and adequate unemployment insurance. I'm hoping that something of the sort will be prepared before the next industrial crisis.

However, I'm not at all confident. When the wine of prosperity begins to flow again people will cheerfully forget to provide for the morning after.

The clothing industry has a strangely farsighted way of looking at the seasons. Here the last of the russet and burnished gold has hardly faded from the woodlands, and already in the department stores one hears the elfin foot of spring.

A few days ago I went into a large emporium and vainly tried to buy a brown wool dress. "It's too late for wools," protested the salesgirl. Feebly I tried to call her attention to the sharp-pointed tang in the outside air, and I also attempted to indicate that winter, not spring, is the season that customarily follows autumn.

"But it's really too late for wools!" she repeated. "We sell most of our woolen dresses in August and September. From now on it will be all silks, satins and chiffons."

HOLIDAY CUSTOMS of Many Lands SURVIVE HERE

True, the ceremonies of numerous nationalities blend in the usual Yuletide observance in the United States, but there are some families in St. Louis who cling to the Old World celebration of the day.

And the sentiment of the season, shared by those of the younger generation who have seen distant shores only through the tales of their grandparents, was crystallized Sunday in the annual festival of the International Institute of St. Louis. Scores of youths, and old folks, too, of virtually every nationality represented in St. Louis, enacted the Christmas eve festivities of far-off lands.

Some of their costumes, gay in flashing colors, were sewn and broidered by patient hands which work no more in this world. Others were made here in faithful adherence to the habiliments which have been worn for centuries in other lands. There were those in the audience, which filled the auditorium of Soldan High School, who had spent their best years across the seas and to whom the scenes brought back other days and other ways.

The world-wide recognition of the spirit of the season bridged the gap of diverse languages and the international language of rythm lent zest to the singing and dancing which formed a part of many of the presentations, all of them part of the folk lore of the ages.

THE Italians, for instance, portrayed the festivities in homes of Italy prior to the solemn hour when the chimes herald the birth of Christ and all merriment ceases as everyone kneels and sings praises to the new born King.

The big meal of the season is eaten on Christmas eve in Italy, with the principal dish a large species of eel. Jerusalem artichokes cooked with eggs is another favorite dish. One of the Christmas eve ceremonies consists of the lighting of the Yule log, which takes the place of the Christmas tree and Santa Claus. Before the log is lighted, the children are gathered round the ireplace and blindfolded. Each child recites a verse to the Christ Child. Then the blindfolds are removed and each youngster finds before him a pile of gifts, which he is told the Christ Child has brought. Although Christmas eve is a time of merrymaking a manger, usually home made, is prepared in every home nine days before Christmas and each morning the family assembles before it and recites special prayers.

The Polish depiction of Christmas eve showed the traditional "Vigilja" supper, which begins when the first star appears in the sky. Consecrated wafers are distributed and each one shares his wafer, at the same time wishing health and prosperity during the coming year. If an uneven number sit down at the table, as enacted by the Paderewski Singing Society, a stranger is invited in. Later, the girls tell fortunes by means of straws under the tablecloth. The one who finds an unthreshed piece of grain, tradition tells, will be married soon—and happily.

CAROLS which have resounded from churches, castles and cottages of Russia for centuries before civil conflict raised its head were sung by the choir of St. Michael the Archangel, the Russian Orthodox Church.

St. Louis Greeks, depicted the conversion of the pagan Athenians to the Christian religion, instead of their Christmas celebration which is similar to that conducted in this country.

Merry folk dances about the Christmas tree mark Christmas eve in Swedish homes. Santa Claus in Sweden is "Jultomten," who brings his gifts into the house.

The Jugo-Slav Christmas, or "Badjnak tree," as depicted Sunday by the Jugo-Slav Singing Society, is broken up when it is brought into the house. Branches are decorated with ribbons in the national colors, while the main part of the tree is laid on the fire, where it must burn the night through.

The head of the family brings a bunch of straw to his wife and they wish each other a happy "Badjnak" day. Then she scatters the straw on the floor, imitating the clucking of a hen while the children dodge about like little chickens. On Christmas morning the visitor breaks off a small branch of the tree and greets the head of the house with the words, "Christ Is Born." All reply, "In Truth He Is Born" as the visitor strikes the burning tree with his branch and extends Christmas wishes.

Groups of gayly dressed children spend Christmas eve in Hungary going about the streets singing carols. The children, known as "the Bethlehemers," visit each home during the evening.

* * *

ALTHOUGH time did not permit the enactment of the Christmas customs of every nationality represented in St. Louis the ceremonies of additional nations were depicted in previous festivals and there were many in the audience to whom Christmas represents a different setting than the rush and bustle of modern St. Louis.

In Mexico a pottery jar, or hollow figure, filled with gifts takes the place of the Christmas tree in this country. As the climax to a merry family gathering, Mexican children shatter the jar or "Pinata" and scramble for the gifts as it breaks.

French children, who anticipate the coming of "Le Petit Noel" for weeks before Christmas put wooden shoes by their fireplaces to be filled with toys, instead of hanging up their stockings.

Some German youngsters, too, put out shoes instead of hanging up stockings. Roast goose or duck is the traditional dish there on Christmas while the Christmas tree, which originated in Germany, is an important part of the celebration.

But north and south, east and west, the kindly spirit of the Yuletide exists, affecting the most modern celebration in St. Louis as well as some of the traditional customs of the old world.

* * *

TOMORROW morning the German will say, "Froehliche Weihnachten"; the Hungarian, "Boldog Karacsonyi Unnepeket"; the Italian, "Buon Natale"; the Lithuanian, "Linksmu Kaledy"; the Pole, "Weselych Swiat Bozego Narodzenia" the Dane, "Glaedelig Jul"; the Frenchman, "Joyeux Noel"; and our neighbor, the Mexican, "Feliz Noche Buena."

All of which means the same thing in any language and corresponds to the St. Louisan's:—

"Merry Christmas!"

DAILY STORY FOR CHILDREN

By Mary Graham Bonner

Starting Off

THE Little Black Clock was waiting for John and Peggy.

"I've turned the time back a little," he said, "so we can see our dear friend Santa Claus as he starts off. Then I must get you back in plenty of time too! Have you both hung up your stockings?"

"Yes," shouted John and Peggy together.

The Little Black Clock had arranged that another sleigh should come for them and they made their way so quickly over the country until they came to the marvelous, cheery place up North where Santa lived.

Everything was so exciting up there. The reindeer were jingling their bells. The huge sleigh was in readiness—and it was the largest sleigh they had ever seen. Santa used a very special sleigh for Christmas eve.

Santa was so excited. He had taken down the great lists with the names of the children and what they wanted written by their names, and was now marking them off as he saw that the presents were put inside the sleigh.

"My, but you've got a deep, deep, wide sleigh." John exclaimed as more and more toys were piled into it.

"I need it all right!" Santa chuckled.

"I am afraid we must leave now," said the Little Black Clock.

"Merry Christmas!" Santa said to John and patted him on the back. "You're a fine boy," he added.

"And you're a dear, a perfect dear," he told Peggy as he kissed her, and she put her arms around Santa and gave him a hug.

He wished the Little Black Clock a Merry Christmas, too, and then they were off—just a little before Santa was going to start.

"Santa called me a dear," Peggy kept repeating, and John kept saying:

"That's right! You are. And he said I was a fine boy."

Peggy agreed, every time John said this, that it was quite, quite true, and then they wished the Clock a Merry Christmas as they arrived home. Soon they were in their beds.

The Black Bottom.

After the maid has left and you go into the kitchen to find all your aluminum pans with black bottoms, don't be discouraged, but set them in a shalow pan in which a teaspoon of soda has been dissolved in a little water. Then heat the water to the boiling point and let simmer for a few minutes. They will clean up very readily.

When to Weigh Baby

During the first six months an infant should be weighed every week and if he is a normal, healthy child he will gain from four to eight ounces a week. From six to 12 months he should be weighed at least every two weeks and during this period the gain in weight is less, usually from two to four ounces a week.

The average healthy infant will double its weight at birth when he reaches five months and by the time he reaches his first birthday he will treble his birth weight.

During the second year a child should be weighed once a month. The gain in weight is not continuous after the first year. There are many interruptions, but as long as there is no loss in weight there is no cause for alarm. For instance, during the teething periods there may be no gain in weight for two or three weeks. When the weight remains at a standstill for long period the matter requires attention.

To weigh the baby undress it completely. It is best to do this before giving the bath. Place a soft cloth in the scales and lay the baby upon this, or if the room is cool use a blanket and fold it over the child. After removing the baby weigh the blanket or cloth and deduct this amount from the first weight.

Keep a record of the baby's weight from week to week for reference.

When weighing an infant before and after measuring to learn the amount of food he is receiving it is not necessary to undress him; just weigh him both times in the same clothing.

A Practice Board.

It is well to keep the youngster's blackboard in the kitchen. Mother almost always spends the hour before dinner here and Sonny could get most of his lessons done at this time with Mother on hand to help with the more difficult work.

Creamed New Turnips.

Wash, peel and dice young turnips and boil until tender in salted water. Drain and add a dash of pepper, three tablespoons cream and a pinch of salt. Stir and simmer until the turnips have absorbed the seasonings and most of the cream.

Mushroom and Oyster Entree.

Saute large mushrooms in butter for four minutes. Place on rounds of buttered toast, up-side-down. Sprinkle with salt, pepper and dot with butter. Place one large oyster on each and sprinkle with buttered crumbs. A toothpick may be necessary to hold it intact. Bake for 10 minutes in a hot oven. Good as an appetizer, too.

A tablespoon of chopped chives is well added to baked salsify.

CURE FOR SELF-CONSCIOUSNESS

By FRANCES OLIVIER.

IN her mother's eyes Mary is not only a "case"—she is a "strange case." It seems that Mary is pretty, and altogether charming when she is among friends. But let her go out among newly formed acquaintances—at a dance for instance—and Mary becomes an altogether different girl.

Instead of being her delightfully amusing self in conversation, either she goes dead serious or plain silly. Her walk becomes affected. She sits either stiffly or with too obvious an attempt to achieve grace and poise. And her usually adorable little face takes on a permanent grin or a distressing soberness. In fact, her voice, mannerisms, everything, undergo a complete change, and not for the better.

When Mary's mother went on to explain that her child (the "case" is just 20 years of age) "is so sweet" and has "such a lovely disposition," we were not amazed. Truth to tell, we knew that Mary was "just the most thoughtful girl in the world" fully 15 minutes before her mother said so. Because, you see, it is that way with numerous self-conscious cases.

Now, if you, gentle reader, find that you are not at your best when you meet "new" people; if you hear yourself saying things that don't sound like you, and acting like somebody else, and altogether bungling at first meetings, the cause is most likely this over-anxiety to please.

Telling the self-conscious to forget about themselves serves, as a general rule, to make them more self-conscious. But tell them to be themselves despite what "people" may say or think, and ten to one the "people" will be saying and thinking the nicest possible things.

Haven't you ever observed the well-bred indifference to criticism and praise alike of really charming people? Their ability to walk through a staring throng obvious to the stares, or tell a story effortlessly and beautifully and without too much thought about the audience?

Needless to say, most of us must first have the assurance of being correct as to appearance and manners in order to achieve such perfect aplomb. There are those, of course, who could maintain their poise wrapped in a horse blanket, but they are the magnificent exceptions who make history. The rest of us have to be "right" as to clothes and grooming and the rules of etiquette—so right that we can afford to be indifferent to "people" —so right and so used to being right that we forget ourselves automatically.

It Is There for You.

So often when we are visiting we say, "It is a shame to spoil your pretty guest towels; I'll just use this one." Then we take one that belongs to some member of the family when our hostess would greatly prefer that we used the towel provided for us. Usually guest towels are laundered not because they are mussed and soiled, but because they have become so dusty from just hanging.

HOW IT BEGAN

By RUSS MURPHY

WHY WE KISS OUR SWEETHEARTS AND WIVES.
KISSING IS STRICTLY A WESTERN CUSTOM.....THE CHINESE AND JAPANESE DO NOT GENERALLY PRACTICE IT... PLINY SAYS IT FIRST BEGAN BETWEEN KINSMEN AND KINSWOMEN IN ORDER THAT THE FORMER MIGHT KNOW WHETHER THE LATTER HAD TASTED WINE IN THEIR ABSENCE.
BORN WITH A SILVER SPOON IN HIS MOUTH...
ABOUT THE SIXTEENTH CENTURY IT BECAME QUITE A FAD TO PRESENT BABIES WITH SPOONS....SILVER SPOONS WERE RARE AND COSTLY, AND ONLY CHILDREN OF VERY WEALTHY PARENTS RECEIVED THEM.
HEARTS-SPADES-DIAMONDS-CLUBS
THESE SYMBOLS ORIGINALLY REPRESENTED FOUR DIFFERENT CLASSES OF PEOPLE.... HEARTS REPRESENTED THE CLERGY, SPADES OR SPEARS THE SOLDIERS, CLUBS THE PEASANTRY, AND DIAMONDS THE MERCHANTS.

MOTHER, YOU CAN'T REALIZE HOW SORRY I AM THAT I JUST COULDN'T MARRY MONTGOMERY. AND IT'S TOO BAD ALL THIS SHOULD HAPPEN AT A TIME LIKE THIS—CHRISTMAS, WHEN YOU'RE ALWAYS SO JOLLY.
WELL PEGGY, I'LL ADMIT I FEEL BADLY BUT THINGS COULD BE WORSE—POSSIBLY.
I COULDN'T MARRY HIM...I COULDN'T, UNTIL ALL THIS TALK ABOUT HARTFORD BEING AN EL DORADO IS CLEARED UP. AND MONTGOMERY ACTED SO PECULIAR WHEN I ASKED HIM ABOUT IT. AS THOUGH HE WASN'T AS SURPRISED AS I EXPECTED HE WOULD BE.
THAT WRETCH OAKDALE. EVEN AT A TIME LIKE THIS WHEN WE'RE SUPPOSED TO HAVE GOOD WILL TOWARD EVERYONE I STILL—WELL I WONT SAY IT.
HARTFORD OAKDALE IS ONLY AN INCIDENT MOTHER. THE REALLY IMPORTANT PART OF THAT STORY IS THAT ANYONE SO CRUEL AS TO TAKE A CHILD OUT IN A BOAT AND—
PEGGY, IT JUST MAKES MY HAIR STAND ON END TO SEE HOW SIMPLY POP-EYED YOU AND YOUR FATHER ARE OVER A REVAMPED BEDTIME STORY.
WELL—
WHAT A CHRISTMAS! HA EVERY TIME ANYONE SAYS MERRY CHRISTMAS TO ME I LOOK AT THEM TWICE TO MAKE SURE THEY'RE NOT JUST TRYING TO GIVE ME A DIG ABOUT YOUR AFFAIR. CHRISTMAS! HEAVENLY DAYS, IT SEEMS MORE LIKE ONE OF THOSE OLD FASHIONED FOURTH OF JULYS.

GANGSTER SHOT IN FRONT OF HIS HOME FROM AUTO

HIS SISTER TELLS POLICE OF ATTACK

William Lombardo, Sicilian gangster, was shot and seriously wounded today by gangsters who fired on him apparently from an automobile, in front of his home at 1511 Carr street.

Wounded by five bullets he was found lying on the sidewalk by his sister, Janie, who ran from the house when she heard the shots.

"Get me a doctor," he said, and collapsed.

He was taken into the house and later removed to Missouri Baptist Hospital. Physicians found he had been shot in the abdomen, chest, right shoulder and both legs.

He has been arrested more than 50 times for questioning in various crimes. Dec. 4 he was taken in the wholesale roundup of alleged narcotic peddlers by police and Federal agents.

Janie Lombardo and her mother were washing clothes in the basement of the Lombardo home when the gangster was shot down on the sidewalk a few feet from them.

Sister's Story of Shooting.

"I heard shots and ran to the window in time to see a man with a gray hat firing a revolver at my brother," the sister said. "I was so excited I could not tell whether the man was in an automobile or not. All I know was that I saw his hat, his arm and a pistol in his hand."

Mrs. Gertrude Portnoy, 1509A Carr street, next door to the Lombardo home, said she ran to the front of her house when she heard three shots, but was unable to recall whether or not an automobile was being driven from the scene as she opened the window and looked out.

"I saw Willie Lombardo on the sidewalk and knew he had been shot," she said. "He had dropped a bundle and he was crawling along the walk toward his front steps. His sister and mother ran out and I could hear him say, 'Get me a doctor.'"

Auto Seen Speeding Away.

Other residents of the neighborhood told policemen they saw a large blue sedan driven rapidly west from the scene a moment after they had heard the shots fired.

Capt. Frank Nally of the Carr Street Police Station was told that a few minutes before the shooting Lombardo had alighted from a Ford roadster at the corner of Fifteenth and Carr streets. His companion, whose name Capt. Nally had, drove away as Lombardo walked toward his home.

According to Capt. Nally, Lombardo is known to be active as a bootlegger. Police have been informed that he has recently become allied with Cuckoo gangsters who are said to be in feud with a gang of Sicilian still operators and whisky runners, but have been unable definitely to substantiate their information.

PRICE OF BREAD IN CITIES OF STATE TO BE INVESTIGATED

Attorney General to Determine If It Is Out of Line With Wheat Quotations.

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo., Dec. 26. — Attorney General Stratton Shartel announced today that an investigation of bread prices in the larger cities and towns of Missouri would be made to determine whether the prevailing prices have responded to the lower wheat figures.

"If the bread prices are out of line with the present and past quotations on wheat, and have not responded to the lower wheat figures, it would follow that artificial means are being used to keep up the price of bread," Shartel said.

"If we should find in this investigation that concerns operating in Missouri are violating the laws of this State, they will be promptly prosecuted," the Attorney General said.
